Education Notes.

The hearing on the appeal by City Superintendent Ettinger from the decision of the Board of Education with regard to its conduct of the school survey has been postponed by State Commissioner of Education Finley from Nov. 14 to Nov. 21, at the request of Dr. Ettinger's counsel, Henry W. Taft.

Talks on continuation work have been arranged. There will be fifteen two-hour lectures. On Nov. 15 President Anning S. Prall and City Superintendent Ettinger will speak on "The Plan of the Board of Education to Carry Out the Compulsory Education Law."

In its petition to the State Commissioner of Education to dismiss the survey appeal made to him by City Superintendent Ettinger the Board of Education says that Dr. Ettinger has "displayed and exhibited a spirit and determination to be insubordinate, defiant and rebellious to the authority which the Board of Education has over the control of its affairs and of him, to the prejudice of the discipline and order of school affairs and the efficient management and control of the schools."

The Boys' Farm at Valhalla, N. Y., maintained by the Children's Aid Society, will be made an annex to P. S. 16, the Bronx, on Jan. 1. A teacher for it will be provided by the Board of Education.

The offer of the State Director of Agricultural and Industrial Education to establish training classes for vocational teachers in this city has been accepted by the Board of Education, which will provide suitable meeting places for class sessions.

The case of Miss Bertha Baas, a teacher in the Wadleigh High School, has been returned to the Board of Superintendents with the suggestion by Mr. Ryan that she be transferred for one term to another school to determine her condition for teaching.

The schedule of examinations for December has been approved by the Board of Education.

The Isaac Pitman Shorthand Writers Assn. will hold its first meeting of the year at the Kells School, 2,105 Seventh Avenue, New York, on Nov. 15, at 8 P. M. This is the twenty-third year of the association's existence. The following program will take place: "Personality—Can It Be Developed?" by M. E. Zinman, formerly instructor at the Bay Ridge High School; "The Need of a Practical Business Training," by W. M. Jackson, personnel expert; "Demonstration of the New Dictaphone Indestructible Records," by F. W. Hanson.

LANSING RESTATES MEXICAN POSITION

BUT MUST SHOW NEGLECT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Secretary of State Lansing answered today the criticism that has been directed against the Government in connection with the case of William O. Jenkins, the American consular agent, who was recently kidnapped at Puebla by Mexican bandits, and a former statement of the Government's attitude on Mexican responsibility. Secretary Lansing said:

"The newspapers in connection with the Jenkins kidnapping case made it appear that I had said that Americans in Mexico had no greater rights to protection than Mexicans. I regret that the context of my comments were not given in full because it would have shown that I was referring to a condition in which the Mexican authorities had employed every means which they possessed or should have possessed to protect the lives and property of aliens in any Mexican community. If the authorities failed to provide means of protection or to use such means the statement attributed to me would not apply.

"To avoid being misunderstood as to this Government's interpretation of the rule of international law on the subject of responsibility on the part of Mexico for the safety of Americans in that country I make the following statement:

"While in general there is presumed to be no difference between the rights of aliens and the rights of natives to be treated fairly and justly under local laws and by the local authorities, nevertheless should the operation of the local laws or the acts of commission or omission by local authorities result in injustice to Americans or lack of adequate protection of their lives or property, it is the privilege, as well as the right, of this Government, under international law, by diplomatic intervention to see to it that justice is accorded to its citizens and their rights given proper protection.

"The reason for this is that, when a condition of political unrest and lawlessness exists, such as obtains in certain parts of Mexico, aliens being denied proper protection by the authorities must rely on their Government, operating through diplomatic channels, to obtain justice and security. This is a general statement and the basis of the policy followed by this Government, though it is necessarily subject to modification in particular cases.

"It should be borne in mind, however, that the accepted law and practice of nations is that, as a rule, it must be shown that a foreign government is responsible for injustice done to aliens or that its constituted authorities are negligent in protecting their lives and property before liability is incurred."

Testimony on financial aspects of the Mexican revolution was placed before the sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations that is investigating the Mexican situation today by William B. Mitchell, former manager of the Bank of London and Mexico, in Mexico City. Mr. Mitchell was examined in New York a few days ago, and the testimony was filed with the committee today.

Mr. Mitchell testified that just before the Government of Francisco I. Madero was overthrown Carranza had threatened a revolt against Madero, because of the insistence of the Madero officials that Carranza account for large sums of money which he had received as Governor of Coahuila.

"My personal opinion is," said the witness, "that the majority of military men that have supported Carranza and are still supporting him do not wish the state of turmoil to cease, because if such happened a great part of their income would stop, as is known and has been even pointed out in the Mexican newspapers that back up or are in favor of Carranza."

GOVERNOR'S MOTHER ILL.

Mrs. Catherine Smith Stricken with Pneumonia—Son at Bedside.

Governor Alfred E. Smith hurried down from Albany yesterday morning upon receipt of news that his mother, Mrs. Catherine Smith, was seriously ill with bronchial pneumonia at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John J. Glynn, 9 Middagh Street, Brooklyn. The Governor arrived at his mother's bedside at noon, and it was announced later that he would remain at the Middagh Street residence until the crisis was reached.

Dr. John H. Reb of 328 Jay Street, Brooklyn, the Smith family physician, called into consultation last night Dr. Herman M. Biggs, State Health Commissioner, and Dr. A. B. Wadsworth, Director of Laboratories of the City Health Department. While admitting that Mrs. Smith's condition was serious, Dr. Reb stated that a crisis may not be reached for fourteen days, although one was looked for within a week. Mrs. Smith is 67 years old.

Our boys' suits at $20 to $40, and the overcoats at $22.50 to $50 are wonderful values. Most of the suits have extra knickers.

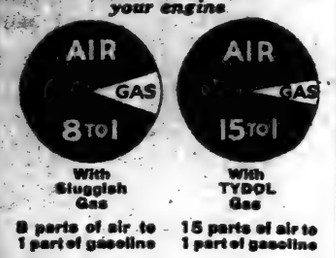
What really explodes in your engine



How to make 15 to 1 adjustment

After filling the gasoline tank with Tydol, run the engine until warm. Then lift the hood.

Turn the gas adjustment on the carburetor, decreasing gradually the flow of gasoline.

When the engine begins to slow down, turn the gas adjustment back, increasing the flow slightly until you get a maximum engine speed.

This will give you the 15 to 1 adjustment. If you have a "rich" and "lean" adjustment on the dashboard you can use an even leaner adjustment than the above.

On hills and in traffic use the rich dash adjustment; on the level or in the country use the lean.

Tydol will operate on the rich mixture needed by inferior gasoline. But Tydol is made so you can use the 15 to 1 mixture—less fuel and more air.

Don't let your car WASTE gasoline

LOW gasoline mileage means carbon, power waste, sluggishness—it means you waste gasoline.

You can get high mileage out of your car. You can prevent rapid carbonization, sluggishness.

Tydol gasoline vaporises fast. Tydol gives most power, most acceleration, and most miles per gallon on a lean mixture.

When your gasoline tank is filled with Tydol, have the dealer adjust your carburetor to a 15 to 1 mixture of gas and air. The chart shown above illustrates how Tydol uses fifteen parts of air to one of gasoline. This is the saving you get with Tydol. This is the reason Tydol stretches out your gasoline mileage.

Give Tydol a tryout today. Watch the results. Your motor won't waste a drop of gas. You'll feel new pickup. Most of all, your speedometer will show you more miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Look for the orange and black Tydol sign.

I. W. W. Editor and Directors at Seattle Held Under Espionage Law.

ROUNDUP BY SPOKANE POLICE

ARRESTS IN OTHER CITIES

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 13, (Associated Press.)—Raids were conducted in Washington and Oregon cities today by State and Federal officials on Industrial Workers of the World headquarters, and many arrests were made of alleged members of the organization.

Governor L. F. Hart of Washington announced he would start a Statewide campaign to wipe out Industrial Workers of the World, Bolsheviki, and other radicals, and called upon all State officials to co-operate in the work with Federal and county officers. The Governor received messages asking him to convene the Legislature to pass stringent anti-I. W. W. laws.

Federal officers raided the office of The Seattle Union Record, seized the entire plant, and arrested several employes, including E. B. Ault, editor. The raids were the outgrowth of the killing of four former service men at Centralia, Wash., Tuesday by alleged Industrial Workers of the World.

Big Roundup in Spokane.

Seventy-four alleged members of the Industrial Workers were arrested in a hall at Spokane, and at Portland, Ore., men alleged to be members of the organization were being held for examination. One of the men arrested at Portland, Frank Briley, told the authorities he believed the Centralia outrage was a "frameup against the I. W. W."

The raid on The Union Record was made on instructions from Washington, D. C., according to Robert C. Saunders, United States District Attorney. Federal officers also seized the plant of the Equity Printing Company and arrested Walker C. Smith, editor of The International Weekly, which is printed in The Equity Shop. Smith was charged with violating the Espionage act.

E. B. Ault, editor; George P. Listman, President of the Board of Directors of The Record, and Frank A. Rust, Secretary-Manager of the Seattle Labor Temple Association, were arrested, charged with violation of the Espionage act. The Record is owned by the Seattle Central Labor Council.

Deputy United States Marshals ordered a truck load of copies of the mail edition which was about to leave the office to be unloaded.

During Seattle's general strike in February it was charged by city officials that The Equity plant printed most of the alleged inflammatory posters and hand bills distributed about the city. Ole Hanson, then Mayor, closed the plant for a time.

Ault was released under $5,000 cash bond furnished by Ernest Newsham, Secretary-Treasurer of District No. 10, United Mine Workers of America. As Ault was leaving the office of United States Commissioner S. R. McClellan he was rearrested on a State charge of criminal libel filed by Prosecuting Attorney Fred C. Brown, alleging that a Union Record editorial of Nov. 12, entitled "Don't Shoot in the Dark," libeled the overseas men killed at Centralia.

Federal Agents in Wide Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Department of Justice is engaged in a thorough investigation of the I. W. W. situation. Its agents are in all parts of the country where this organization is operating and it is believed that drastic action will follow in every instance where it is shown that an I. W. W. has been engaged in activities which are directed against the life or integrity of the United States Government or its officials.

Another phase of the I. W. W. propaganda that is receiving the attention of the Department is the magazines and newspapers published by the organization in various parts of the country, principally in Chicago and New York.

One of these newspapers is published both in New York and in Seattle. It is known as The Rebel Worker and is one of the most radical of all the Red publications now printed in the United States. The Industrial Worker, printed in English, is also published in Seattle. These are the principal radical publications in the State of Washington, and agitation carried on in their columns has been responsible, in the opinion of

Offer British Rail Workers Place in Managing Roads

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 14.—Premier Lloyd George has offered to the Railwaymen's Union membership in committee management of the roads with railroad Directors and Government officials, according to a statement by J. H. Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen.

Mr. Thomas announces that the Government has also made a definite offer of new machinery to deal with wages of railwaymen and settlement of disputes. Both offers were made at a conference of the Premier with a delegation from the National Union of Railwaymen yesterday, and will be submitted to the Executive Committee of the union today.

CENTRALIA RED TELLS ON COMRADES

EX-SOLDIER IS SHOT AT

CENTRALIA, Wash., Nov. 13, (Associated Press.)—Police and former soldiers today continued to seek alleged members of the Industrial Workers of the World who were involved in the fatal shooting Tuesday of four former soldiers during the Armistice Day parade.

Britt Smith, an alleged member of the organization, it was announced, identified four of the men held in jail here as being in the radicals' headquarters when the parade passed.

According to the police, Smith said that all the men in the hall were armed, and he "guessed they fired shots at the parade. The four men he identified were Mike Sheehan, James McInerney, Roy Becker, and a man named Faulker. Smith also definitely identified the man who was lynched Tuesday night as Wesley Everett, I. W. W. organizer, who also was said to have been in the room where the shots were fired.

Four Industrial Workers of the World were ordered from jail today to bury Everett when local undertakers refused to do so. The body was taken from the jail floor and placed in a wooden box, which was loaded into a moving van. Accompanied by seventeen armed National Guardsmen the four prisoners went to the pauper section of the local cemetery with the body, dug a grave, lowered the box in and covered it up without services of any nature.

Early today George Paxton, a former soldier, was fired upon as he was patrolling the road between Centralia and Chehalis, to which town four of the prisoners had been removed. The person who fired the shot has not been apprehended.

Testimony tending to show that marching ex-service men started toward the I. W. W. hall before shots were fired from the building, of the hotel opposite, was given at the inquest tonight over the bodies of the soldiers killed Tuesday.

County Attorney Allen said that he had evidence that would result in the filing of information, charging murder in the first degree against nine men now held here and at Chehalis.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 13.—A report that I. W. W. were gathering at Bordeaux, Wash., in preparation for attacking the Thurston County Jail at Olympia to release three men arrested at Centralia Tuesday, brought every available citizen who could get a weapon to the jail tonight, a message to The Ledger from Olympia says.

The prisoners, it was stated, were Commodore Brand, suspected of being the slayer of Lieutenant Warren Grimm, Elmer S. Smith, and John Doe Reynolds.

While the armed citizens were assembling at the jail, the dispatch said, the three prisoners were put in an automobile and were started for the State Reformatory at Monroe, Wash.

Members of the Sheriff's force and local police, aided by former service men, tonight boarded a Tacoma Eastern train at Bismarck, a suburb, and on arriving here arrested eighteen passengers alleged to be I. W. W. Other suspects were believed to have left the train just before reaching Bismarck, and a posse went in search of them.

Des Moines Mayor Threatened.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 13.—An unsigned note, believed by the police to have been sent by the I. W. W., and received late Wednesday by Thomas Fairweather, Mayor of Des Moines, caused his home to be guarded by police last night and today. The note made a threat against the Mayor's life. A special guard was around the City Hall today. The police connect recent warnings to I. W. W.'s to leave Des Moines with the note received by Mayor Fairweather.

COAL STRIKE CHIEFS MEET MINE OWNERS AT CAPITAL TODAY

PRESS MAY BE ADMITTED

Fuel Administrator Garfield Will Attend Conferences at Secretary Wilson's Invitation.

PALMER TO PROTECT MINERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Coal miners and operators from the nation's bituminous fields will enter into negotiations here tomorrow for a new wage agreement with the question of the time of termination of the Washington wage agreement of 1918 apparently as the chief stumbling block.

Both miners and operators on the eve of the conference at which the points in dispute in the recent strike are expected to be settled, were hopeful, however, as to the outcome, and expressed the belief that the question of when the Washington agreement terminated could be disposed of through mutual agreement along with the demands of the miners for a 60 per cent. increase in pay and shorter hours.

Announcement by the Executive Committee of the operators of the central competitive field, in a formal statement tonight that the Washington agreement is one of the matters "to be determined by the conference" was taken generally to mean that the operators do not intend to stand pat on their contention that present contracts remain in effect during the "duration of the war" or until March 31, 1920, in case a satisfactory settlement is made with the miners on that and other points.

It was said by those in close touch with the situation, that the operators were going into the conference tomorrow in a conciliatory spirit, and would not insist on the interpretation that the war is not over, although their stand has been supported by the pronouncement of the Administration and the mandate of Federal Judge Anderson at Indianapolis.

Favors an Open Conference.

The first question to come before the conference will be whether the proceedings shall be open. Secretary Wilson said today that he would recommend that newspaper representatives be admitted.

Miners arriving here today for the parley attached significance to the announcement by Secretary Wilson that Fuel Administrator Garfield had accepted his invitation to be present at the opening of the conference. No explanation of the rôle Dr. Garfield is to play was given, other than the statement that as it was through his influence that the "Washington agreement" was negotiated, his presence was logically to be expected. There was speculation as to whether the Fuel Administrator, with revived war powers, might not be able to exercise his authority in a similar manner on this occasion.

Dr. Garfield will not arrive until tomorrow morning, but at the Fuel Administration offices here it was said that Dr. Garfield's opinion might be asked as to how much of the burden of increased cost of production of coal, in case a wage advance is agreed to, the public should be called on to bear.

The conference will begin at 2:30 o'clock instead of at 11 o'clock, the Department of Labor announced tonight, owing to the fact that John L. Lewis, Acting President of the United Mine Workers of America, and other participants will not arrive until the afternoon. On account of the storm in Northwestern States a number of mine officials and operators may not arrive before Saturday, or perhaps later.

Lewis's Welcome Doubtful.

From remarks heard in the Federation of Labor building it would appear that some of the labor leaders now in Washington will not welcome Acting President Lewis with open arms. One of the most prominent labor leaders in the country is reported to have openly denounced the action of Lewis and his colleagues in submitting to the mandate of the Federal Court in recalling the strike order. The views of this man are known to be those of some of the other leaders. Edgar Wallace, the Washington representative of the mine workers, it became known today, wired yesterday his resignation as a national official of the organization. His reason for doing so is said to be his disapproval of the

Bulgaria Tells Conference She Will Sign the Treaty

PARIS, Nov. 13. — The Bulgarian peace delegation today sent an official note to Paul Dutasta, Secretary of the Peace Conference, announcing that Bulgaria was prepared to sign the Peace Treaty.

It is probable that the arrival of M. Stambulisky, the Bulgarian Premier, who is on his way to Paris from Sofia, will be awaited before the compact is signed.

OFFER NEW BILLS TO CURB RADICALS

One Transfers to Department of Justice Enforcement of the Deportation Laws.

ANOTHER HITS PROPAGANDA

Advocacy in Any Form of Overthrow of Government by Violence Made Criminal Offense.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The murder of the four war veterans by I. W. W. agitators in Centralia, Wash., on Armistice Day, has brought Congress to a full realization of the need of prompt and effective legislation, and it is now hoped that action will be taken in this important matter within the next week or ten days.

Representative Albert Johnson of Washington, Chairman of the House Committee on Immigration, introduced a bill in the House today which, if enacted, will transfer from the Department of Labor to the Department of Justice the enforcement of all existing deportation laws. The bill refers specifically to Sections 19 and 20 of the act approved by President Wilson in February, 1917, which is "an act to regulate the immigration of aliens to, and the residence of aliens in, the United States."

Another bill, which is also intended to give the Department of Justice jurisdiction in handling the alien radical situation, was also introduced by Chairman Johnson. This was drafted by Senator Sterling of South Dakota. It creates a Bureau of Land Boundary Control, one of the functions of which will be to enforce laws relating to unlawful entry into the United States of all persons of foreign citizenship. It is a matter of record that large numbers of undesirable aliens have been able to enter the United States from Mexico and, in many instances, from Canada by crossing the border in violation of the laws now in effect. Furthermore, the bill provides that "the Attorney General shall have power to consolidate and transfer such bureaus as may be necessary from other executive departments" for the carrying out of the provision of the proposed law.

These bills are in addition to the fifty-two others previously introduced in Congress for the purpose of giving the Government all the power needed to control the I. W. W., Bolsheviki, and other radical situations which of late have occupied the attention of the Department of Justice.

The Sterling bill, which has been approved by the Senate Committee on Judiciary, makes it unlawful for any person to advocate or advise the overthrow of the Government. At the present time the laws in force are so ineffective that it is practically impossible for the Government to take action in such cases unless an overt act is committed. In other words, the Attorney General in nearly all cases must wait for the crime to be committed before taking action.

"If this bill is passed," said Senator Sterling today, "it will not only make it a crime to advocate or advise the overthrow of our Government, but will also make it a criminal offense for any person or persons in America to print, publish, utter, sell, or distribute any document, book, or other printed or written document in which the overthrow, by force or violence, of the Government is advocated, advised, or even suggested. It is also made a crime to advocate a change of Government, or of the Constitution, by the use of violent means.

"The bill also provides for the punishment of those who by force or violence seek to delay or hinder the execution of the laws of this country. In the case of citizens violating this law a prison term of five years is provided, while in the case of aliens, deportation must follow the conviction of the offenses enumerated. Flags and other emblems which indicate a desire on the part of persons to overthrow the Government or to defy its laws by violence are also punishable under the proposed law, and in the case of aliens deportation is provided."

Senator Sterling pointed out that the proposed law does not cover murder or attempts to murder. Those cases, he added, could best be cared for by the laws of the various States.

SEEKS TO BAR FOREIGN ARMS FROM MEXICO

PROTEST MADE TO BELGIUM

State Department Contends Traffic in Munitions Is Violation of Interallied Agreement.

KEEPING WATCH ON SPAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13, (Associated Press.)—Large orders for arms and ammunition placed by Mexico in Belgium and Spain, in preparation for the possibility of American intervention, came to light today when the State Department let it become known that the Government had taken steps to prevent their shipment.

The Chargé d'Affaires of the embassy in Brussels has protested, under instructions, that shipment of the munitions would be in violation of the International Arms Convention. As Spain is not a party to the agreement, which was designed to aid in keeping the peace of the world during the post-war transition period, no such direct action is probable at Madrid.

The order in Belgium was placed with the Fabrique Nationale d'Arms at Liége, probably under the direction of Candido Aguilar, Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs and President Carranza's son-in-law, who went to Europe recently after stopping here and placing a wreath on George Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon.

The orders in Spain, which included rifles, millions of rounds of ammunition, and a large number of machine guns, were negotiated through the Mexican Minister there, Eliseo Arredondo, former Ambassador to the United States and President Carranza's nephew.

The Spanish munitions, according to information in the hands of the Government, began passing into Mexico more than a year ago, while the European war was still on, and in violation of the interallied embargo. Rifles and ammunition and some sample machine-guns are reported to have passed Havana on their way to Mexico as late as June of this year. For later shipments, cargo space had been reserved for Oct. 19, on Holland-American Line steamers sailing out of Antwerp, and further space had been reserved for Tampico, Vera Cruz and Puerto Mexico on Dec. 3.

The United States has been denying shipments of arms and ammunition into Mexico for many months for the reason that they generally fell into the hands of bandits and often were used against Americans. Soon after the end of the war the Mexican Government asked for the release of munitions bought in this country in 1917, but it was refused.

Such information as has now come into the hands of the Government shows that Mexico already was turning to European manufacturers for her supply and has since placed enormous orders.

It appears that while the Peace Conference was in session in Paris and General Mondragon, a prominent Mexican, was there advising his Government of its probable course toward Mexican affairs, and particularly the attitude of the United States, the Spanish munitions makers, with whom large orders already had been placed, were being urged to speed up the delivery of powder and cartridges, and particularly of the machine guns, which were reported to be a new type described as perfect and unimprovable. General Mondragon, it appears, reported from his conferences in Paris that Mexico need not fear intervention by the United States, but information received at the same time disclosed that the orders for munitions steadily were going forward.

The information in the Government's hands also discloses that Mexican officials were attempting to gauge the attitude of Peru, Chile, Argentina, and other South American countries if the United States should decide on intervention. That phase of the incident, however, is not regarded by officials here as threatening. Aguilar discussed the South American attitude toward intervention during his conferences in Europe.

It is known that as late as July tests were being made in Mexico, the munitions were reported as giving perfect results, and the Spanish manufacturers were being urged to fill orders to the limit of their capacity. At one time, it appears, the Mexican Government was attempting to make up its estimates of the possibilities of production in Spain by prosecuting inquiries through the Spanish War Office.

In that connection recent Mexican activities in Spain are receiving attention, and considerable matter characterized as Mexican propaganda is being observed in the Spanish press. The important part taken by Mexicans in the Spanish celebration of the discovery of America last month also has been reported.

Meanwhile, the activities of a German mission in Mexico are being closely observed. Attempts by the Mexican Government at confiscation of mines and oil wells, with an announced view to their nationalization, are being closely examined in relation to Germany's need for those products.

Text of Article X. of League of Nations Covenant and the Reservation Adopted by the Senate

Article X. of the League Covenant, as adopted as part of the Versailles Treaty, reads:

The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled.

The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country or to interfere in controversies between nations—whether members of the League or not—under the provisions of Article X., or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any article of the treaty for any purpose, unless in any particular case the Congress, which, under the Constitution, has the sole power to declare war or authorize the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall by act or joint resolution so provide.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—London's medical students took a hand this afternoon in "Pussyfoot" Johnson's campaign.

He was speaking on American prohibition at Essex Hall, about 200 yards from King's College, in the Strand. Students heard of it and word passed from hospital to hospital to concentrate on King's.

The police were puzzled as pickets of students appeared in narrow, quiet Essex Street. Before they discovered what was up the "medicals" had filled the hall and a column of them several hundred strong debouched from King's and occupied Essex Street. The gates of the hall were shut but it was too late.

Those in the crowd outside were perfectly orderly but inside they took charge of the meeting and after making speeches proceeded to kidnap Johnson. There was a rough and tumble fight for a few minutes and the police at the hall whistled for reinforcements.

The students tumbled Johnson into the street and the police formed a cordon around them. The police were hopelessly outnumbered. They have a very good understanding with the "medicals" and seemed lacking in sympathy with the missionary.

Along the Strand "Pussyfoot" was hustled within a double ring of students and police and behind followed a long procession of students with roughly extemporized banners inscribed "Pussyfoot, meow," "What won the war? Rum!" and other inscriptions.

A clergyman vigorously championed Johnson. He called on the police, but they were lethargic. He tried to take their numbers, as the students hustled him into a cart and carried him along.

Both were taken to King's Quadrangle, where Johnson tried to make a speech. The students refused a hearing, threw some flour over him, and decided on a triumphant march through London. A hospital stretcher was produced. Johnson was seated cross-legged upon it and hoisted on the shoulders of a dozen husky young men.

Along the Strand, up through Covent Garden, and into Leicester Square he was carried. He had lost his hat, and a student lent him his own tattered headgear. Sometimes a man pulled it off, but he pointed to his almost perfectly bald pate, and he always got it back again. Johnson made no struggle. He exchanged a few remarks with his captors and took his queer experience calmly.

A Police Inspector was near the head of the procession and a line of stalwart policemen marched at the side, but they did nothing, except to try to keep the students roughly in touch until they reached Leicester Square. Then there was an effort to turn south to Trafalgar Square, where are tempting fountains of cool water. The police held that a march up Regent Street would be safer, so along the students went chanting in chorus: "We've got pussyfoot, meow; send him back to America," and so on.

Ordinary pedestrians stared in amazement at the swaying figure on the stretcher. Bus drivers pulled up and laughed. Women called out derisive remarks. Once there was a halt as amid groans of horror Johnson accepted a cigarette and lit it with enjoyment.

By the time Oxford Circus was reached the police thought that the fun had gone far enough. They had a wagon waiting in a side street, and closed in on Johnson in real earnest. A brief tussle ensued, he was put into the wagon and driven off at a full gallop.

The leader of the students made a speech thanking the police, and bidding every one go home quietly, and the "rag" was over.

4 HOUSE PROVISIONS AID RAIL FINANCING

Would Guarantee Revenues for First Six Months to Equal Government Paid Rental.

MAY FUND DEBTS 15 YEARS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—After sharp fights on each of the provisions, four important points of railroad reorganization legislation were today adopted by the House during its discussion of the Esch Railroad Regulation bill. All have important effect on the providing of capital to the carriers.

The provisions are, briefly:

General increases in rates must be asked of the Interstate Commerce Commission by the carriers within sixty days after the return of the carriers to private control.

The Government guarantees revenues of carriers, including short lines and express companies, for the first six months of private operation to equal the corresponding standard return paid as rental by the Government during Federal operation.

Indebtedness of the carriers to the Government remaining after the rental owed by the Government has been settled may be funded for fifteen years on demand notes paying 6 per cent. interest.

Carriers may obtain Government loans from a $250,000,000 revolving fund during the first two years of resumed private operation, the loans to bear 6 per cent. interest and to mature in five years. The loans must be secured.

The great battle between organized labor and advocates of compulsory arbitration of labor disputes will be fought out in the House tomorrow, when the section dealing with the adjustment of labor troubles, in the Railroad Regulation bill, is reached. The House adjourned tonight after two amendments to the section had been offered. One provides for a strict compulsory arbitration clause and the other enlarges on the committee's plan for settling these differences by creating two boards which will deal with distinct branches of railroad labor.

The fight of those demanding protection for the public through anti-strike legislation has been greatly strengthened by the outcome of the coal miners' strike. Sentiment, they say, has increased for laws which will effectually prevent strikes on public utilities and basic industries, such as the railroads and mines. On the other hand, representatives of organized labor have increased their efforts to defeat any plan of settlement of these disputes and are now arrayed against the Esch plan, carried in the pending bill.

Three Hours for Labor Debate.

Three hours' debate were apportioned tonight to the labor section, and it was announced that the representatives of organized labor would be present in the House tomorrow to make a show of force. Labor lobbyists were very active throughout the day against any plan for the adjusting of labor troubles being included in the railroad bill.

The compulsory arbitration amendment, offered by Representative Webster of Washington, after providing for a board to settle labor troubles, concludes:

It shall be unlawful for any group of employes to enter upon a strike before its controversy with the employer, common carrier or carriers has been submitted to the board and until the board has made a finding thereon. If the employer, common carrier or carriers conform to the findings of the board the right of such group or groups thereafter to strike in order

ADOPT RESERVATION, 46-33

HITCHCOCK PROPOSAL LOST

SEVEN AMENDMENTS FAIL

Walsh of Montana, Thomas, McKellar, and Owen Make Vain Struggle Against Majority.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—By a vote of 46 to 33 the Senate tonight adopted the reservation of the Foreign Relations Committee majority to Article X. of the Treaty with Germany, which President Wilson has denounced as a knife thrust at then heart of the treaty. The vote followed a hard battle by the minority forces to amend the reservation and substitute a milder one for it.

After the reservation had been adopted, Senator Lodge, the majority leader, offered a petition, signed by thirty Republican Senators, to invoke the closure rule, so as to limit further debate on the treaty. Under the rules, the petition went over until Saturday, when it must be voted on without debate. The Senate took a recess over tomorrow on account of the funeral of Senator Martin.

Senator Lodge's move for closure came after a similar attempt made by Senator Hitchcock, the minority leader, under which debate on the reservations alone would have been restricted. This effort of Mr. Hitchcock failed, when the Senate sustained a ruling by Senator Cummins, Republican, of Iowa, who was in the chair, that the closure, if invoked, must operate as to the entire treaty and not the reservations alone.

With Senators on both sides of the chamber insisting, during today's debate, that a final vote on the treaty be expedited, it is believed that the Lodge proposal has a fair chance of being accepted. If it is, each Senator will be restricted to one hour of debate up to the time of the final vote on ratification. It is expected that many Senators would not avail themselves of the full hour and that the treaty vote, under closure, might come toward the end of next week.

The Lodge closure petition was signed by only a few of the radical Senators. Efforts to invoke the limit on debate, it was stated, would be opposed by Senators La Follette, Reed, and a few others of the "irreconcilables." The signers of the petition were Senators Lodge, Norris, Phipps, Elkins, Capper, Edge, Townsend, Jones of Washington, Curtis, Calder, Kellogg, Hale, Learoot, Dillingham, Harding, McNary, Ball, Sterling, Cummins, Moses, Spencer, Keyes, McCumber, Colt, Watson, Smoot, McLean, Nelson, New, and Kenyon.

Hitchcock Offers Substitutes.

The minority forces were reluctant to accept a suggestion that the Hitchcock proposal for closure be extended to debate on the entire treaty, it was understood, because of fear that the majority would block any effort they might make to put in substitute reservations.

So as to save themselves from that contingency, Senator Hitchcock, before the Lodge proposal was offered, presented a set of substitute reservations in place of those submitted by the Foreign Relations Committee majority, which, Senator Hitchcock said later, represented the limit to which the minority was willing to go in the way of compromise.

Among the reservations offered by Senator Hitchcock was one, touching upon Article X., to provide that the advice which the League of Nations Council might give to members of the League respecting the use of their military forces might be considered by the members as only advisory and that, for itself, the United States reserved the right, through Congress, to decide whether to accept the advice.

The minority reservation on Article X. was offered by Senator Hitchcock as a substitute for the committee reservation before the latter was finally voted upon. It was defeated by a vote of 44 to 32.

The votes leading up to that on the majority reservation showed the Lodge forces in complete command of the situation.

One after another, the minority's counter-moves were voted down. The Walsh amendment, which, early in the week, had threatened to upset the Lodge program, was defeated by a vote of 68 to 4, only Senators La Follette and Norris, Republicans, and Walsh and Pittman, Democrats, voting for it. This amendment, the minority admitted, had been offered only in the effort to cause a break in the majority ranks.

The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country or to interfere in controversies between nations—whether members of the League or not—under the provisions of Article X., or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any article of the Treaty for any purpose, unless in any particular case the Congress, which, under the Constitution, has the sole power to declare war or authorize the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall by act or joint resolutions so provide.

Doubts Compromise Now.

After the committee reservation had been carried Senator Hitchcock was asked what the minority intended to do when it came to voting on the resolution of ratification with the reservation included in it. He said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent:

"I see no other course but to vote against the ratifying resolution. For myself I shall do it. And I believe there are many others on the Democratic side who will do the same. I do not know how many."

Senator Hitchcock said that, while the reservation was in slightly different form from the one which President Wilson had called a "knife thrust at the heart of the treaty," still it was essentially the same. The majority by having voted to put it in the ratifying resolution, he said, was bent on destroying the treaty.

He spoke of the reservation he had offered in the Senate as a substitute for the majority program, as an effort at arriving at some compromise upon which the opposing forces could agree. That such a compromise could be effected, however, in view of the apparent determination of the majority to carry out its program, he said, looked dubious.

The substitute reservations of the minority aggregate five in number, and are regarded by the majority leaders as merely interpretive in nature, in that there is no provision for requiring the assent of the principal signatories to the Peace Treaty to them, as is provided in those promulgated by the majority.

Text of Substitue Reservations.

The proposed substitutes read:

That any member nation proposing to withdraw from the League on two years' notice is the sole judge as to whether its obligations referred to in Article 1. of the League of Nations have been performed as required in said article.

That no member nation is required to submit to the League, its council, or its assembly, for decision, report or recommendation any matter which it considers to be in international law a domestic question such as immigration, labor, tariff, or other matters, relating to its internal or coastwise affairs.

That the national policy of the United States known as the Monroe Doctrine, as announced and interpreted by the United States, is in any way impaired or affected by the covenant of the League of Nations and is not subject to any decision, report or inquiry by the council or assembly.

That the advice mentioned in Article X. of the covenant of the League which the council may give to the member nations as to the employment of their naval and military forces is merely advice which each member nation is free to accept or reject according to the conscience and judgment of its then existing government and in the United States this advice can only be accepted by action of the Congress at the time in being. Congress alone under the Constitution of the United States having the power to declare war.

That in case of a dispute between members of the League, if one of them have self-governing colonies, dominions, or parts which have representation in the assembly, each and all are to be considered parties to the dispute and the same shall be the rule if one of the parties to the dispute is a self-governing colony, dominion, or part, in which case all other self-governing colonies, dominions or parts as well as the nation as a whole shall be considered parties to the dispute and each and all shall be disqualified from having their votes counted in case of any inquiry on said dispute made by the assembly.

While Senator Hitchcock appears to believe that he can command the support of thirty-three Democratic Senators to vote against ratification of the treaty with the majority reservations, including that on Article X. embodied in it, other Democratic Senators at the Capitol tonight expressed doubt that the necessary thirty-three would be found taking that attitude. Several of the Administration Senators are known to be opposed to any step that would put the onus for defeat upon their side. These Democrats incline to the belief that, once the majority reservations are adopted, the ratifying resolution in which they are embraced will obtain the necessary sixty-four votes.

Proposes Five-Year Limit.

Early in the day, after the Walsh amendment to release all nations in the League from the obligations imposed under Article X., had been voted down, Senator Thomas of Colorado offered an amendment to the committee reservation providing that the obligation of the United States under it be restricted to five years from the ratification of the treaty. Mr. Thomas explained that Elihu Root had advocated a limitation of that character in his original proposal of reservations to the covenant.

Senator Lodge, opposing the amendment, declared that Mr. Root later had withdrawn the suggestion for a limitation of the obligation and had advocated that Article X. be stricken from the treaty. The Thomas amendment, without further debate, was voted down 46 to 33.

Senator Walsh of Montana next offered an amendment to provide that the committee reservation be altered so as to specify that the United States assumed, for a period of five years, a definite obligation with other members of the League, to protect the territorial integrity of Poland, Czechoslovakia, and the Serb-Croat-Slovene State. This amendment, Mr. Walsh said, was suggested to assure protection by the members of the League of the "buffer States" set up along the frontier of Germany under the treaty.

"They are provided for in the treaty," replied Mr. Walsh.

"Have they been fixed?" demanded Mr. Lenroot.

"No, but that does not make any difference," replied Mr. Walsh.

"How can we guarantee boundaries that have not been fixed?" retorted Mr. Lenroot.

Senator Colt of Rhode Island said that Mr. Walsh's amendment would have the effect of taking from Congress its right to decide its participation in boundary disputes as they might arise under the League of Nations.

Mr. Walsh argued further for the amendment, and when he had finished Senator Lodge exclaimed:

"Now that the Senator from Montana has made his amendment so plain that I think nobody understands it, I hope we may have a vote."

Ashurst Appeals for Action.

Senator Hitchcock arose to reply to Mr. Lodge, when Senator Ashurst, interrupting him, scolded the Senate for wasting time on the treaty.

"I have never heard a more powerful nor a more convincing argument than that of the Senator from Montana, but I want to ask him a question," said Mr. Ashurst. "Is there a single Democratic Senator who now believes that any argument that can possibly be made in the forum of reason will alter the predetermination that our antagonists have agreed upon? Therefore why waste time?"

"I appeal on behalf of the American people for action and early action, to vote the treaty up or vote it down, and stop this talk, which every man who will speak knows will never change a vote. Let me say to my own party, if you have failed to expose your own position to the American people, God knows you never can do it. So you are wasting time on the Republican party doing nothing, making mud pies.

"For God's sake let us all keep our mouths shut and vote, vote and only vote."

When Mr. Ashurst resumed his seat, Senator Hitchcock remarked that he was glad the Senator spoke, because he made a very good point." Mr. Hitchcock said the debate had been prolonged by speeches lasting days, instead of hours. The Record showed, he went on, that during September and October thirty-seven hours had been consumed in debate by friends of the treaty, while its opponents had used up ninety-eight hours. The treaty foes, he said, were actuated by a desire to delay the final vote.

Senator Hitchcock proceeded to say that he wanted to show that Republican Senators who were now opposing the Walsh amendment had approved giving protection to the "buffer States," as contemplated in the amendment, in various speeches during the course of the treaty debate. He wanted to have excerpts from these speeches put into the Record, without reading them, but Senator Hall insisted that, if he desired that they go in, he must read them. This Mr. Hitchcock proceeded to do, when Senator Ashurst jumped to his feet, exclaiming:

"I call the attention of the country to the fact that it is a Democratic Senator who is now delaying a vote on the treaty."

"And, I may add, the Democratic leader," put in Senator Moses of New Hampshire.

Senator Hitchcock's face flushed, but he made no reply, continuing to read from the Record for ten minutes longer.

When Mr. Hitchcock had finished, Senator La Follette took the floor to denounce all the treaty provisions binding the United States to obligations respecting European nations. The Wisconsin Senator talked for three hours. At the conclusion of his speech he declared:

"No matter what other Senators may do, I shall never vote to bind this country to such an infamous undertaking as this League of Nations."

Wants Guarantee on Alsace.

After Mr. La Follette had completed his speech, Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, offered an amendment to the committee reservation to provide that nations in the League bind themselves to preserve the territorial integrity of France, as to Alsace-Lorraine, for a period of five years after the ratification of the treaty. This was defeated by 46 to 31.

Senator Hitchcock next offered an amendment to provide that the advice of the League as to the use of armed forces of the United States in European wars be advisory, this going part of the way covered in the substitute which he later offered for the entire committee reservations. This amendment was voted down, 44 to 32.

Senator Owen, Democrat, of Oklahoma offered after this an amendment similar to that just voted down, but differently worded and it was defeated, 44 to 33.

After that came another amendment offered by Mr. Hitchcock, fashioned along the line of a proposal put in by Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, some eight months ago, by which the United States would assert its intention of going to the aid of its co-belligerents in the late war, in the event of war in the future. This the majority forces regarded as an effort to embarrass those who had favored the Knox proposal at the time it was offered, and who now stood committed to the Lodge program.

Senator Knox remarked that he had endeavored to obtain a vote on his proposal in the Foreign Relations Committee, after it was offered in the Senate, but that Mr. Hitchcock had blocked it.

The Hitchcock amendment was voted down, 45 to 34, after which Mr. Hitchcock offered the minority substitute for the Lodge reservation, that, too, being promptly defeated.

That ended the minority's effort and the vote came upon the Lodge reservation.

Democratic Closure Plan Fails.

Before the debate started on the Walsh amendment to the committee reservation, to release all nations from obligation under Article X., Senator Hitchcock offered the closure petition, signed by twenty-three Democrats, to limit debate. The petition stipulated that the limitation should apply to the committee reservations and not to the entire treaty, assuming that the reservations embraced the "pending measure" before the Senate.

Senator Lodge at once challenged the petition as being based upon a false assumption, contending that the entire treaty was before the Senate, and that any limit of debate applied to it as a whole.

Various Senators argued for limitation of debate, Senator Underwood of Alabama declaring that the country was tired of the failure of the Senate to reach a final vote.

Senator Cummins warned that the final vote must not be delayed, since the bill to restore the railroads to private ownership ought to be considered at once.

"The railroad situation calls for immediate action," said Mr. Cummins. "Unless the treaty is expedited, I intend asking, within a very short time, that it be displaced and the railroad bill be taken up."

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota was willing to have cloture invoked, he said, believing that the country was "disgusted over the treaty delay."

At the end of half an hour of discussion Senator Norris of Nebraska raised a point of order against the Hitchcock closure petition on the ground that it should be framed to cover debate on the entire treaty. Senator Cummins, who in the meantime had taken the chair, ruled in favor of the point of order, and Senator Hitchcock appealed from the ruling.

Senator Lodge moved to lay the appeal on the table, and the motion prevailed by a vote of 44 to 36.

With the Hitchcock petition thus ruled out, Senator McCumber of North Dakota, who had voted to table it, declared that, unless the minority offered a closure petition embracing the entire treaty within a few days, he would offer a petition of his own in hope of reaching a speedy vote.

SAYS TREATY DELAY JEOPARDIZES FRANCE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—In an article contributed to La Presse de Paris Alfred Capus, editor of Le Figaro, appeals to the American Senators that, in placing their consideration of the Versailles treaty on the basis of the protection of America's interests, they remember that France did not get all she wanted out of the treaty, and he says that it was America who was largely responsible. France, he says, made sacrifices because of President Wilson's appeal to the unselfishness of the nations and he says it is about time the United States matches in example what her President asked the other nations to do.

"France has the deepest desire that as soon as our elections are over the treaty enter into effect and permit us to obtain, under conditions less burdensome than those of today, the materials indispensable to our industry.

"This is a point of view which seems to have escaped, unfortunately, our friends in America. They consider the treaty only with regard to the American policy without disturbing themselves over the enormous losses which the delay in ratification causes our country at large. The treaty does not give us satisfaction, they say. But don't they know anything about the concessions we were obliged to make? And under what pressure did we make them? Under what influences were they made? Was it never the authority of President Wilson which brought them about? Was it never their representative, their plenipotentiary? And today for motives purely American they disavow this high mandate, and in order to snuff out him who spoke in their name they seek to punish our acquiescence.

"For we are the first victims of this discord. It is we who lack coal, leather, wheat, and cotton. It is we who pay for our purchases at the rate of nine francs to the dollar.

"Is it not the turn of our friends in America to forget their prejudices and to make a sacrifice to the common cause? This sacrifice is necessary to our economic reconstruction, which is related to American interests as well as to ours."

SEIZE COMMUNIST ROSTER.

Federal Agents Arrest Alien Secretary in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 13.—Federal agents today caused the arrest of Milos Vojnovik, in whose home was found one roster of a Communist branch of the Socialist Party, showing him to be its Recording Secretary and containing the names and addresses of 107 members.

The arrest was made after express packages from Chicago containing copies of a Communist magazine in Russian and buttons bearing a picture of a red flag and a Russian inscription had been traced to him.

On the first page of the magazine was a cartoon showing Soviet Russia grasping by the wrist and holding back Uncle Sam, who has a knife in his hand.

Federal agents announced that Vojnovic is an alien and that they would ask that he be deported.

Arrest Woman Socialist Candidate.

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Marion E. Sproule of Lowell, Socialist candidate for Lieutenant Governor at the recent election, and who was indicted Oct. 31 for alleged anarchistic activities, was arrested again today on charges of promoting anarchy and distributing anarchistic literature. Max Andelman of the Roxbury district was arrested on similar charges.

The arrest of Israel Rosaman on a similar charge occurred a few hours later.

COAL STRIKE CHIEFS MEET MINE OWNERS

The Department of Labor today expressed again the belief that an amicable settlement would be reached, although it was generally admitted that the Government would find itself helpless by law to force the acceptance of a basis of settlement by either side to the controversy unless it went to the extreme of taking over the mines. There were reports heard that the miners would not be averse to the adoption of the latter course, but it can be stated that the Government is not contemplating any such move at this time.

A much more probable course, in the event of a deadlock, it was said, will be the issuance of a statement either by President Wilson or by Secretary of Labor Wilson, with the approval of the President, setting forth terms of settlement which the Government believed should be adopted. Public opinion would then be looked to to carry the day for such a proposal.

Protest was heard in more than one quarter today against the recommendation which has been made to Dr. Garfield, Fuel Administrator, by his assistant, Cyrus Guernsey, to remove all restrictions, including the maximum prices fixed by the Government, after production shall have reached from 60 to 70 per cent. of normal.

Palmer Ready to Protect Workers.

That the Government will not permit mine operators to discriminate against union miners who obey the mandate of their leaders and return to work, was indicated tonight when the following telegrams were made public by Attorney General Palmer:

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 13, 1919.
To Attorney General Palmer,
Washington, D. C.:
In compliance with the court order of Judge Anderson the miners of Alabama returned to work today. Hundreds of them were discharged and turned back from the mines by the companies. The public wants coal. The miners are not permitted to dig it. I ask you what is the Department of Justice going to do about it?
GEORGE HARGROVE,
International Representative,
U. M. W. of America.

Attorney General Palmer's reply follows:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 13, 1919.
George Hargrove,
Birmingham, Alabama:
Your telegram 13th received. Please wire me immediately names of companies and officials thereof who have discharged or turned back miners who returned to work in compliance with the court order. I shall take prompt action against any operators who adopt such methods to restrict production.
A. MITCHELL PALMER.

Operators Agree to Fair Wage.

The Executive Committee of the coal operators in the central competitive field in their statement tonight declared that the operators "are desirous of negotiating a fair wage agreement at the earliest moment, but so far have been prevented from doing so because the miners' demands have been complicated with impossible collateral questions."

"Operators of the central competitive field," the statement continues, "have no desire to be unjust or unfair to their employes. They believe that every man on their payrolls should receive a fair wage. More than that, they believe that every employe should receive a generous wage, as generous as the public interest will allow. That has been their policy, individually and collectively in the past. It will continue to be their policy in the future. They will go to tomorrow's meeting with that policy in mind.

"It has been charged that mine employes are not at the present time able to earn fair wages. The operators deny these charges and allegations specifically and emphatically.

"Irregular operation and broken working time and similar conditions are seriously aggravated by the miner himself. At every mine a constant proportion of its employes, averaging from 20 to 25 per cent., are regularly absent from work on days when the mine is in operation and when they might be working for good wages if they elected. This condition is clearly shown by the official figures of the Department of Labor. For example, the Department of Labor reports that pick miners in Alabama worked but 67.7 per cent. of the time the mines were in operation and work was offered to them; in Colorado they worked but 71.5 per cent.; in Illinois, but 83.2 per cent.; in Indiana, but 80.9 per cent.; in Kentucky and Maryland, the figures are 62.8 and 67.4 per cent., respectively; in Ohio and Pennsylvania they are 70.7 and 76.2 per cent., respectively.

"These figures show quite clearly that the men at the mines have not been taking advantage of the opportunities offered there to increase their earnings. In the light of these official statistics it is therefore plain that the demand for increased wages is really based upon a desire to be paid for idle time and not for actual work done."

President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor reiterated tonight his assertion that former Attorney General Gregory had "given assurance" to the union leaders in 1917 that the Lever Food and Fuel act, under which the coal strike has been enjoined, would not be used against labor organizations, referring to Mr. Gregory's denial of the assertion originally made by the Executive Council of the Federation. Mr. Gompers said the former Attorney General had gone into conference with the labor executives on the subject.

"At that conference with the Attorney General in 1917 Mr. Gregory stated emphatically, speaking for himself and for the Government," Mr. Gompers declared, "that the provisions of the Lever act would not be applied to workers and that he would write to the United States District Attorneys that they, too, should be governed by that assurance. Whether Mr. Gregory carried out his pledge to write his subordinates I am not in a position to say, but that he gave assurance that he would do so there is absolutely no question."

This is the third statement issued since last Sunday by the federation in which the claim is made that labor organizations were promised exemption from the provisions of the Lever act.

Attorney General Palmer has twice issued statements in which it was pointed out that the records of the Government do not indicate that any such exemption was ever promised. Senator Thomas of Colorado read a letter to this effect from Mr. Palmer today, and at his request the letter was, by unanimous consent, placed in The Record.

Department of Justice officials were inclined tonight to view the reported action of Illinois miners in driving caretakers away from mines near Duquoin as a violation of the order of Judge Anderson to the union leaders. The opinion expressed was that intimidation by the miners amounted to a conspiracy, and therefore it followed the court's mandate had been disobeyed.

EXPECTS GOVERNMENT TO SHOW GOOD FAITH

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 13.—The coal miners of the United States expect a "demonstration of good faith on the part of the Government during the negotiations at Washington," declared John L. Lewis, Acting President of the United Mine Workers of America, shortly before boarding a train this afternoon for Washington to participate tomorrow in the conference between mine operators and miners, at the invitation of Secretary of Labor Wilson.

"The miners are not defeated; they have merely acquiesced in the mandate of their Government," Mr. Lewis said. "They shall now expect a demonstration of good faith on the part of the Government. Only by a proper consideration of the mine workers' demands for increased wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions can peace and tranquility be restored in the mining industry."

The situation in the coal fields of the country, it was said at headquarters today, is without precedent in the mining industry. The strike of Nov. 1 was the first general bituminous strike in the history of the United Mine Workers' organization. There have been many local and some district strikes, but never before had all the union bituminous coal miners been called upon to cease work.

While in the past completion of new working agreements between the operators and miners have been delayed until the expiration of the contract under which the miners had been working, it was pointed out that negotiations had never been entirely broken off as in the present controversy. As long as there had been negotiations in progress and the hope of an agreement in sight, it was said, the miners had not quit the shafts. This year the mine workers contend the strike was made necessary by the refusal of the operators to negotiate.

Headquarters of the union were practically deserted this afternoon as most of the officials were on the way to Washington to participate in the negotiations.

REFUSES TO KEEP MINES IN WORKING ORDER

DUQUOIN, Ill., Nov. 13.—Complying with an order issued by local union miners, all hoisting engineers, firemen, pumpmen, mule feeders, and other union men who have been permitted to keep the mines in the twelfth district in working order, left their posts last night.

The mine superintendents, managers, top foremen, assistant bosses, and office clerks were immediately called on to fill their places.

Whether this is a violation of the injunction granted by Judge Anderson was not generally known.

The men attended a mass meeting last Monday afternoon, which adopted resolutions calling the injunction unfair and one-sided and refusing to abide by it and stipulating that every member of the union stay at home until they had an agreement to work by.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 13.—Information received here by operators this morning said union men left all the mines at Benton to care for company property under the terms of the strike order had deserted their posts today following similar action at Duquoin. The walkout is said to be a protest against obedience of international officials to the Federal court mandate to call off the strike.

WORK REFUSED, SAY MINERS.

Told Surplus Existed in Alabama District, They Assert.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 13.—Coal miners who offered to return to work today in the Alabama district were met with statements that "a surplus existed." They were also told "they would have to stand a physical examination before they would be allowed to return to work," according to J. L. Glenn, Secretary of Alabama District No. 20, United Mine Workers of America.

The complaints of miners, according to reports at headquarters here, take various forms. When the men reported at one mine they are said to have been told the mine foreman was ill and could not see them. At other mines they were told their places had been filled.

MORE STEEL MEN RETURN.

Martin's Ferry Strikers Vote Unanimously to Go Back to Work.

MARTIN'S FERRY, Ohio, Nov. 13.—Striking steel workers of the Laughlin Mills here today voted unanimously to return to work. Several hundred workers attended the meeting. They expect to resume work next week.

The mill employs approximately 1,800 men, many of whom are said to have been working in other mill centres, but will return here.

CHICAGO LABOR CHIEF DEFIES GOVERNMENT

Says Although It Has Been "Ugly in the Coal Strike and the Steel Strike We Will Lick It."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—"Although the Federal Government has been acting pretty ugly both in the coal strike and the steel strike we will lick it," declared John Walker, former President of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, and one of the leaders of the United Mine Workers, in an address at Joliet last night before 1,000 steel workers.

"We defy the Government to stop the coal strike," he continued. "If Federal Judge Anderson thinks he can dig coal with his injunction, let him do it. He may be able to make Jean L. Lewis call off the strike, but nothing can make the men of our ranks go back to work in the mines until all our demands have been granted."

Walker also declared that the steel strikers could win their strike and is said to have advised them to use violence on the strikebreakers and men who have gone back.

"When you meet a 'scab' don't treat him gently. You know how to handle him," he said.

URGES KAISER'S CROWN FOR JUDGE ANDERSON

Should Be Deported to Germany, Say Springfield Miners—Will Stand on Demands.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 13.—Officials of the Springfield sub-district, United Mine Workers of America, today declared "the mine workers will stand pat for a living wage, six-hour day, and five-day week," and expressed the opinion that "Federal Judge Anderson, who ordered the strike called off, should be deported to Germany and be presented with the dethroned Kaiser's crown."

The statement, which was a protest against a newspaper story suggesting that Illinois miners were disposed to go back to work in response to the direction of officials, was signed by Freeman Thompson, President, and John Watt, Secretary-Treasurer of the Springfield sub-district, a stronghold of the insurgent element which brought about the "wild-cat" strikes in Central Illinois last Summer.

Watt today challenged the good faith of Acting President Lewis in moving to rescind the strike call by saying that the Lewis order was sent out in the form of "mimeographed copies," and not on the letterhead of the union bearing the mine workers' official seal. He was unable to produce a copy of the order, but said he had seen one.

"Being conversant with the facts, mine workers in the Springfield sub-district and surrounding vicinity seem so determined," the Thompson-Watt telegram said, "that even the international officers have not the power to put them back to work."

MOVES TO DRIVE OUT WEST VIRGINIA REDS

ASKS PALMER TO ASSIST

Union Leader Admits Activities, but Every Man Will Be at His Job by Monday.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 13.—Agents of the Department of Justice are en route to the coal mining districts of Northern West Virginia, Governor John J. Cornwell announced tonight, following advices from Washington to that effect. It will be their purpose to "clean out radical centres" and round up I. W. W. and Russian agitators, he said.

Governor Cornwell sent a telegram to Attorney General Palmer earlier in the day, stating that reports from the civil authorities in the northern section of the State showed that "alien radicals" were active among the miners. He said that the Industrial Workers of the World had established headquarters at Grant Town, Marion County, and Wendt, Taylor County.

The Government expressed the belief that "if a half a dozen of these aliens can be arrested and immediately and promptly deported" the situation would be "smothered." He said "there were a few leaders who should have been deported long ago."

The Attorney General was asked by the Governor to take some action, and was assured in the meantime that "the State authorities will deal with any attempt at violence."

Despite the assurance of officials of the United Mine Workers that they have the situation in control, coal operators and State officials tonight expressed uneasiness over the reports from the coal fields in the northern counties of the State that radicals threatened trouble.

Since the recall of the strike order reports have been current that radicals and I. W. W. agitators have been largely responsible for the reluctance of the miners to return to work, especially in the northern districts.

While C. F. Keeney, President of District 17, United Mine Workers, tonight claimed that about 50 per cent. of the miners in the State were working, coal operators said that not more than 30 per cent. of the men had reported at the mines today. Mr. Keeney expressed the opinion that many more men would return to work tomorrow, and by Monday "every man would be back in the mines."

Wants Troops Withdrawn.

Discussing the Monongalia County situation, where radicals are particularly active, Mr. Keeney said A. G. Peters, President of that sub-district, had notified him by telephone that "men were going over the fields urging the men not to return to work."

"I am sending several district board members to Monongalia County," said Mr. Keeney, "to aid Peters in getting the men back to work. I am confident the United Mine Workers can control the situation.

"The men feel they are being regarded as outlaws as long as the troops remain on duty," Mr. Keeney added. "I am confident, however, that all the men will be working next week if the troops are withdrawn. Although the men speak highly of the conduct of the soldiers, they feel they are being forced back to work under compulsion of the military.

"In many places the men are refusing to return to work. As the men know their leaders have been compelled to withdraw the strike order, they are reluctant to obey."

W. L. Duff, a Cabin Creek coal miner, to whom had been shipped the arms and ammunition seized yesterday at Dawes, West Va., by order of Governor Cornwell, was arrested at Miami, West Va., today. Duff, who was taken on an executive warrant, is charged with "conspiring against the State," it was said at the Governor's office.

Major Gen. Wood, who came here last night and went into conference with Governor Cornwell, returned to Chicago tonight. Before leaving General Wood announced that all the troops would be out of the State as soon as transportation can be arranged. He said the troops are badly needed elsewhere, and intimated that more would be sent to Gary, Ind.

Russian Miners Refuse to Work.

MORGANTOWN, West Va., Nov. 13.—There are more than 1,000 Russian miners in Monongalia County, and it is characterized by Sheriff John L. Dougan as the "worst hotbed of radicalism in West Virginia."

Last night about 1,000 miners of the region were called together at Star City, four miles from here, by William Rogers, President of the West Virginia Federation of Labor, and urged to return to work in view of the United Mine Workers' order calling off the coal strike.

Many Russians, it was said, were in the audience, and so many cries of "No, No!" were shouted that leaders of the movement to have the men go back to work decided not to put the question to a vote, but later it was arranged to have another meeting tonight, when the vote will be taken.

Agents of the Department of Justice attended the meeting. Coal operators, who have kept in close touch with the miners before and since the strike was called, expressed the belief this afternoon that radicals have been hard at work among the men, using every possible argument to keep them from returning to work.

Sheriff Dougan said today that a regularly chartered local of the I. W. W. has its headquarters at Scott's Run, near Morgantown, and that the section has long been under surveillance as a centre of radical activity.

ASSAIL DRY LAW AND REDS.

Speakers at Hotel Men's Dinner Denounce Bolshevism and Prohibition.

Bolshevism and prohibition were denounced last night by speakers at the thirty-third annual dinner of the New York State Hotel Association, held at the Hotel Commodore. Reuben L. Haskell, recently elected County Judge on the Republican ticket in Brooklyn on a platform that called for a referendum on the Eighteenth Amendment; Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State of New York; Edward M. Tierney, and the Rev. Father H. A. Mooney of Buffalo were among those who spoke.

Mr. Tierney opened the attack on prohibition by warning the hotel men to take heed lest all their liberties be taken away with the right to sell liquor. Following him, Father Mooney dealt with the disorders in this country. He blamed much of the unrest on the fact that there was not a community of spirit between laborer and employer.

"The workingman is being taught wrong," he said, "not only by radicals, but by returned soldiers."

The speaker went on to say that the soldiers coming back from Europe were, most of them, relating to eager audiences how England, France, and Belgium had ill-treated our men.

Judge Haskell also took up the subject of prohibition when he spoke. He declared that voters of all parties should get together and force the political leaders to quit "pussy-footing it," so that another amendment could be added to the constitution granting to the people a right to vote, among other things, on the subject of prohibition.

Secretary of State Hugo spoke on behalf of the proposed $100,000,000 bond issue for good roads in this State, remarking incidentally that since he took office four years ago the number of licenses issued for motor vehicles in New York had increased from 150,000 to 560,000. He closed with an appeal to all good Americans to get together in a fight against the spread of disloyalty.

SURRENDER LIGNITE MINES UNDER PROTEST

North Dakota Expects to Control and Operate Thirty by Today.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 13.—The State of North Dakota expects to have the thirty union coal mines in the State under its control and in operation tomorrow, it was announced tonight. Troops were dispatched by Adjt. Gen. Fraser to local coal fields today to take over the mines as requested by Governor Frazier.

The Washburn Lignite Company's mines at Wilton here surrendered to the State today under protest to Captain L. R. Baird of the State Militia. Three hundred union miners were ready to resume work but transportation facilities were lacking.

In handing over the property, President W. P. MacComber reserved the right to seek restoration and reparation in the Courts. In a statement tonight he said he believed the Governor's "proclamation of martial law in and about the properties of the Washburn Lignite Coal Company at Wilton is wholly without authority of law and without precedent in any State in the Union."

END GERMAN PAPER RIVALRY

Herold and Staats-Zeitung Complete Deal to Divide Field.

Formal announcement of the purchase of the morning edition of the New Yorker Herold by the Staats-Zeitung, and of the evening edition of the Staats-Zeitung by the Herold, was made yesterday by publishers of those newspapers. The following statement was made:

"An agreement has been reached by the publishers of the Staats-Zeitung and Herold for the purchase of the morning edition of the Herold by the Staats-Zeitung and the purchase of the evening edition of the Staats-Zeitung by the Herold. This transaction has been under consideration for a number of years and is the natural result of the tendency of modern journalism toward concentrating circulation in a few large papers, instead of distributing it among many smaller ones.

"This arrangement means one morning and one evening paper printed in the German language in the City of New York. The separate identity of the two newspapers is in no way affected by this purchase. The Staats-Zeitung and Herold will each continue to publish as heretofore. The German reading public will be benefited by larger and better newspapers, the advertisers by concentrated circulation and the management by more economical publication."

CHEER ATTACK ON RADICALS

About 400 persons who attended a dinner of the Eastern Ice Manufacturers' Association, at the Hotel Astor last night, cheered loudly every attack on radicalism which was made by Carl W. Ackerman, former correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES in Russia, the principal speaker.

"Several months ago this country was confronted with an industrial revolution," said Mr. Ackerman. "It was then believed that this was due to the war, and we overlooked the tremendous and sinister influence of the radicals upon the minds of the people of this country. It is only recently that the nation has been awakened. While the radicals were attempting to burn the Senate was fiddling. Thank God the newspapers have aroused public opinion, and, as you have seen in Massachusetts, Americans are going to stand for law and order."

HID MARRIAGE FOUR YEARS.

Fifth Avenue Model and Telegrapher Courted by Telephone.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 13.—After more than four years of concealment, it has become known here that Theodore Reif of this village and Miss Margaret B. Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Kennedy of Greenwich, Conn., were married on Aug. 20, 1915, in St. James's Church, 190th Street and Jerome Avenue, New York.

Reif was employed as a telegrapher in a tower on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and Miss Kennedy was a telephone operator in Greenwich. They became acquainted through conversations over the telephone during lulls in Reif's shift in the railroad tower, when Miss Kennedy was also on duty. Mrs. Reif is now employed as a model in a dressmaking establishment in Fifth Avenue, New York. Since the marriage Reif has lived by himself, while Mrs. Reif has lived with her parents.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 13.—J. W. Harreld, Republican nominee and Anti-League of Nations candidate, was elected to Congress over Claude Weaver, Democrat, by a majority of 708 votes in last Saturday's special election, according to the complete official returns. The Election Board's figures gave Weaver 11,074 and Harreld 11,782.

EDUCATION URGED TO ALLAY UNREST

15,000 AGITATORS ARE BUSY

Chamber of Commerce Members Exhorted to Silence Their Propaganda with Americanism.

"Concentrated education," as an antidote to concentrated agitation was urged last night by speakers at the annual dinner of the New York Chamber of Commerce at the Waldorf. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Dr. Charles A. Richmond of Union College, Sherman Rogers, a labor investigator, and Alfred E. Marling, President of the Chamber, were the speakers.

Governor Smith was to have attended, but was prevented because of his mother's illness. References to his stand against "a sinister influence in this country" were cheered by the diners, who also applauded Dr. Butler when he said: "I had anticipated the pleasure of telling him to his face, in your presence, what sort of public service it is to say the sort of things he recently said."

Mr. Rogers, who admitted that he spoke "barnyard" English, but who said that he had lived among laboring men and had confidence in them, appealed for a campaign of education, the lack of which, he asserted, was the chief cause of discontent.

15,000 Agitators Busy.

"This great unrest," he said, "is not because an oppressive condition exists. It is because a great army of agitators, numbering today over 15,000, have finally convinced the great bulk of labor that they are being robbed right and left, that they are only receiving one-tenth of what they actually produce.net.

"Now, whether a condition exists, or whether it does not, as long as a man believes that it does exist it creates the same feelin, doesn't it? And that feeling is goin to live just as long as you leave that man in ignorance. It is the employer, and the real American citizen that thinks he is an American. It is up to him to educate them. And let me tell you that that education will be a thousand times cheaper than fighting with bullets or any other weapon.

"Now you are fighting an organization. You are fighting the cleverest organization in the world. You are fighting the craftiest leaders in the world today. I tell you that the Max Eastmans, and the Hadengapps, and the Vacarallies, and the Jim Duncans of Seattle, and the Frank Tuttles and others of their ilk—let me tell you, there is the craftiest brains in this whole country—and I would like to include Mr. Foster, too, in that. Let me tell you that all those people are working together. They only have one object. It does not take a man with a microscope to read the I. W. W. preamble to find what they are going to do."

Mr. Butler struck a similar note in his address.

"Our difficulty at the present time is that we have not yet wholly recognized how largely the problem that confronts us has been artificially created," he said. "Do you realize how many men there are making their living by going up and down this country telling other groups of men that they ought to be discontented, that they ought to be unhappy, that they ought to be dissatisfied, and that they ought to make trouble for their fellows and their comrades? Their are thousands upon thousands of such men, many of them speaking your language and mine with difficulty, who are going up and down this land day by day, adding to your difficulties and mine, embarrassing the Government of the nation and of the States, stopping the wheels of industry, impeding production, increasing the cost of living, because they, these comparatively few agitators, are the heralds of a revolution.

To Refute False Ideas.

"We cannot combat things like those with force. Force is the proper instrument for repression and punishment of improper and illegal acts; but force cannot reach a wrong idea. The history of the world is that ideas flourish when attacked by force, be they good or bad. The only instrument that will combat a wrong idea, a wrong state of feeling, is a right idea. We have got to reach these propagandist doctrines on the plane in which they move. We have got to reach them by instruments that are like in kind, and we have got to prepare ourselves and exert ourselves by reflection and by action to institute in this country so great, so overwhelming a propaganda for America that the voice of the agitator will be stilled in this land.

Dr. Richmond declared that the laborers were represented by leaders "who impudently claim to speak for the workers, but who do not."

Mr. Marling spoke of a rumor that he had heard recently that a group of workmen in one of the steel plants had asked that they might be permitted to work ten hours a day. "We must insist on law and order," he continued. "No terrorism or Bolshevism must be allowed in our midst. Massachusetts has expressed our convictions in no uncertain way. We believe in the inviolability of contracts, and that no man or organization ought to be permitted to play fast and loose with their plighted word."

Governor Coolidge's Message.

Mr. Marling read this letter from Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts:

"It is a pleasure to know your interest in our recent election. The laws of this Commonwealth have given its wage earners such justice they scorned those who sought to array them against the Government. The type of men represented in your organization took the interest and did the work they have heretofore too often neglected, but which they must never again neglect. On that foundation their efforts brought success for law and order. Lay that foundation, put forth thats effort everywhere, and Americanisation will prevail."

The guests included Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, A. Barton Hepburn, Sir A. Herbert Dixon, Senator William M. Calder, Currency Controller John Skelton Williams, and Melville E. Stone.

Among those who attended were Union N. Bethell, Elbert H. Gary, Dr. Jeremiah W. Jenks, Darwin P. Kingsley, Thomas W. Lamont, Judge Martin T. Manton, Collector Byron R. Newton, Benjamin B. Odell, George W. Perkins, Jacob H. Schiff, Alfred H. Smith, Eldridge G. Snow, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Nathan Straus, Frederick D. Underwood, Frank A. Vanderlip, and Paul M. Warburg.

INKMAKERS ON STRIKE.

Five Hundred Men Demand 30 Per Cent. Increase in Wages.

Hope of an early settlement of the printers' strike was shattered yesterday when 500 members of the Printers and Lithograph Ink Makers' Union went on voluntary "vacations." With the ink makers out the situation grew more complicated. The men demand a 30 per cent. increase in wages and recognition of the union. Secretary J. R. Ritchie announced that his organization had seceded from the International Pressmen's Union.

James J. Bagley reported at a meeting of Franklin Union No. 23 yesterday that settlements had been effected between the feeders and employers in five shops yesterday, among them the New York Life Insurance Company, private printing department. Bagley said the insurance company granted the 44-hour week and 44 increase demanded by the men.

A delegation of union men from Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston appeared at the meeting, and assured the feeders of their support. As a result, it was said that Franklin Union would resume paying strike benefits tomorrow.

Discussing the strike last night, A. Knowlington of Union No. 23, said that "the strikers are able to hold out because they are selling their Liberty bonds."

According to Knowlington, Franklin Union No. 23 has $28,886 worth of bonds—or did have—in its treasury, and members held $365,000 worth. He declared that Pressmen's Local No. 51 held several hundred thousands worth of the securities, while "Big Six's" membership had subscribed to more than $1,000,000 in the loan drives, and held $45,000 as part of the organization's funds.

Federal as well as State officials, for much of the trouble in that State.

In addition to The Rebel Worker, the I. W. W. publishes in New York a Jewish and a Finnish paper. In Chicago, where Haywood has his headquarters, one Spanish, one Italian, one Swedish, one Bulgarian, one Jewish, one Lithuanian, one German, and one South Slavic newspaper, all of them spreading sedition and Bolshevism in their worst forms. Two Finnish newspapers are published in Duluth, Minn., while in Paterson, N. J., there is published by the I. W. W. one English and one Polish paper. While not listed, it is said that the I. W. W. is also publishing a Chinese newspaper for circulation principally in New York, Chicago, and San Francisco.

Among the documents that recently came into the possession of the Government is an appeal to the "working class of the world," issued on behalf of the I. W. W. and signed by William D. Haywood, the head of the organization, who is now at liberty on bail pending the decision of the higher courts of his conviction during the war for anti-American activities.

"Our fight is your fight. We want you to stand shoulder to shoulder with us," says Haywood in his appeal.

ALL NEBRASKA I. W. W.'S ARE ORDERED SEIZED

Governor Directs Prosecutor on Charge of Criminal Syndicalism.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 13.—The machinery of the law in Nebraska has been put in motion against the Industrial Workers of the World of this State. Governor McKelvie, on being shown an I. W. W. bulletin urging that strong workers be sent to Oakland, Craig, Stromsburg, York, Scribner, Nebraska City, and Julian in this State, called upon all prosecuting officers of the State to begin a crusade against I. W. W. activities. In a number of places in the State, road and public construction is under way employing large numbers of men, many of them floaters. It is in these camps that the I. W. W. workers desire organizers and "strong men" to further their interest of "the one big union." The Governor's proclamation follows:

"Judging by information that has come to the attention of the State and upon the theory that conditions here are not wholly unlike those in other States, it is reasonable to assume that revolutionary radicals are operating in Nebraska.

"It is our intention that all such enemies of the Government shall be apprehended and dealt with in the most rigorous manner that the law provides. Among these revolutionary forces, the members of the I. W. W. are no doubt the most active, and every effort should be made to apprehend and take into custody the members of that organization wherever found.

"I request that you at once take action, work going on in Nebraska now, both in the conduct of public and private improvements, and you will no doubt be surprised to know how many members of the I. W. W. are scattered throughout the construction camps and among the industrial workers in this State. These men are with us for the specific purpose of carrying on the propaganda of I. W. W.ism, which is revolutionary industrial unionism and embraces forceful opposition to the law.

"I request that you at once take cognisance of this situation and take into custody any member of the I. W. W. who may be found within your jurisdiction. Such ones will be prosecuted under the State law which relates to criminal syndicalism. The Attorney General is prepared to co-operate with you to the fullest extent in making such prosecutions, and the State law enforcement division is at your disposal.

"I urge earnest and prompt attention to this matter and trust you will not delay in seeking assistance from the State whenever you feel your own forces are inadequate to handle the situation."

MORE BALTIMORE ARRESTS.

Communist Propaganda Circulated Among Dock Workers.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 13.—Calling upon the workers to take over the control and management of the shops in which they work, and thus determine their hours of labor, the working conditions, and the "rewards for the services rendered," a piece of communist propaganda was found circulating among the workers at the plant of the Baltimore Dry Docks Company today.

The demand that the workers of the city oust their employers from control of their own businesses came from the "Communist Party of America," whose address is given on the leaflet (Propaganda Leaflet No. 8, it is headed) as 1,219 Blue Island Avenue, Chicago. A copy of the leaflet was turned over to the Department of Justice operatives here by officials of the dry dock company.

"Bring together all the enlightened workers who are ready to participate in the struggle to win control of the shop," advises the leaflet, which has been circulated in large quantities among the working people. "Organize them in a Communist Party shop branch. This committee will carry on the work of agitation."

Government officials rounded up five more Russians, making eleven in all. One of these works at the dry dock plant. All are members of the Communist Party.

The silvery mouflon rests softly on the rich velour plush. The silk lining nestles close to the evening frock beneath. HIRSHFIELD ASSAILS GRAND JURY'S WAYS

Sees No Relation Between Subject Under Inquiry and Documents Demanded.

EXPLAINS TRIP WITH NIECES

Took Them at His Own Expense on Business Trip, and Resents Their Being Subpoenaed.

Several features of the activities of the Extraordinary Grand Jury in connection with the investigation of certain phases of the transit situation have twice been criticised within the week by city officials who had appeared before that body. On Sunday Mayor Hylan issued a statement in which he characterized the action of the jury in seizing his letter file from his office in the City Hall as "unmanly, un-American, and unlawful," and asserted that an effort was being made to discredit him. The second criticism came yesterday from the Mayor's Commissioner of Accounts, David Hirshfield.

Mr. Hirshfield, who had been subpoenaed on Monday, was recalled to the jury room yesterday. He was kept waiting nearly three hours at the Criminal Court Building before he was admitted to the presence of the jury. Two minutes afterward he came out, and in response to questions he said:

"No, let those people up here do all the talking. But if they do not tell you what is right, they'll hear about it." It was later learned that Commissioner Hirshfield had again refused to sign a waiver of immunity. Several hours after the Commissioner had returned to his office in the Municipal Building he issued a public statement:

"This Extraordinary Grand Jury, we were told," the statement says, "started out to investigate a charge of conspiracy between the officials of the Interborough Company and the officials of the Interborough Brotherhood to bring about a strike. Some time after we were told of a certain overshadowing crime in connection with the railway interests on the part of some one, which would go unpunished unless the District Attorney of New York County be superseded by some one else."

Mr. Hirshfield then tells of being subpoenaed before the Grand Jury, the subpoena carrying an order to bring with him a report on an investigation he had made into the character of a certain hotel, and indicates that he can find nothing in the report in any way to connect it with a traction inquiry. He adds that his chief clerk was subpoenaed at the same time and ordered "to bring with him a certain statement of the trip taken by Commissioner David Hirshfield to Ulster and Greene Counties between Aug. 27 and Sept. 4, 1919, giving the name of the chauffeur who drove the automobile, the names of the occupants, the hotels where they stopped, the amount of money expended on the trip, and the voucher therefor.

"Since I came into this office I have been advised by various persons that there were many buildings along the Ashokan watershed and reservoir occupied by various people, and that the city did not receive any income from the same. I was also told that there were apples enough throughout that reservation, if they were picked, to supply all the city institutions, and I was told that there were farm lands there from which the city was not getting an income.

"I therefore decided last Summer to make a thorough inspection of all these things and I went up there with one of my men from this office, leaving on a Friday and returning the following Monday evening, expending, all told, for myself, my assistant, and the chauffeur, at the rate of about $5 a day, including food.

"Having to go there anyway, and having room in the car, I invited two of my nieces, children of my own sister, to go along with us, and thus gave them a three or four days' outing and paid their expenses out of my own pocket.

"I was just informed by my sister, Mrs. Mary Grand, of 326 West Fifty-first Street, Manhattan, that at about 11 o'clock this forenoon there were two subpoenas left at her home for the two young ladies, requiring them to appear this forenoon, at 10:30, as witnesses." Commenting on the calling of his nieces, Mr. Hirshfield says:

"In what manner the appearance of two innocent girls before the Extraordinary Grand Jury will aid to clear the mystery of even the overshadowing crime, we must leave to Providence to solve.

"I want to add that during the twenty-two months I have been in office my total vacations did not amount, all told, to one month, and it seems that the harder one works for the interest of the public the more one exposes himself to the attacks on the part of selfish interests."

Five minor witnesses were in the jury room yesterday, but it was reported that the jurymen were chiefly engaged in examining letters and documents taken by them on subpoenas from several city offices. It was learned that the District Attorney's office had not been called upon to produce any of the files there for the inspection of the jury. It was said that letters relating to transit matter and similar correspondence with the Mayor had been presented to the jury when that body was asked to begin the inquiry.

One of the witnesses was James McGinley, chief clerk for Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield. Mr. Hirshfield's nieces did not appear. According to the statement of the Commissioner they did not receive the subpoenas until after the hour designated for their attendance. Four policemen were the other witnesses. They were William E. Reith and Albert Ehrlich, attached formerly to the staff of ex-Inspector Costigan, who was detailed while in charge of the squad assigned to suppress gambling and vice, and George L. Reith and John Griffin.

It was rumored that the policemen had been called to give information concerning alleged wire tapping. All of them were excused. It was reported yesterday that they had never been assigned to such work. It had been reported several days ago that certain of the jurors had a suspicion that attempts had been made to "listen-in" on their private telephones. Whether this was the subject of the inquiry to the policemen could not be learned. If it had to do with the police wire tapping of several years ago, that would concern, not the present city administration, but their predecessors.

Foreman Almirall of the jury had a conference with Assistant District Attorney Ritchenberg, head of the Indictment Bureau of the District Attorney's office, under whose supervision practically all of the indictments are drawn. The jury adjourned until Monday.

MRS. THOMAS CLAIMS T. P. SHONTS'S FARM

Estate Has 300 Acres of Rich Land in Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

PRIZE JERSEY CATTLE THERE

Furniture Taken from the House Two Days After Death of Mr. Shonts.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—Neshaminy Farm, claimed by Mrs. Amanda Thomas, to whom Theodore P. Shonts wield the major part of his estate, consists of 300 acres of rich Bucks County land. Mrs. Thomas, who is said to have visited the farm several times with Mr. Shonts during the last three years, was described today by Miss Josephine Lander, daughter of Adolph Lander, Superintendent of the place. Mr. Lander said the owner was never accompanied by Mrs. Shonts on any of his week-end visits.

"Mrs. Thomas was the only woman who ever came with Mr. Shonts," Miss Lander said. "She is tall and thin, and has blue eyes and red hair."

Neshaminy Creek runs through the farm. On the place is a large concrete barn which houses twenty-six prize Jersey cows and "Billy," a Jersey bull. A power plant furnishes electricity to the buildings.

The bungalow used by Mr. Shonts has a kitchen, a dining room, a bathroom, two bedrooms, and a library. The bedrooms and library are each 35 by 23 feet. All are finished and floored in hardwood. Each room, except the kitchen, has a large open fireplace. The furnishings which were removed, were of mahogany, walnut, and cherry. Two days after Mr. Shonts's death, Mr. Lander said, two negroes drove two furniture vans to the house.

"One had worked for Mr. Shonts," he said, "and when they began taking the furnishings I did not object. They took everything, not leaving even a picture."

Mr. Shonts was last seen at the farm, May 30. At that time, according to Mr. Lander, he said he expected to die soon, as he had not been feeling well. Since his death, Mrs. Rutherford Bingham, his daughter, has visited the farm with her husband. Mr. Lander said Mr. Bingham told him the farm was the property of his wife. When Mrs. Thomas first visited the farm, he asked Mr. Shonts by what name he should call her.

"I don't know what to call her myself," Mr. Shonts was said to have replied.

MATRIMONIAL NEWS RAIDED BY POLICE

KILROE GOT THE EVIDENCE

Told If He Paid a High Rate He Could Obtain a "Millionairess" for a Wife.

Assistant District Attorney Kilroe and Mrs. Mary Sullivan, who is attached to the staff of Deputy Police Commissioner Ellen O'Grady, accompanied by three detectives, yesterday raided the rooms of the New Hope Society, publisher of Matrimonial News and Cupid's Advertiser, at 127th Street and Madison Avenue. The raiders carried away copies of the papers, documents, books, and many photographs, supposed to picture some of the men and women in search of mates.

Mr. Kilroe said he had gathered his own evidence on which the raid was based by paying an initiation fee and joining "Cupid's Temple." He said he went there on Sunday and found that it was necessary to become a member before he could advertise for a wife in either of the papers. He said he was told that the fee would be $10 or $25, and if listed at the latter amount he could get a "millionairess" for a mate. The President of the society, John Albertus, he said, had not yet been found.

Mrs. Sullivan also joined the society, and was requested to pay $10 as a fee and $1 monthly for life, or until she found a husband. She said one of the women in charge of the place introduced her to a prospective husband, "a little fat Italian," sitting in an adjoining room, and that he had taken such a fancy to Mrs. Sullivan that she had great difficulty in getting away.

Mr. Kilroe is investigating the printed and written matter he seized to determine what charge to make. He said that an average of three to five persons were received daily as members, and money appeared to have been received by mail from all sections of the country.

STATE TAX BLANKS READY.

For Those Who Pay $1,000 or More in Salaries and Commissions.

Blanks for persons who pay $1,000 or more during this year for salaries, commissions, and interest, which must be filed in the State Controller's office between Jan. 1 and March 15 next, under the personal income tax law, are ready for distribution, according to a statement issued yesterday by Controller Travis. Where rent is paid to a landlord, the Controller explained, this must be reported, but not when paid to an agent.

"No blank is to be filled out for dividends, interest coupons payable to bearer, or bills paid for merchandise, telegrams, freight, storage and similar charges, nor is one needed where checks are sent to non-residents for pensions, bank deposits, or bond interest.

"As the law mainly concerns individuals, where payments are made to corporations or partnerships, the Controller does not ask for any statement. This is also true in the case of fees given for professional services, except where they are annual or fixed retainers."

If, after such hearing and finding of the board, an employer, common carrier or carriers shall fail or refuse to abide by such findings, such carrier or carriers shall be liable for the full damages to any employe, or group of employes, whether members of any labor union or organization or not, arising from such breach. Any labor union, or any employe, or group of employes may commence and prosecute an action for the recovery of the amount due, and in such case the court shall include in any judgment rendered in favor of any employe, union, organization, or group of employes, the cost of the action, including a reasonable attorney's fee, which, when recovered, shall be paid to the employe, group of employes, union, or organization, as the case may be.

Any employe, group of employes, labor union, or organization which authorizes any member to strike or break any contract of hire fixed or approved by the board, or aids, abets, counsels, commands, induces, procures, or consents to, or in any manner conspires to effect any breach of findings and conclusions of the board, shall be liable for the full damages to the railroad company or companies arising from such breach.

Denison Leads Successful Fight.

Representative Denison of Illinois led the successful fight against the committee's plan for refunding the indebtedness of the railroads. Under the bill the Government was compelled to pay the carriers the amounts guaranteed, and the roads were permitted to pay for the betterments in fifteen-year notes. The Denison amendment provided that the Government should deduct its expenses incurred in betterments from the guaranteed returns and permit the roads to pay the differences, where such existed, in a period of fifteen years. The Government debt to the railroads, amounting to $415,000,000, is set against the railroad debt to the United States of $175,000,000 by the Denison amendment, leaving a balance of $300,000,000 to be funded over a period of fifteen years.

It was estimated by the advocates of the Denison plan that there would be a decrease of $250,000,000 in the appropriations needed to restore the roads to their owners.

Railroad executives favored the committee provision, which would have given them a larger working capital, and made unnecessary extensive financing immediately after the roads were released. Opposition to this plan by Director General Hines made Mr. Denison's fight easy today, and the House adopted the amendment by a vote of 134 to 69.

The committee plan to continue the same guarantee, six months after the roads are returned, was accepted, when the House rejected Representative Sims's motion to end the guarantee with the conclusion of Federal control.

There was no objection offered to the provision creating a fund of $250,000,000, to be known as a revolving fund, to be loaned to the roads at 6 per cent. for the period of 20 months after the Federal control ceases.

Another amendment adopted would confine investigations by the Secretary of War to inland waterways and the Great Lakes. The bill authorized that official to investigate the needs of water transportation and make recommendations for improvements to terminals and harbors. Legislation to be reported by the Merchant Marine Committee provides for a more extensive inquiry along Shipping Board, and, therefore, the section was amended so as to confine the inquiry to the Secretary of War, through the Chief of Engineers, to inland waterways, which have been under the latter's supervision.

Representatives Madden, of Illinois; Benson, of Maryland; Graham, of Pennsylvania, and Dewalt of Pennsylvania, led the fight against the adoption of the Denison amendment, while Representative Esch, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, with Representatives Sims, Barkley and Winslow, supported the motion. All those in opposition declared it was unfair to the roads to turn them back without sufficient capital and compel them to resort to borrowing when interest rates are high. They argued that betterments, if made by the railroads, would have been made by issuing long-term bonds which would have given the roads plenty of working capital for the immediate present.

Graham Pleads for Provision.

"This is the most important provision in the bill," said Representative Graham, "and railroad transportation is almost as important as the Government itself. Prosperity depends upon restoring these roads upon the proper basis. So far as obtaining credit is concerned, the railroads might as well be under private ownership. Being mismanaged, under the Administration act, was passed, while increased wages of employes, but adequate relief was not afforded.

"Let us give these carriers a fair opportunity to again serve the country and transportation, to its normal condition. We will have a better system of transportation than anything the Government could possibly afford. Give them a chance, not a handicap in the way of legislation that will prevent adjustment and put the roads in better condition for use.

"If you defeat this amendment and pass the provision reported to the House," said Representative Graham, "it will give the Pennsylvania Railroad twice as much working capital as they had when the roads were taken over by the Government. If this does not break through the railroads are going to increase their fat dividends."

Representative Esch, who originally favored the Denison amendment, but who was overruled by a majority in his committee, explained how the section in the bill would tend to increase the capital of railroads.

"There is one railroad," he said, which, in June, 1917, had a surplus over and above all charges of $18,000,000. The bill as proposed by the House would give this road a working capital of $18,000,000. In other words, it would give this road more working capital than they themselves asked. The plan suggested in the House bill is unjust and unreasonable to the Government."

GOVERNOR STILL AT BEDSIDE

Remains with Mother, Who Shows Slight Improvement.

Mrs. Katherine Smith, mother of Governor Alfred E. Smith, was reported last night to be somewhat improved, although she is seriously ill from double pneumonia. The Governor and his wife are remaining at 9 Middagh Street, Brooklyn, the home of Mrs. Joseph Gunn, the Governor's sister.

Dr. John W. Reb, the family physician, was in consultation yesterday with Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, the State Health Commissioner, and Dr. Rufus Cole of the Rockefeller Medical Institute. Dr. Reb said they agreed that Mrs. Smith still had a slender chance to recover.

HOME MADE LADDERS OF OPPORTUNITY

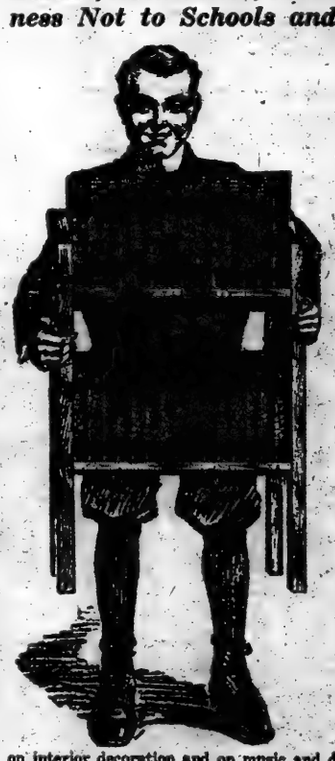
Edison, Rockefeller, Carnegie, Schwab—All Owe Their Greatness Not to Schools and Colleges, but to Books and Life.



School and College merely start a man; books and work do the rest. You may even do without the college, as did Lincoln, Edison and Rockefeller, but you cannot do without BOOKS.

Whether you are destined to be a Superman or not may matter little to you, but if you want to take the first steps away from mediocrity, you must have at hand the books that the foremost men of our times consider indispensable—the Encyclopaedia Britannica—the home library of universal education.

The parents' greatest debt to the child is the preparation for future efficiency and happiness. This is why millions are spent every year for college. The Encyclopaedia Britannica costs a small fraction of what it costs to go to college for one year, and yet its 30,000 pages have within them the materials for a college education.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica helps the children in their school work, answering their multitude of questions and supplying the "human interest" not found in text books. It explains and gives them a greater grasp of their studies, thereby making it easier for them to get higher grades. It presents the facts of history and science; art and literature; geology, geography, biography, physics and chemistry, in so fascinating a way that the children remember what is worth while. When your child has his next composition to write let him use the Britannica and see how much easier it is for him.

For the woman in the home the Britannica provides a fund of practical information on every subject. There are splendid articles in the Britannica on domestic science, on rugs, laces and embroidery, tapestry and jewelry; on China, on interior decoration and on music and dancing. Whatever the special interests of the various members of the family are, the new Britannica is a prolific source of knowledge, complete and authoritative.

GRANGE CHIEF SEES NO TIE WITH UNIONS

Will Vote to Decline Compers's Invitation to Conference, Oliver Wilson Predicts.

AT ODDS ON TOWNSEND BILL

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 13.—The National Grange will form no alliance with organized labor, in the opinion of National Master Oliver Wilson, and if his prediction is fulfilled the grange, in convention here, will vote to decline an invitation extended by Samuel Gompers for such a union.

The matter will be presented probably early next week at one of the secret sessions and be referred to a committee which will recommend action by the convention.

"I cannot, for my part, see that such an alliance would be of any benefit to the grange," said Mr. Wilson today. "On the contrary, there seems to be many reasons why we should shun any merger. However, that is a question which will have to be passed on by the grange as a whole."

Similar opinion was expressed by S. J. Lowell, member of the Executive Committee, from Fredonia, N. Y.

The letter of invitation from Mr. Gompers expressed the desire that the grange attend a conference of union labor and farm organizations set for Dec. 13 in Washington. It followed a meeting in the national capital between officials of the American Federation of Labor and representatives of the Society of Equity, whose headquarters are in Wisconsin, and which is the parent body of various agricultural and dairy organizations.

5,000,000 FARMERS UNITE.

New Union Formed at Chicago to Correlate Farm Bureaus.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Delegates to the number of 500 or more, representing farm bureaus of thirty-three states, which in turn represent nearly 5,000,000 farmers and food producers, met here today and formed a new farmers' union to be known as the American Federation of Farm Bureaus.

In a preamble to the constitution adopted the object of the association was described as "to correlate and strengthen the farm bureaus of the several States and to promote, protect and represent the business, social, economic and educational interests of the farmers of the nation."

Force laws to allow co-operative marketing, collective bargaining for the farmer; the stabilization of markets and food prices and the assisting of the Government to perfect a more reliable system of crop reporting were among the planks of a platform adopted.

BUSINESS EDITORS ORGANIZE

National Conference Meets Here and Elects Officers.

At a meeting of editors of business papers published throughout the United States, held at the Hotel Astor yesterday, it was decided to form a national conference of business paper editors, and the following officers were elected:

A. I. Findley, editor Iron Age, New York City, President; Clay Cooper, editor Mill Supplies, Chicago, Vice President; R. Dawson Hall, managing editor Coal Age, New York City, Secretary-Treasurer. The Executive Committee will consist of two New York men: Julian Chase, Class Journal Co.; E. C. Hough, American Exporter; two Chicago men, A. McQuillin, National Builder; E. T. Howson, Railway Age, and two committeemen at large, Charles J. Stark, Iron Trade Review, Cleveland, and Harvey Whipple, Concrete, Detroit.

New York, Chicago and St. Louis have had for some time active editorial conferences for business editors, but it was thought well to co-ordinate their efforts by a national association.

GERMANS COLONIZE MEXICO.

3,400,000 Acres of Land Are Already Granted for That Purpose.

Special to The New York Times.

LAREDO, Tex., Nov. 13.—More than 3,400,000 acres of land in Mexico have been granted as concessions to encourage German colonization, or have been sold to German capitalists, working on arrangements to bring 45,000 Germans a year into Mexico.

This information is gleaned from perusal of the official publication of the Mexican Department of Industry, Commerce, and Colonization, under date of March 15 last, and bearing the official seal. The bulletin recently came into the hands of American official investigators.

	Acres.		Acres.
J. Meakany...	494,360	Von Magnus...	24,710
M. Clots.....	370,680	Von Magnus...	370,650
E. Mueller...	347,1094	Grantees...	1,073,635
Von Magnus..	186,325

This list does not include negotiations still under way for a concession of 1,000,000 acres along the Rio Grande, across from Del Rio, Texas, and vicinity.

Details of the negotiations show that German official agents close to Carranza during the world war have obtained the grants.

KING ALBERT BACK HOME AFTER TOUR

With Queen Elizabeth, Reaches Brussels from His Visit to This Country.

PLEASED WITH NEW YORK

The King's secretary, discussing the visit to the United States, said the King would never forget his wonderful reception at New York, which greatly surpassed the enthusiasm displayed at Brussels when he entered a year ago at the head of his victorious army. The King had never dreamed of the possibility of such overflowing sympathy.

No words could describe his Majesty's deep gratitude for the memorable marks of Amerton's friendship for the Belgian people.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Copies of cablegrams exchanged between the President and King Albert of Belgium, after the arrival of the King at Brest yesterday, were made public today at the White House. They follow:

To the President, Washington:

Having safely reached our destination after a delightful voyage on board the George Washington, I want to extend to you a last expression of my deep gratitude for the American hospitality and of my heartfelt wishes for your health. The Queen joins me in sending to you and Mrs. Wilson our most sincere greetings. ALBERT.

To His Majesty, the King of the Belgians:

Hearty felicitations to you and the Queen and your people on your safe return. It was a genuine pleasure to receive you here and to have you feel the sincere friendship of the American people. Mrs. Wilson joins in most cordial messages to you and her Majesty. WOODROW WILSON.

"Leaving the George Washington, I wish to express once more to you my heartfelt thanks for the hospitality extended to the Queen, my son, and myself while on board this splendid ship, and to state again my deep admiration for the officers and men of the glorious United States Navy."

Facing New Conditions

THE advertising profession, like every other profession and business, is facing new conditions.

The successful advertising agent of the future must know more than he has known in the past, of manufacturing, selling, trade marks, printing, art, English, engraving, finance and accounting.

He must also know more of production, economics, public policy and public sentiment, legislative activities, the relations of capital and labor, history both old and new, geography and the Golden Rule.

For the new world of 1920-30 will make demands in advertising as in everything else that the world of 1910-20 could never have made because it knew nothing about them.

We are ready.

If you have a tender skin and an average beard—

how to shave

MEN with average beards but tender skins know that even a new blade or a freshly honed edge will not shave with comfort until the beard is properly softened.

The hair of your beard is composed of keratin, the same tough, horn-like substance that makes the fingernails hard and sharp. Tiny oil glands supply each hair with a coating of oil that completely surrounds the keratin and tends to repel water.

When a manicurist soaks your hands for several minutes in warm water, the fingernails become soft and pliable. Softening the beard is more difficult—it must be accomplished in a few seconds.

The lather from the new Woodbury's Shaving Stick dissolves the oil film instantly. The keratin quickly loses its toughness.

If you have an average beard, but a tender skin which is easily made sore by the pulling and scraping of the razor, follow the directions given below for using the new Woodbury's Shaving Stick.

For greater comfort and speed in shaving

Examine your beard closely and determine in advance the direction of the grain.

After moistening your face thoroughly, apply Woodbury's Shaving Stick and work up a heavy lather with the brush.

It is never necessary to rub the Woodbury lather with the fingers.

Never stretch the skin tight, either with the fingers or by tilting the head too much.

After shaving, rub the lather that remains on the brush thoroughly into the pores.

Rinse first with warm water and then with cold.

Follow these suggestions and learn the real enjoyment of a clean, cool, comfortable shave in much less than the usual shaving time.

Every druggist is ready to supply you with the new Woodbury Shaving Stick, in the metal container, 35c, re-fills, 25c. The Andrew Jergens Company, New York, Cincinnati and Perth, Ontario.

ANARCHIST CASES POSTPONED A DAY

Magistrate McAdoo to Pass On Charges Against Larkin and Gitlow This Afternoon.

LAWYER PLEADS FOR THEM

Police Seize 20,000 I. W. W. Membership Cards—Emma Goldman Investigation Closed.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo reserved decision yesterday on the question of holding James Larkin and ex-Assemblyman Benjamin Gitlow on charges of criminal anarchy after hearing extended argument from Assistant District Attorney Alexander I. Rorke and counsel for the defendants.

Magistrate McAdoo announced that he would give his decision in writing this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Seventeen of the others arrested in the raids of the Lusk Committee investigating Bolshevism in New York State were released on bail of $1,000 each for hearing on Nov. 28. Mr. Rorke said that, in the meantime, if evidence against any of those defendants proved to be insufficient, the District Attorney would consent to their immediate release.

Charles Recht, counsel for Gitlow, the business manager of The Revolutionary Age, argued that Gitlow and Larkin could not be punished for printing official statements of the Communist Party and the Left Wing Socialist Party, when the same and other statements had been printed widely by the press in general as matters of news. He argued that these articles themselves were not incitements to the violent overthrow of the United States Government, but peaceful writings containing abstract reasoning. He said that the Government was trying to make a crime of socialism and to punish men for holding views which failed to agree with those of the majority. He called Gitlow and Larkin pioneers in a movement for a better day. He read into the record part of a speech by Senator Hiram Johnson, in which the Administration was assailed on the ground that its Russian police was creating Bolshevism. Magistrate McAdoo interrupted to say:

"I know as much about Soviet Russia as Senator Johnson does."

Assistant District Attorney Rorke argued that the State had established that Gitlow and Larkin played a part in preparing the violent manifestos as well as printing them. He said that the articles were designed to influence their readers in favor of a violent overthrow of the Government, taking up the Communist manifesto in favor of establishing a dictatorship by the proletariat, he said:

"We are quite familiar with the working of the proletariat dictatorship, as established in other lands. This manifesto runs afoul of our statutes on criminal anarchy and it advocates the overthrow of the Government by violent force and unlawful means. It means the conquest of the Government by bullets, rather than by ballots."

Sergeant James J. Regan and members of the Anarchist Squad yesterday seized 20,000 membership cards in the Communist Party, which were being delivered by an express driver to a branch headquarters of the Communist Party at 110 East Seventh Street. Twenty thousand cards were seized by the police in the raid on Saturday night. The total membership of the Communist Party in this city, according to the estimate of the Lusk committee, is ten thousand. In the raids new members were being added at the rate of several hundred a day.

Assistant Immigration Commissioner Byron A. Uhl announced yesterday that the case against Harris Goldman, whom the Government is seeking to deport, had been closed and that the record of the proceedings would be forwarded to Washington for the findings of the Department of Labor. In a letter he notified Harry Weinberger, counsel for Emma Goldman, that he would allow him a week in which to submit a brief to be left to Washington with the minutes of the inquiry.

Weinberger issued a statement yesterday attacking the immigration authorities at Ellis Island because he had not been allowed the help of a stenographer which to record additional evidence that Emma Goldman is a citizen. He characterized the proceedings on Ellis Island as a "star chamber" proceeding.

Mr. Uhl asserted that Weinberger had tried every possible means to delay the proceedings. Mr. Uhl yesterday denied rumors that any of the men on Ellis Island had died from injuries they received in the raid of the Department of Justice and police on the Russian People's House last Friday.

"No one was seriously hurt," Mr. Uhl said, "and none of them have been in the hospital. Therkoff, who was reported as unconscious by one of the newspapers, was treated by a physician for injuries to his head, but has not been unconscious or in the hospital. Today he was playing checkers. It is true that some of them were beaten up, but no one was seriously injured."

ADDING-CALCULATING MACHINE

Figures are the Guide Posts of every business

Every merchant, auditor, broker, sales agent or manufacturer knows that figures are the guide-posts of business.

And the 10-Key Dalton Adding-Calculating Machine was designed and perfected as a simpler, faster means to the assembly of figure facts.

It brings to factory or store, to individual or organization, a broader usefulness, a greater purchase value.

It saves more time because its simplicity invites more usage by more people in office or store.

It affords a broader service because it combines an adding-listing-calculating machine in one, making it possible for one department to use it for checking invoices, making estimates, etc. involving multiplying, while another department or a dozen people use it for adding and listing only.

It is the fastest adding-listing machine made. This we can very easily demonstrate.

You have only to inquire to have put into your hands a surprising list of corporations which thru years of experience have learned the broader usefulness of the Dalton. THE TIME LIMIT IN THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT.

In the United States District Court at Providence, Judge Brown, granting a preliminary injunction against the enforcement of the War Prohibition act, has made what seems to be a vital and decisive point, the judgment upon which of the United States Supreme Court will have to be taken. Judge Brown in his opinion speaks "of the probability that the act in "question will ultimately be held unconstitutional." One can hardly view that as a mere obiter dictum, because Judge Brown grants a preliminary injunction on the ground of "the irreparable damage that would result from" the immediate enforcement of the Volstead act, and declares that, "in view of the evidence "afforded by the Presidential proclamation and other circumstances, "immediate enforcement is not imperative."

Judge Brown's opinion rests, in fact, upon a theory which seems good sense, and therefore, possibly or probably, good law. The first section of the new Article 18 reads as follows:

> After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

Upon its ratification the Eighteenth Amendment became at once a part of the Constitution. "It then fixed the time," says Judge Brown, in an opinion of great force and fairness, "at "which the powers of the States over "a subject heretofore always under "their control should cease; at which "the Government of the United "States, the Governments of the "States and municipalities, should be "deprived of sources of revenue from "which millions had been derived; at "which great industries, employing "thousands of men, should cease, and "at which the value of enormous "properties for the usages for which "they were designated should be "finally destroyed; and at which "there should be enforced a radical "change in personal habits. It is "inconceivable that this would have "been done without the provision for "the period during which the loss "might be, to some extent, provided "for and lessened."

The Drys of Congress could not be content with the grant of that one year to give the immense property values involved a chance for readjustment. They could not be happy unless private property could be taken without just compensation. They wanted not only the constitutional amendment, with its clear, if short, period for lessening its loss; they wanted to destroy a great business without giving it the opportunity for compensation afforded by the amendment. They could not wait for the twelve months given by the Constitution, so they had to pass the Wartime Prohibition act, based upon a fiction, and then pass a law for the enforcement of that act.

"The amendment," to quote once more the lucid and straightforward opinion of Judge Brown, "provided "not only for what should be done "after January, 1920, but by the "words 'after one year' gave express evidence of consideration and "determination of the necessity of affording to the States and citizens, "and to the departments of the Federal Government as well, a period "of readjustment of their affairs to "the new conditions that would result in the transfer of powers from "the States to the Federal Government." The amendment recognized for a definite period the rights of the "liquor interests," the property rights, in fact, of a very large body of men, irrespective of the personal rights or habits of a multitude of citizens. The members of Congress, bowing to the will of the Anti-Saloon League, appear to have violated the clear intention of the amendment which the league imposed upon the country. Several interesting questions emerge from Judge Brown's remarkably interesting and strong opinion; but the cardinal question, the one upon which the ultimate decision can hardly fail to be made, is found in the time limit of the Eighteenth Amendment. Judge Brown holds that that time provision "is an essential and inseparable part of that "amendment; that without it, it "would not have been submitted to "the people, and would not have been "adopted; that it is an express provision made to cover the special "emergency of a radical change in "the Constitution, and to obviate destruction of the rights of States and "of citizens."

Judge Brown has raised a legal and constitutional issue of the utmost moment. The Supreme Court of the United States will finally tell us whether the Drys have passed unconstitutional laws in their eagerness to provide a virtuous interim contrary to their own amendment.

THE CENTRALIA AWAKENING.

The first effect of the I. W. W.'s massacre in Centralia, Wash., is a general movement to rid the Pacific Coast of these dangerous radicals and their like. Not only in Centralia and Seattle, but as far south as Oakland, Cal., the indignation of the people is taking this form. It might have been expected. As a blow against "organized society," the enemy against which the I. W. W. directs these blows, it was unspeakably feeble; as a blow against the I. W. W. itself it was stunning in its completeness. It has probably done more than anything else to arouse the American people to the existence, not of a menace to their Government, for the Government is too strong for that, but of human miscreants from whom no life is safe, however humble. From Washington come reports that the outrage will galvanize into life some of the anti-radical bills which have hitherto been slumbering.

The word "martyr" is often misused and applied to men who are merely victims. A martyr is one whose death is caused by his support of his principles and convictions. The dead soldiers who were marked for slaughter by the I. W. W. because they believed in the American flag were martyrs to that belief, and the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church. From the scene of their slaughter there has sprung up and spread a national horror and detestation of their slayers which embraces the whole horrible association to which those murderers belong, and it has done more than anything else to solidify the American people against them. Those five lives were not given in vain.

The discovery that certain of the soldiers were individually marked for destruction before ever the parade began adds, somehow, a little more horror to the conspiracy. The shooting was indiscriminate in the main, but it appears that certain marksmen had settled upon their victims in advance and fired only at these. Two of these destined victims were killed, but others went through the fire unharmed. The other slain soldiers perished from the indiscriminate fire which was poured into their ranks by the main body of the I. W. W. Thus this assault combines two detestable elements—the indiscriminate slaughter of a crowd and the prearranged assassination of special victims.

"Force, unfortunate as a resort to this method may be," says Senator Poindexter, "is the only means of "dealing with Bolsheviki. It is the "only argument that appeals to "them." "This country," says Representative Johnson of Washington, "must be purged of its seditionists "and revolutionists to the last one, "and if this means war, then the "quicker war is declared on them the "better." These are utterances from men living in that part of the country where the I. W. W. is nothing shadowy or vague, but a substantial and active force. They have met the thing face to face, and understand the fiendishness of it from experience, an experience we in the East have not yet had, but which we are soon to have unless the monstrosity is strangled at once in that part of the country where it is full grown.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT AND THE JENKINS CASE.

In a supplementary memorandum upon the Jenkins kidnapping case to correct misapprehensions occasioned by a version of his original statement, Secretary Lansing fails to make any distinction between the protection to be afforded by the Mexican Government to a Consular Agent of the United States and the protection to be expected in the case of a resident American who has no official relation to the Government at Washington. In the original statement an unidentified official of the State Department—Secretary Lansing's name was not mentioned—was quoted as follows:

> The fact that Jenkins was an official of the United States Government has no bearing on the matter. Americans in Mexico can expect no more and no different protection than is afforded to Mexicans under the Mexican law.

Secretary Lansing personally authorizes the publication of the statement now given out concerning "the rule of international law on the subject of responsibility on the part of "Mexico for the safety of Americans "in that country," but he does not allude to the fact that William O. Jenkins was entitled to special protection because he was a Consular Agent representing the United States at Puebla. The State Department seems disinclined to take the responsibility of pressing the case of its representative Jenkins upon the Mexican Government by citing the general principle (in Secretary Lansing's words) that there is "no difference "between the rights of aliens and the "rights of natives to be treated fairly "and justly under local laws and by "the local authorities." But should those authorities fail to protect Americans in their lives and property, then, to quote Secretary Lansing again, "it is the privilege, as well as "the right, of this Government, under international law, by diplomatic "intervention to see to it that justice "is accorded to its citizens and their "rights given proper protection." And to this cautious exposition the Secretary adds:

> It should be borne in mind, however, that the accepted law and practice of nations is that, as a rule, it must be shown that a foreign Government is responsible for injustice done to aliens or that its constituted authorities are negligent in protecting their lives and property before liability is incurred.

Not a word about the seizure, detention, and ransoming of the Consular Agent, to whom special protection should have been accorded by the Mexican Government because he represented the United States, but rather an insistence that proof may be lacking of the negligence of the Mexican authorities. Is it Mr. Lansing's opinion that his Consular Agent at Puebla, one of the most populous cities of Mexico, was on the same footing as regards protection by the police power as an American prospector taking his chances in the wilderness of Sonora? Is it Mr. Lansing's view that the Mexican authorities have shown energy, capacity, and a proper sense of responsibility in protecting Americans? If the Mexican authorities have been often negligent and sometimes impotent, as has been asserted with what appears to be good evidence in support of the charge, surely the case of Consular Agent Jenkins should be pressed upon the Mexican Government for indemnification and reparation. Senator King's resolution calls upon the Secretary of State to make a full report of the affair to the Senate, with a view to determining the responsibility of the Mexican Government. The Senate will expect Mr. Lansing to be more explicit and discriminating than he has been in his public statements.

THE RAILWAYS' "SHADOW DOLLARS."

The Director General and thirteen railway unions have not yet agreed upon the wage question, but they both oppose the Esch bill proposal for the settlement of the accounts between the railways and the Government, although for different reasons. The Director General thinks that the proposal for funding the railways' indebtedness is too favorable to them and inclines them to rely on the Government instead of on private credit. In proportion that the Director General succeeds in making the proposal more burdensome to the railways he puts them under the necessity of relying more heavily on an increase of either rates or taxes. The companies have no other source of funds. The idea that they should rely on private capital in their present state of credit is not to be seriously entertained. Railway credit is at its lowest and has been made so by official control. Only half a dozen railway stocks sell at par, and it has not been possible to issue one share of new stock this year, while the industrials have issued more than a billion. Railway shares still paying 7 per cent. dividends are at a discount of from 10 to 20 per cent. Under such conditions railways can finance themselves only by borrowing, and on terms as much too burdensome as the Esch proposal may be too favorable. Even the shippers have come to see that fair treatment, or even just now generosity, to the railways will be returned to the country with increase in railway service and indirect advantages equally beneficial in the present disturbed conditions.

The Brotherhoods oppose the Esch bill because it validates "eight billions" of watered railway capital and compels the companies to pay dividends on "shadow dollars." The Brotherhoods say that if the proposal were made on behalf of "farmers or city workers" the proposers would be denounced as Bolsheviki. Something like that has been said respecting the methods by which railway wage payments were expanded by an amount equal to that by which the Brotherhoods say it will be necessary to increase rates in order to pay dividends. That is too strong for one of the Brotherhoods, whose spokesman thinks, nevertheless, that the increase of rates is exaggerated. That is too mild a word about the ancient notion that the railways either do or can compel rates to be sufficient to pay dividends on capital shares. As matter of fact, and of argument of opinion, more than 50 per cent. of railway shares pay no dividends. As matter of law and economic justice rates are proportioned to capital invested, not nominal capital, and are ... by service fixed by ... on rates fixed by officials who have not been overfriendly to the railways.

Fares and passengers are not carried by "shadow dollars" any more than wages are paid in that manner. It takes real money to provide facilities for the traffic the railways are transporting on a scale far above the growth of either share capital or capital invested. Since 1907 the railways have kept their accounts in the manner prescribed by the commission, and in that time there can have been no watering. If there was eight to ten billions of watering done before 1907, it follows that the railways must have built the mileage of that time, 230,000 miles, for less than $22,000 a mile. Nobody knows better than the Brotherhoods that railways cannot be built at that cost, and never were built at that cost when the cost level was far below the present. Since 1907 billions of dollars of facilities have been put at the service of the public, and the net earnings have fallen actually and in proportion to work done. Railway wages have increased and efficiency of railway labor decreased. Railway efficiency has increased and railway rewards have been reduced. The Brotherhoods insult the intelligence of those to whom they address such arguments.

However, the House yesterday made the Esch proposal less favorable to the companies. They owe the Government $775,551,000 for expenditures on capital account, made over their protest, at top war prices. This debt is to be deducted from the rental owed the companies by the Government, with the result of halving the money to be paid to the companies to balance their accounts. And the money coming to the companies is to be funded, not paid. That is to say, the companies are not presently to get the money admitted to be owing to them by the Government on this Micawberish method of making a new debt pay an old one. Instead of dividends on shadow shares we have shadow rentals. Progress along these lines would result in shadow railways, and wages reduced to a shadow or paid from tax money.

The House committee proposed that the Government should pay what it owed in real money, and the companies' debt to the Government should be funded. The reason was not kindness to the companies, but the necessity of leaving with them working capital enough to enable them to be efficient carriers. The House method reduces the appropriation necessary to balance the accounts, but does not provide the working capital. The companies must earn it, and somebody must earn the 6 per cent. interest on the funded debt. This is poor pay for public service in wartime. It is likely enough that the Senate will put other burdens on the companies, for its original proposals were more severe than that of the House. President Wilson will not need long to determine what to do. In this shape the Railway bill would falsify his promises to the railways.

THE LABOR PARTY.

Revival of the talk of a labor party was to be expected after the action of the Government in the mine workers' strike. The Government regards itself as representative of the people, and will take action against any economic belligerent whose action threatens the interest of the people as a whole. It is only natural, then, that men whose hearts are in the multifarious causes which have been promoted by strikes in the last few months should decide that the thing to do is to go to the polls and get control of the Government. It is the proper method; the coal strike and the threatened railroad strike of a few years ago were acts of violence by a class against the whole people; but if organized labor can elect an administration pledged to its program there is nothing for good citizens to do but to acquiesce.

However, the prospect of a labor administration in 1921 does not seem very bright. Labor officials of Illinois, who sent out the call for the nominating convention to be held on the 22d of this month, have great hopes. Mr. John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor, says that the Democratic Party is first to be assailed and broken because of "its anarchistic attitude toward union labor and the "working classes." This would seem to point to certain practical accomplishments to be brought about next year, the subtraction of enough votes from the Democratic ticket to insure a Republican victory in 1920. So obvious is this explanation that it is impossible to avoid suspecting that some of those who favor the establishment of this labor party are more immediately concerned in the election of a Republican President next year.

But not Mr. Fitzpatrick. He is going to break the Democratic Party first, and after that take care of the Republicans. This is to be done by a party which will command the support "not only of union men "and women, but of farmers, "clerks—every working man and woman." Professional men and executives seem to be excluded, no doubt on the theory that brain work is not work—a view which the more experienced labor politicians of Great Britain have discarded. Mr. Fitzpatrick aims at a grand political alliance of those who work as against those who merely ... or clip coupons, in which the result would hardly be in doubt.

Mr. Fitzpatrick expects delegates at his convention from the Non-Partisan League and other farmers' organizations. The farmers' organizations which have held conventions recently did not seem at all convinced of the solidarity of interest between the farmers and industrial labor. The program of the new labor party draws with admirable eclecticism from socialism and the single tax. The three pillars of its tripod strength are "restoration of all civil liberties"—doubtless meaning the unlimited right to strike, though it would surely be ungenerous to strike against a labor administration; "public ownership and democratic management" of transportation, mines, communications, "and other monopolies and natural resources"; and abolition of "excessive land ownerships and holding out land for speculative purposes."

And at the same time the Master of the National Grange was arousing enthusiasm in the convention of that body by such remarks as these:

> There is today too much tendency among our people to class endeavor, class thinking, class legislation. The interest of the nation demands the destruction of such unworthy ideas, whether they be hoisted by a labor union or by a group of farmers. * * * Instead of joining in the hue and cry of these chaotic times against all investment, all industry, and all property ownership, the imperative call of the hour is for the protection of these sacred rights, without whose preservation no republic can endure and no people can prosper.

Perhaps the labor party will take away some Democratic votes in the industrial States—which almost all went Republican anyway in 1916. But Mr. Fitzpatrick is a long way from the White House.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Bad Manners Charged to the War. Londoners of the more articulate classes—those whose remarks get into the newspapers—are lamenting that what they call a "wave of impoliteness" has swept over England. Like every other change everywhere, nowadays, the asserted deterioration of British manners is ascribed to the war, but most of the complaints, when the makers of them come down to details, seem to charge merely the disappearance of a certain obsequiousness or servility in the behavior of the lower classes toward the higher, and the people who used to be treated with an approach to reverence by those of humbler social rank than themselves are grieved or resentful when they find their superiority no longer recognized in the old way by servants and tradesmen.

They should remember how often, while the war was in progress, consolation for its hardships and sorrows was discovered by them in just this elimination of the old distinctions between the men of high and low degree who fought with equal courage in the trenches side by side and with like readiness gave their lives in the common cause. Why that should have attracted more attention in this war than in those of the past it would be hard to tell, for it was nothing new in the British Army, or in any other army, for that matter. The difference now, apparently, is that the equalizing tendency of war has been carried over into peace, and those who didn't want that to happen think that courtesy has waned to an alarming degree.

For manifestations of the new spirit in England by no means are confined to the men returning from service with the colors; they come from the women, too, and the managers of the big shops mourn their inability to make the girls behind their counters treat customers as if they were beings of another order.

Whether or not this is a sad change depends, of course, upon the point of view, but probably it was less due to the war than contemporaneous with it, or hastened by it, for there was talk about the fading of class lines in England long before Germany tried to turn the world upside down—and nearly succeeded.

Our Soldiers Also Are Criticised. There has been talk in this country as well as in England about regrettable changes in character produced by the war, but here criticism has not extended beyond the returning soldiers, and it is not of their class manners that the few fault-finders complain. The real American never admitted that he belonged to a class; the doing of that has been left to alien residents of the United States who have now worn their welcome completely out and are near the end of tolerance.

Our ex-soldiers are, if anything, more courteous than they used to be, for they have had much practice in the recognition of legitimate authority. The charge sometimes made against them, usually by relatives and fiancées, is that they have acquired a European way of looking at things, especially as regards women. This accusation has never stood serious examination, and if true in any cases, is so in too few to support a general indictment.

A good many of our soldiers are discontented to find that, returning to civilian employment, they are placed where they were two years ago, while others who remained at home have been getting ahead. That does not make for faces wreathed in sunny smiles, but the grievance is one that will wear away as more and more employers realize what many of them already have learned, that the training of war had effects valuable in peace, and that the absence of these men from business was not time wasted, even from the business standpoint.

Bringing Our Dead Home from Russia. That the bodies of the American soldiers killed in the Archangel campaign have been brought home for burial is right and proper. That desolate land has no associations for them or for us to make it a suitable resting place for such as they, nor would their graves there have had the care or the honor deserved by the graves of men who died in that obedience to competent orders which is the soldier's duty and glory.

Entirely different is the case of the Canadian soldiers who perished in France. They knew why they were there, and felt that they were undergoing hardship and peril in a cause worth dying for. In that country they can sleep as in another home. Alive, their presence won the gratitude of all who were privileged to judge it, and, dead, they have the unforgetting respect of those for whom they made the great sacrifice.

CHRISTMAS STOCKINGS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many friends of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor have expressed a desire this year "to do their Christmas shopping early" for the children of families under the association's care. In other words, they desire to do the necessary shopping for poor children's presents before they begin purchasing for their own families and friends.

Our nurses and visitors have been asked by a number of prominent New York people to be allowed to fill the "red stockings" during November and early December this year, instead of waiting until nearer the holidays when everybody is so rushed.

We consider these requests significant enough to warrant the assumption that others who customarily give toys and useful presents to New York's poor children would likewise welcome an opportunity to do this shopping before the Christmas rush begins. We are accordingly asking if it would be possible through your columns, even at this early date, to announce that the A. I. C. P. has hundreds of these empty "red stockings" waiting for some good Santa Claus to fill them.

Each stocking has a small card attached, bearing the name and age of a child living in one of our crowded tenements—and a child whose chances for a Christmas present and holiday cheer are very scant this year.

The association will send such a stocking—one, six, or a dozen or more—to anybody who will give presents to the children of the poor. A girl or a boy of any age can be selected—we have all ages. If it is easier for the donor to shop for a number of children of the same age and fill the stockings uniformly, we can pick out a half dozen little boys aged 9, or a dozen little girls of 11 years. If the prospective shopper wishes suggestions about what to put in these stockings, we have lists of appropriate things.

For instance, for boys of 6 to 9 years our list contains such suggestions as a pair of woolen gloves or mittens, sweater, cap, muffler, stockings, neckties, handkerchiefs, drum or trumpet, game, book, toy boat, candy, nuts, raisins, and fruit. For little girls of similar ages, in addition to gloves, mittens, stockings, handkerchiefs, &c., our lists contain such suggestions as dolls, doll's furniture, hair ribbons, beads, and similar things.

The children who will receive these stockings are the little boys and girls of widows, of sick or disabled fathers, or are orphans living with relatives too poor to provide fully for them. Every year such little tots are made happy through the efforts of our relief and nursing bureaus.

A postal card or telephone call to William H. Matthews, 105 East Twenty-second Street, (Gramercy 7040,) telling how many "red stockings" can be used is all that is necessary to procure these stockings. Our office will send for them when filled and see that the stockings are delivered to the homes of the children for whom they are intended in time for them to have a happy surprise on Christmas morning.

Einstein and His Theory.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On the first day of the Autumn meeting of the National Academy of Sciences (New Haven, Nov. 10) Einstein's relativity theory was discussed by two brilliant men from Massachusetts. Perhaps some of your readers may be interested in two remarks made by the speakers. The first speaker, a brilliant mathematician, came to the conclusion that Einstein's theory is mere philosophy, which he explained by the fact that Einstein is a Jew. The second speaker, whom, as he said humorously, physicists look upon as a mathematician and mathematicians consider a physicist, had a good word to say for the theory of Einstein, namely, that he, the speaker, heard in Paris that Einstein, who was and still is a member of the Kaiser Wilhelm's Academy in Berlin, expressed a laudable wish that the Germans should be beaten. Accordingly, Einstein's theory may be unscientific because Einstein is a Jew; on the other hand, the theory ought to be correct because Einstein was an anti-Hun. Undoubtedly the mental rays of some of our scientists suffered a more or less perceptible deviation from the normal, brought about by the course of Mars in the last four years.

Mr. Gompers's Stand.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

By his indorsement of the coal strike and his call to all workers and other citizens to join him in his defiance of the Government and the courts Samuel Gompers has forfeited all claim to the future confidence of the Government.

"WE ARE AMERICANS."

This is the answer we looked for from men!
Hear it and fear it, ye red-bannered scum—
Ye, who would plunge us in home strife again!
That is the tocsin—the call of the drum!
Long have we waited and suffered your shame,
Borne with grim patience the madness you taught—
Heard you blaspheming our country's fair name,
Mocking the freedom our best blood had bought.
Thought ye that men who had lived 'neath a flag
Woven from threads made of honor and truth
Ever could choose your foul symbol of red,
Stained with the life-blood of innocent youth?
Thought ye Americans born—or of choice—
Stormed by your lies, at their stronghold would fall?
Listen! and hear, as they cry with one voice,
"We are Americans!"—patriots all!
Now ye have roused us—the battle's begun!
Hear ye the tramp of our men falling in?
Note ye the signs that the waiting is done?
Feel ye the fear that we surely must win?
We whom it pleased ye to scorn and deride,
Fight with the Right that must ever prevail.
This is our battle-cry, flung far and wide,
"We are Americans!" We shall not fail!

RARE WHISTLERS ON VIEW.

The Jessop Collection of Whistler lithographs that is now on exhibition at the Anderson Galleries prior to the sale by auction Nov. 24 is of a quality so high and an importance so considerable that its dispersal bids fair to be one of the auction room sensations of the season. Certainly it will test the authority of Whistler's vogue among collectors, as the catalogue numbers 133 impressions and includes some of the rarest items in the whole list of Whistler lithographs and many signed proofs. Among these rarities are a number of which only half a dozen proofs each were pulled, including a portrait of Walter Sickert, a lovely study of a draped figure standing, a particularly beautiful drawing of a group of people around a teatable in Whistler's own garden at Cheyne Walk; the incomparable little figure called "The Horoscope," and a number of others, competition for which will make a collector's holiday.

The most interesting print, from the collector's point of view, is perhaps "The Draped Figure, Reclining," one of the experiments in color printing which yielded such delightful results under the control of Whistler's exacting taste. The subject is a girl half lying, half sitting, on a couch covered with reddish drapery. She wears a purple cap on her yellow hair, and there are blue and green in the draperies and in the fan she holds. The color is lightly indicated throughout with an extraordinary freshness and delicacy of effect. Mr. Pennell, who has prepared the very interesting notes to the catalogue, says of it: "The most beautiful color print of modern times. There is nothing finer in Japanese art, and in technique it is a translation of the methods of the Japanese wood cutter and color printer into lithography. It is the most beautiful color print that has ever been made in lithography. The catalogue quotes "an English authority" as saying that only one other copy exists, but this authority cannot have known those in the Mansfield and Benedict collections or the wonderful example of this subject in the Avery Collection at the Public Library. There must be at least four or five impressions in America.

"The Yellow House at Lannion" is another of the rare color prints. There are five printings, yellow, green, brown, gray, and black, but the effect is much more reserved than in "The Draped Figure, Reclining." There are other impressions in which the color is richer, but the present example is charming enough. For pure beauty, irrespective of rarity, the lovely lithotint "The Thames" is the fair flower of the whole collection. The impression is one of twelve and is fine in quality. Mr. Pennell says of it that it is "the most complete and elaborate design he [Whistler] ever made, but it was only perfected after endless work."

The history of the collection is an interesting one. The lithographs were assembled by W. H. Jessop, a London oculist, with the help of Thomas Way. When the collection came up for sale at Christie's in 1917 the Burlington Magazine said: "Perhaps only Mr. Way or Mr. Pennell could rival Mr. Jessop's intimate knowledge about the water marks which distinguish prints struck by the artist himself, or under his supervision, from those which were taken surreptitiously without his consent or approval and sometimes offered in the market." The collection never was sold at Christie's. It was withdrawn at Mr. Pennell's suggestion and sent to this country, where he hoped it might be acquired by some museum. In the introduction to the catalogue he characterizes it as "not only the last important one but the most important one which has ever come up at public auction."

Japanese Paintings by Moore.

In 1881 W. Humphrey Moore painted about sixty pictures of various subjects drawn from Japanese life, intending to give them as a record of scenes now fast disappearing to some museum where they would be kept intact. In 1914 he left Paris for America under the stress of war conditions, and is now about to sell this collection of Japanese pictures, which are first to be exhibited at the Union League Club today and tomorrow. Only three have been withdrawn from the original series, one having gone to William Agnew and two to William H. Stewart. At the press view Mr. Watrous called attention to the influence the paintings had exercised over artists, Robert Blum having gone to Japan on the strength of their appeal.

The pictures nearly all are small in size, and have the jewel-like quality of color which is the particular glory of the small painting, but although they are minute and precise in drawing and have this brilliancy of color, they are neither meticulous nor overworked, but have the freedom and freshness of spontaneous workmanship. The characteristics of the Japanese types are rendered with a quaint, sympathetic humor that adds to the agreeable general effect. The artist follows Fortuny in sparkling vivacity of style, but has his own artistic message to deliver.

GUARD MANHATTAN RIGHTS.

Committee Appointed to Watch Interests of Elevated Lines Lease.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Manhattan Railway Company on Wednesday a committee was appointed to watch the interests of the company involved in the lease of its elevated lines to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. Under the terms of the lease the Interborough is obliged to pay the Manhattan Company an annual dividend of 7 per cent. on a capitalization of $60,000,000. The next quarterly dividend will be due on Jan. 1, and recent statements made by Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough Company, indicate that it will not be paid unless the money can be raised from other sources than earnings.

The Chairman of the committee is William A. Day, and the other members are Alfred Skitt, President of the Manhattan Company, Alvin W. Krech, J. H. McClement, Starr J. Murphy, and Frederick Strauss.

Rumors to the effect that the Manhattan Company would demand the return of its property if the agreed payment was not made were not considered of much value, because the subway and the elevated lines have been so closely fused that it would be difficult to separate them.

It was said that the Manhattan Company, if it decided to demand the return of the elevated lines in case of a default, would have the right under its charter to charge a ten-cent fare, and the Interborough Company would have the right to charge an additional fare of 5 cents to carry passengers over any of its extensions.

GIVES $750,000 TO STATE.

Englishman Returns Bonds, Urging Others to Do Likewise.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer has received for cancellation £150,000 of the 4 per cent. funding loan as a thank offering from a man signing himself "F. S. T." The latter some time ago wrote to The London Times announcing his intention of making a thank offering of one-fifth of his estate to the State. "In the firm conviction that never again shall we have the chance of giving to our country that form of help which is so vital in the present times," he added: "How can the nation be made to understand the gravity of the financial situation, and that love of country is better than love of money? This can only be done by example, and the wealthy classes have today an opportunity of service which can never recur."

NATION HONORS MEN KILLED IN RUSSIA

WADSWORTH PRAISES DEAD

Coffins Draped in American Flag and Covered by Wreaths of Flowers.

The bodies of 103 American soldiers who fell in Russia were carried from the steamship Lake Draga that brought them from Archangel, yesterday morning. Their coffins were placed side by side on Pier 4, Hoboken, and each was covered by the flag for which the soldier gave up his life, with wreaths of roses, chrysanthemums, and other blooms. After the funeral service was held the coffins were taken through the rain to a mortuary chapel, there to be claimed by relatives.

The services began at 9:45 o'clock, with a selection by the 13th Regiment Band. The invocation was spoken by Chaplain John T. Axton, and Chaplain Walter K. Lloyd read the twenty-third Psalm. In the name of the nation, Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., heading a delegation from Congress, paid eloquent tribute to the dead.

"Today," he said, pointing to the line of flag-draped boxes, "we meet the first company of the dead. The mother country receives into her compassionate arms all that is mortal of her gallant sons who died worthily upholding her honor by their unswerving devotion to duty.

"In thousands of American homes grief is cutting at the heartstrings of those who have lost their loved ones. But let us not mourn too hopelessly those who have obtained the immortal usefulness of early death. They have joined the ranks of the deathless list, those who have died to uphold the living torch of liberty, the flag of our republic."

Referring to the I. W. W. outrage in firing on an Armistice Day parade in Centralia, Wash., and the killing of ex-service men, Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, who represented the American Legion, declared the war was not yet over.

"The struggle must be continued," he said, "until those things for which we fought have been obtained. America sent her soldiers to fight for liberty, to fight for freedom of all men, and these have not yet been obtained. The struggle can never be terminated until these things have been won."

Speaking for the State of Michigan, from which most of the soldiers whose bodies were brought back were drawn, Major Ralph Duff said not only Michigan, but all of America, was proud of those who died for "a country that was worth dying for." Joseph A. Martin spoke for the City of Detroit. The city and State were happy, he said, that these sons of Michigan were found worthy to give their lives for the Republic. After benediction by Chaplain J. Campbell, "taps" was sounded.

The coffins were taken from the pier in ambulances. Behind them marched the officers of the port, headed by Major Gen. David C. Shanks, and the Congressional committee, consisting of Senators George E. Chamberlain of Oregon, J. C. W. Beckham of Kentucky, Medill McCormick of Illinois, Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, Truman H. Newberry of Michigan, and the following members of the House of Representatives: Thomas F. Smith of New York, Charles A. Nichols of Michigan, William E. Mason of Illinois, Frank E. Doremus of Michigan, Charles R. Crisp of Georgia, W. J. Hulings of Pennsylvania, and Henry C. Osborne of California.

Following came a Russian delegation, headed by Captain V. Zishinski, Assistant Military Attaché of the Russian Embassy; Michael Oustineff, Russian Consul General, and the Rev. Peter Popoff of St. Nicholas Russian Cathedral, Manhattan. Then came over a score of relatives from Michigan and a delegation of the Hoboken Chapter of the Red Cross.

40,000 ASK RETURN OF DEAD

War Department Favors It—Discussed in House Committee.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The War Department has received 40,000 requests from relatives for return of the bodies of soldiers dead in France, Colonel E. W. Anderson, Assistant City Attorney of Richmond, Va., told the House Foreign Affairs Committee today.

Representative Flood, Virginia, ranking Democratic committee member, said that this had caused a "turn-about in the policy of the War Department," and that the bodies would be returned as soon as arrangements could be made with the French Government.

A delegation from Pittsburgh, headed by J. D. Foster, also asked for return of the bodies, but no action was taken by the committee, which was considering a resolution by Representative Bland, Republican, of Indiana, for the appointment of a commission to decide the question.

TEACHERS ELECT OFFICERS.

Electoral Convention of the Council Held at High School.

The electoral convention of the Teachers' Council was held yesterday afternoon at the De Witt Clinton High School. President William J. McAuliffe said that Teachers' Councils were being organized throughout the country. A leading problem, he said, was to bring about true Americanization and to frustrate the I. W. W.

Roy Spencer Richardson was re-elected a delegate by the men teachers in the high schools. The group of elementary school Principals re-elected Frank J. Arnold of Public School 116, Brooklyn, and Matthew D. Quinn of Public School 5, Queens. They elected Miss Elizabeth Ball of Public School 18, the Bronx, to succeed Mrs. Elizabeth A. Haas. The group of assistants to Principals re-elected Anna A. De Vinne, Edward D. Stryker of Public School 39 and William Elbert of Public School 7 were re-elected by the teachers of the seventh and eighth years. Miss Harriet E. Porrett was defeated for re-election by Miss Maud Olmstead of Public School 6, Brooklyn, by a vote of 9 to 7.

The group of teachers of the first to sixth years re-elected Mary A. Aymar of Public School 47, Manhattan; Maude R. Osborne of Public School 177, Manhattan; Helen A. McKeon of Public School 142, Brooklyn; Laura E. Holler of Public School 27, the Bronx, and Emma Cheeseman of Public School 71, Queens. Helen Tracey of Public School 118, Brooklyn, was elected to succeed Laura D. Scott, who refused, on account of illness, to be a candidate. Mrs. Julia Dunne of Public School 58, Queens, was elected by the kindergarten teachers to succeed Miss B. Higgons, who resigned. William J. McAuliffe was re-elected by the groups of other public school activities.

NEW WAR RISK RULES.

Health Statements Required Three Months After Discharge for Reinstatement.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Under modification of conditions governing reinstatement of elapsed policies announced today by the War Risk Insurance Bureau, no statement as to physical condition will be required within three months after discharge from the service, but after three months a statement declaring the policyholder to be in as good health as at the time of discharge will be required, together with a written request for reinstatement and two months' premiums.

Policies may be reinstated within eighteen months after discharge upon payment of two months' premiums and all lapsed policies may be reinstated until Dec. 31 next, regardless of the length of time since a premium has been paid.

THEATRE MEN URGE WAR ON SPECULATOR

WOULD REVOKE LICENSES

Managers Indorse Amending City Ordinance to Protect the Public.

Theatrical managers, in conference with District Attorney Swann and others yesterday on ways and means to protect the public from overcharges by ticket speculators, promised to bar every profiteering agency from the ticket-purchasing list. William A. Brady, announcing the desire of the theatrical men to co-operate in protecting theatregoers, said:

"I state authoritatively for the producing managers that the managers will take off of their list any speculator convicted or even arrested for violating the ordinance. We will forever keep him off the list. The stronger the ordinance is made the better we will like it."

Mr. Brady took exception to a previous statement by Assistant District Attorney Kilroe intimating that managers had profited through ticket speculation. Mr. Kilroe had based his statement on the fact that tickets he bought at a box office differed in prices for holidays and special performances. To this Mr. Brady said:

"If a manager advertises that he charges $20 for a ticket and the buyer is willing to pay that price that is his business. We are against ticket speculators because we feel that with the coming of prohibition the theatres will entertain more people, and that the theatres should be protected.

"I am sorry the United States District Attorney's office is not represented, because by enforcing the Revenue Tax act the Government could drive the illegal speculator out. On Saturday nights the tickets are sold by speculators for $10 and $15. We know it and will help prove it."

Among those at the conference were Alf Hayman, Lawrence Weber, Arthur Hammerstein, Malcolm Douglas, Sam Harris and William A. Brady, representing the Producing Managers' Association; William McBride, ticket broker; Chief Police Inspector John Daly, Commissioner of Licenses John Gilchrist, District Attorney Swann, Chief Assistant District Attorney Talley, District Attorney Kilroe, and Alderman William Collins, Chairman of the General Welfare Committee of the Board of Aldermen.

The reference of Mr. Brady to a stronger ordinance followed a suggestion by Commissioner Gilchrist that the ticket selling ordinance be amended to authorize his office, the Mayor, or any City Magistrate, to exercise discretion in suspending or revoking a license issued to an offending speculator. The Commissioner said the terms of the ordinance made it necessary, even after an offender is convicted, to apply to the Supreme Court to have the license revoked. Once revoked or suspended, he urged, no license should be reissued without the approval of the revoking power.

The theatrical managers approved such an amendment, and it was decided to ask the Board of Aldermen to enact it as soon as possible.

Another proposed amendment, offered by Mr. Talley, which would require a license for each branch office of a ticket agency, also was indorsed.

Mr. McBride and Mr. Brady suggested that Federal revenue agents should check the ticket stubs to see that the Government gets its share of the increased selling prices. This share amounts to 50 per cent. of the amount above the face value plus the 50-cent margin allowed as profit to ticket agents. Mr. Brady said a $25 box recently was sold for $100 by a speculator, and that the Government was defrauded of $37 in taxes.

"Ticket speculators are an absolute necessity and every large city has them, but in most places the speculators are better regulated than in New York," said Mr. Brady. "There is clear violation of the law by speculators any night, and I could show you twenty of them in twenty minutes. We realize things are not always going to be as prosperous as they now are, and such methods if not discontinued will kill the theatre."

"Tickets for a successful play," said Mr. Talley, "have been sold en bloc to speculators, only on condition that they buy another block for a failure."

"That exists to a very limited extent," replied Mr. Brady. "The managers will take care of that. The members of the association are five to one against it."

VOLUNTEERS PAINT CHURCH.

Mrs. Harvey O'Higgins and Others Women Work on Methodist Chapel.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 13.—The members of the Martinsville Country Club went into the village a few days ago to inspect a lot on which they plan to build a clubhouse. One of the things that attracted their attention was the Methodist chapel. It was their unanimous opinion that the meeting house needed painting.

The paint was bought and shortly thereafter nine women and eight men, led by Mrs. Harvey O'Higgins, wife of the author, appeared in overalls, and the work of painting the church was begun. After the building was painted the club members scrubbed the interior and washed the windows.

PRINCE SIXTUS MARRIES.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Prince Sixtus of Bourbon-Parma and Mlle. Hedwige de la Rochefoucauld, daughter of the Duke of Doudeauville and granddaughter of Prince Constantine Radziwill, were married yesterday at the Church of St. François Xavier.

Prince Sixtus is a brother of the former Empress Zita of Austria. He served in the Belgian Army during the war and was decorated by King Albert with the Grand Cordon of the Order of Leopold.

The American Ambassador, Hugh C. Wallace, Marshal Joffre, Prince and Princess George of Greece, General Berdoulat, Military Governor of Paris, and the heads of all the diplomatic missions in Paris were present at the ceremony.

Prince Felix of Bourbon-Parma, a brother of Prince Sixtus, was recently married to the Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxemburg.

The Prince was always a favorite brother of the Empress Zita and his brother-in-law, the Emperor Charles, held him in high esteem. A letter to Prince Sixtus from the Austrian Emperor officially published in the Spring of 1918 by the French Government created a stir in political circles, making peace suggestions for an unofficial submission to France and England.

Prince Sixtus was born in 1886, being six years older than his sister, the ex-Empress Zita. Both he and his brother, Prince Felix, served in the Belgian Army and both were decorated with the War Cross by President Poincaré.

TO WED LIEUT. GWATHMEY.

Miss Edith Sneyd-Kynnersley Engaged to British Officer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ralph Sneyd-Kynnersley of Loxley Park, Staffordshire, England, and San Francisco, Cal., are announcing simultaneously in London, San Francisco and New York, the engagemet of their only daughhter, Miss Edith Ralphine Sneyd-Kynnersley, to William Riddle Gwathmey, late Lieutenant in his Britannic Majesty's Royal Field Artillery, and the only son of Dr. James Tayloe Gwathmey and Mrs. Gwathmey of Norfolk, Va., and New York. Miss Sneyd-Kynnersley has spent most of her life in San Francisco, occasionally visiting Loxley Park, which has been in the Sneyd-Kynnersley family since the Ninth Century, the family tracing their ancestry back to the Knight who married a daughter of Alfred the Great. Miss Sneyd-Kynnersley, during the war, did Red Cross work in San Francisco. It was during one of the family visits to England that she met her fiancé.

Mr. Gwathmey was a student at Columbia in this city and in Vanderbilt University in the South, and when the war began was in his second year at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in this city. He resigned and sailed for England, where he became a naturalized British subject, and after a year or so in training in England spent two years and two months in France and Belgium, serving first as a subaltern and then as an acting captain, and was severely wounded in action. He volunteered for service in Russia, where he went last April, serving there five months under General Maynard.

His father spent two years abroad in the medical corps. Miss Mary Tayloe Gwathmey, who was at Evergreen engaged in reconstruction work with the blinded soldiers and sailors, is his sister.

LORD BRASSEY DIES OF INJURIES AT 83

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 12.—Earl Brassey, who was knocked down by a cab a few days ago, died here today from his injuries.

Earl Brassey (Thomas Allnutt Brassey) was created Earl in 1911. He retired from the West Kent Yeomanry, in which he was Lieutenant Colonel, in May, 1914.

Earl Brassey held posts in Government departments for a number of years, having been editor of the Naval Annual since 1890, Assistant Private Secretary to Earl Spencer when First Lord of the Admiralty, and Assistant Secretary to the Royal Commission on Opium in 1894. He was born March 7, 1836.

His yacht Sunbeam has been famous for many years, largely through the classic book of travel, "The Cruise of the Sunbeam," written by his first wife. In June preceding the outbreak of the world war Lord Brassey was arrested as a spy while he was out for an early morning constitutional in his dingy in Kiel Harbor. The incident was never treated seriously after his speedy release.

During the war he served on a hospital ship in spite of his age. His town house was at 24 Park Lane and his country estate, Chapelwood Manor, Nutley, Sussex. His clubs included Brooks's and the Athenaeum.

EDUCATIONAL LEGACY FAILS.

A report filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday by George J. Gillespie, as referee, awarding $100,000 to former Attorney General Thomas F. Conway for his services to the estate of Loyal L. Smith, who died in 1906, reveals, that because the residuary estate is less than $1,000,000 the young men of Mr. Smith's home county, Clinton, will not benefit from a contemplated endowment to enable them to receive an education.

Mr. Smith was a resident of New York City, but had his summer home at Plattsburg. He gave $250,000 to his brother Floyd, and directed that if the residuary estate were less than $1,000,000 the brother should receive that also. If the residue exceeded $1,000,000 the entire sum was to be used to establish the Loyal L. Smith Educational Endowment, to be controlled by the Presidents of Yale, Princeton and Cornell Universities and of Union and Williams Colleges, and the income used to provide an education for the young men of Clinton County.

The estate received a total of $3,339,059 for its property, largely in real estate, but the transfer tax to the State was $646,391 and the decedent's debts were $850,000. About forty relatives received $10,000 each and Cordelia M. Bassett, an aunt, of Plattsburg, received $250,000 and $50,000 respectively. A total of $1,200,000 was paid out in general legacies, and there is a balance of $205,961 out of which the fee for legal services is to be paid. The referee found that the attorney had saved and earned for the estate an amount in excess of his bill. The task of administration was difficult because the decedent kept no books.

A Tribute to a Mother

BY DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER.

What a blessing to have the unity and companionship of a mother.

She, better than anyone else, understands. She never falters. Her confidence in you breaks down almost unsurmountable obstacles. Her sweet smile dispels darkest clouds. Her love is your guide and your protection against ill-wishers and drawbackers.

She knows you will succeed, and you do succeed, for you could not disappoint her.

To know Frank E. Campbell, the man, you must know Melvina T. Campbell, the mother.

Though she is now 80 years young, she is still her son's friend and companion.

When roads were rough, and highlights few, she smiled and urged him on.

When success seemed far away and optimistic friends as scarce as flowers on icy fields, she smiled and urged him on.

When clouds began to drift and sunshine came, she smiled and urged him on to bigger, greater things.

And now that his is the well earned reward for work well done, she kisses him and smiles and urges him on.

Great work can be done with the love of a good woman, with the admiration of fellow men.

And since the love you get is the love you give, I can easily understand the devotion of the dear old mother to her favorite son.

TWO CHANGES MADE IN PRINCETON TEAM

JUNGLETOWN IS CONFIDENT

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 13.—An eleventh hour shift in the forward line as the Tigers took the field here this afternoon for the final workout before departing for New Haven tomorrow morning revealed the fact that Head Coach Bill Roper is not going to start the same eleven against the Elis that commenced against Harvard last Saturday.

There will be two changes in the make-up of the team when it trots out on the gridiron in the Yale bowl on Saturday afternoon. Stanley Keck is in first-class condition again and in this afternoon's drill resumed his old station at left tackle. This meant that a new place had to be found for Bigler, who had gone from left end to left tackle when Keck was forced from the lineup by injuries.

Davis has been displaying such a fine brand of football at left end that there was no thought of dropping him, so Parisette was taken from his berth at right tackle in favor of Bigler. This move surprised most of the knowing ones, because it has been thought that Parisette's great playing in the Harvard contest had earned him a regular job.

The lineup, as definitely decided upon for the Yale game Saturday, was announced tonight as follows:

Right Guard—McGraw.
Right Tackle—Bigler.
Right End—Williams.
Quarter Back—Strubing.
Right Half Back—Wittmer.
Full Back—Garrity.

Weather Hampers Work.

A continuation of the miserable weather which has prevailed all week made a hard workout impracticable this afternoon. This means that the team is in the same plight it was in when it faced West Virginia two weeks ago, namely, that it must go through a grueling test without having had the usual preparation during the week. With the exception of yesterday's rather unsatisfactory workout, the first string men have not been called on to do any hard playing since the game with the Crimson. Roper ordered the gates flung open for this afternoon's drill and the entire undergraduate body, organized into a column of squads by dancing, cheer leaders, and, led by the University Band, paraded from the campus down to University Field to see the men in action.

The 'Varsity went through a long signal drill to the tune of rattling cheers furnished by the students and popular Princeton airs supplied by the band. Whereas at this period last week the undergraduates rather expected a defeat, in reality they were disappointed at a draw, and all hands are now set on a victory for the Tiger over the Bulldog Saturday.

The team looked good this afternoon. The men went through the plays with a snap and vim which had been lacking in the earlier workouts of the week. Baker was at left guard and will start in this position Saturday. His aggressive play this week has warded off the assaults made on his position by Dickinson and Morgan, although these men will be called on to fill the bill the minute the tow-headed guard falters.

Correct Glaring Fault.

Again the forwards had a long period of tearing down the field under punts. The weakness of the team in this department was revealed in the Harvard game, but because of the time devoted to correcting the fault this week Roper looks for greatly improved play against the Elis.

The whole college turned out for the mass meeting tonight in Alexander Hall. Roper and Keene Fitzpatrick were the speakers of the evening, and after the addresses the finishing touches were put on the cheers and songs which will reverberate across the bowl on Saturday to encourage the Tiger against the Bulldog.

The players will leave Princeton at 8:25 tomorrow morning and plans have been laid for a tremendous sendoff. Arriving in New Haven at noon the men will have a light workout in the bowl in the afternoon and will then depart for Derby, where football will be forgotten until noon Saturday.

COLUMBIA SPIRITS RAISED.

Shaw and Forsyth Resume Work and May Play Tomorrow.

The befogged football situation at Columbia cleared considerably yesterday afternoon when Charlie Shaw and Ralph Forsyth, the longest holdouts on the casualty list, made an appearance on South Field. Shaw resumed his old position in the backfield but refrained from taking a part in the scrimmage between the 'Varsity and the scrubs. Forsyth, whose leg was hurt painfully in last Saturday's tussle, limited his activities to a vigorous limbering up. If his leg continues to heal with the same rapidity as in the last few days he will be in the first eleven when it faces Wesleyan tomorrow on South Field.

Forsyth's return will round out the battered line, which was nearly in full strength yesterday. Kennedy, Weinstein, Scovil, Tower, Hinch, and Modarelli were the forwards who played in the scrimmage, the last named filling in at Forsyth's position at left guard. Eccles was again at quarter back, with Moszczinski, Johnstone, and Applebaum completing the back field.

Following the example set by Coach Jim Rice's crew men in reporting in a body at South Field and giving the 'Varsity the hottest scrimmage work it has yet encountered, the grads of the Morningside institution did their bit last night by giving the team a dinner at the Columbia University Club, 4 West Forty-third Street, as a last sendoff before tomorrow's game. Prominent alumni, including members of the University Committee on Athletics and men once prominent in many sports, were present.

The dinner was part of a "beat Wesleyan" campaign that has been carried on during the last week on the campus by meetings and through the students' newspaper. Another student rally will be held at noon today, at which the cheer leaders and other prominent undergraduates will speak.

ST. PAUL'S DROPS FOOTBALL

As a result of severe injuries to one of the members of this year's team, St. Paul's School at Garden City, L. I., has decided to drop football from its list of sports. Walter R. Marsh, principal, reached a decision to that effect yesterday. Three games remained on the St. Paul's schedule for this season, with the Flushing, Horace Mann and Montclair High teams, and they will be canceled.

In a game between St. Paul's School and the Columbia University freshmen two weeks ago, Arthur Huber, right end of the schoolboy eleven, was badly hurt and is still in the hospital at Mineola as a result. It was this accident that brought about the decision to drop the game at St. Paul's.

COLGATE WORKS LIGHTLY.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Colgate began polishing-off work and the final preparation for Syracuse this afternoon by taking the field half an hour earlier and continuing until darkness. At that time a white ball was brought into play.

Practice was as thorough as it had been any day this season, but it was light. It consisted of every department of fundamental football that the coaches knew or could think of, and, with half a dozen old 'Varsity stars aiding, there was no man on the squad who lacked attention. While one group was falling on the ball another was tackling the dummy. Other groups went through blocking, catching, kicking, covering punts, breaking through, rushing, forward passing, and other forms until a certain standard of proficiency was reached. This was followed by a long signal drill for the three teams, including the 'Varsity. Particular attention, however, was paid to the work of the first-string men, and the entire staff at one time or another gave detailed observation and instruction to them.

Nothing in the way of a scrimmage was attempted except that a short session of dummy scrimmage was gone through in which no tackling was allowed, the men only executing their part in the play. Toward the latter part of the practice, just as the sun was disappearing behind the hills, Captain West was drawn aside for kicking practice. He got in a few placement kicks that showed swift and accurate footwork.

SYRACUSE GRIND ENDED.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 13.—All the hard work for the Syracuse University football eleven before the annual gridiron scrap with Colgate here on Saturday is at an end. The workout this afternoon concluded the hard grind and tomorrow afternoon only a light signal drill will be held by the men to polish off the rough edges before the biggest game on the Syracuse schedule.

It was not a grilling drill that Coach Buck O'Neill and his assistants, Chick Meehan, Bill Horr and Dr. Kallett gave to the orange-clad pigskin-chasers. After running through signals for about three-quarters of an hour, trying out every formation that is expected to be used against Larry Bankart's protégés Saturday, the men were sent through a dummy scrimmage, walking through the plays with the coaches pointing out the flaws. They were ordered to take things easy, as O'Neill was careful that no one should be injured on the eve of the contest.

That O'Neill and his assistants were pleased with the showing was evident, as they frequently complimented different players. There were few spectators in the Bowl to see the men in their work, as guards with rifles and fixed bayonets paraded around the fence and would not allow any one even to get a glimpse of what was going on inside the cement walls. Never has there been more secrecy concerning Syracuse practice than during the past week.

AMHERST CRIPPLES RETURN

Only One Regular Will Be Missing from Lineup Against Williams.

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 13.—This week is being marked by stiff workouts for the Amherst football team in preparation for the big game with Williams on Saturday. Coach Gettell has been somewhat hampered by the weather, but has given the team blackboard talks followed by snappy signal drills, training the men in several new trick plays which will be used at Williamstown. A special lighting device has been installed at the field and with a phosphorescent ball the team is enabled to stage long practices daily. Coach Gettell is being aided this week by Billy Washburn, one of the best ends Amherst ever turned out, the star of the 1917 eleven and captain-elect of the 1918 team until he went into service. He will be a great aid in giving pointers to Amherst's star ends, Davison and Brisk, upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility for stopping the sensational runs of Benny Boynton, Williams's star quarter back.

Amherst's list of cripples is rapidly decreasing, and, with the exception of Clark, who sprained his ankle last week, it is probable that none of the regulars will be out of the game Saturday on account of injuries. Babe Davison of Brooklyn, who hurt his shoulder in the Wesleyan game, is in the practice every day now. Charley Vail, who has been playing a wonderful game at tackle all season, but who was hurt in practice last week and was kept out of Saturday's game, is now off the sick list and will start at his old place at right tackle, and the coach will doubtless shift Cummings to the left side of the line.

MOUNTAINEERS ON WAY.

Lineup Settled for Game Against Rutgers Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 13.—West Virginia's football team left here tonight for Philadelphia, which city will be reached at noon tomorrow, en route to New Brunswick, where Rutgers is to be met on Saturday. It is the Mountaineers' second Eastern invasion, and it is hoped that it will be as successful as that against Princeton two weeks ago.

The last practice was held here this afternoon and was largely taken up with explanation of new plays and perfection of old ones. The lineup that McIntyre expects to start against Rutgers is: Martin in Hager's place at end; McCue at guard in Ice's place; Bailey, at centre; Kay at right guard; Harrick and Archer at tackles; Mills at left end; Hite at quarter back; King and Lentz at half backs, and Captain Rodgers at full back. Later, Hill, Neale, Setron and Ice ran signals for a short time.

WESLEYAN IN GOOD SHAPE.

Coaches Announce Eleven's Probable Lineup Against Columbia.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 13.—Wesleyan is fast rounding into shape for her annual game with Columbia in New York on Saturday. Yesterday there was a scrimmage in which the 'Varsity scored at will on the second string and the strong freshman elevens. Today the work consisted chiefly in signal drills, under the direction of Coaches Fauver and Liston. Ten Boote, with seven drop kicks already to his credit, is doing well in daily practice and hopes to increase his total against the Blue and White on Saturday.

Harman, Captain of the Red and Black, will also bear watching, because of his ability as an open field runner. The probable Wesleyan lineup follows: Newhall and Butler, ends; Anderson and Brown, tackles; Seeley and Raymer, guards; Harman and Peck, half backs; Webb, quarter back; Boote, full back.

AGGIES READY FOR VERMONT

FARMINGDALE, L. I., Nov. 13.—The New York Aggies have undergone strenuous scrimmage this week in preparation for the game with Vermont at Ebbets Field Saturday. Already this season the Aggies have shown their worth by holding Rutgers to 14 to 0 and defeating the Connecticut Aggies 33 to 7. The team is composed almost entirely of players living in or in the vicinity of New York City.

Two former Erasmus Hall men, L. Clark and Wilkinson, and J. Clark, formerly of Manual Training High, will participate in Saturday's game.

Arrangements have been made to play Villanova at Ebbets Field Thanksgiving Day.

YALE SUBS CHOSEN FOR SATURDAY GAME

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 13.—The Yale football eleven went inside the baseball cage this afternoon, because of the rain. The coaches kept the players on the run for two hours with every variety of play, outside of actual scrimmaging. Forward passing was emphasized, and every variation of the toss was attempted before the squad was dismissed. Breaking through practice, general signal rehearsal, and even such place punting as was possible under the roof of the cage were tried. Jim Braden was not present, but otherwise the lineup decided upon yesterday was adhered to, and Head Coach Al Sharpe said tonight that the eleven was expected to face Princeton as indicated in the general marching orders given out from the Yale headquarters yesterday.

Donald Welles was at full back today, and Paul Crane filled Welles's position on the second team. The coaches carefully mapped out the distribution of the substitutes at tonight's meeting. They do not think that Parker Allen will be able to remain in the game longer than one-half on Saturday, and Barclay Robinson has been ordered to replace him. Ed Welles will be the second substitute end and Ed Shevlin the third. Ray Munger will be first substitute tackle, Fred Graham second, and Kenneth Hamill third. Allen Hubbard, Jr., has been selected first substitute guard, and Trippe and Zenner, second and third. Galvin will be first reserve centre, although Captain Callahan insists that he expects to play the whole game.

In the order named, Chester Laroche and Jim Neville will be the substitute quarter backs, Malcom Aldrich the substitute for Joe Neville, Howard Campbell, the reserve for Bob Lay, and Donald Welles for Braden.

The coaches are still distressed at the continued rain, which has made the playing surface at the bowl a mass of slush. Although the rain ceased late tonight, the coaches insist that it is impossible for the bowl gridiron to become dry by Saturday.

In spite of the storm, no tickets were available today at the office of the Yale Football Association. Learning that speculators are violating Federal laws, the Government has sent a squad of agents here to investigate the illegal sale of pasteboards. The speculators are dealing in tickets without paying a war tax, or without signing their names to the pasteboards. Wholesale arrests are expected.

The fact that the Yale-Princeton game of Saturday will be Yale's first major college match since the war, has led to a return to Yale of more alumni than ever came to New Haven for a gridiron contest before. All of the college clubs, the hotels and boarding houses were tonight packed to their capacity. Tomorrow night there will be a reunion of Yale athletes in the "Y" Club, and the Football Association and track team management have arranged respectively for morning attractions on Saturday.

A. C. Lyon, who had been appointed linesman of Saturday's game, has gone abroad, and notified the universities that he could not serve. Bob Maxwell of Philadelphia has been appointed referee, Dr. Carl Williams, University of Pennsylvania, umpire, and Tom Thorp of New York City field judge.

PENN MORALE IS STRONG.

Football Team Will Probably Play Open Game Against Pittsburgh.

PINE VALLEY, N. J., Nov. 13.—The practice of the University of Pennsylvania football squad here this afternoon was late in starting because a number of the men had been detained for classes in Philadelphia. Several former Red and Blue stars motored down to spend the evening with the team, which already reflects a decided uplift in morale. With the exception of Lud Wray at centre, and Dieter at guard, the men are in good physical shape. Dieter will probably not start against Pitt.

From the manner in which Folwell has been building up his attack here, it is almost certain that the backfield will be Captain Bell, Derr, Brunner and Light, the last mentioned, although not in dependable physical condition, playing because of his defensive ability.

The work here at the Country Club has been very light with no scrimmage. Primarily, the squad was brought here in order to get the men away from the criticism of the student body, which all through the year has taken objection to the system of the coaches in placing the men. It is conceivable that Penn will use an open attack against the mighty Pittsburghers on Franklin Field Saturday. All of the formations seen in rehearsal would lead one to make such a prediction.

ARMY LOSES STAR GUARD.

Bryan Out of Game for Season—Shifts Made in Backfield.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 13.—The persistent drizzle, with a sloppy gridiron to work on, impeded the Army's workout somewhat today, but the cadets floundered about in the rain and mud until darkness set in, with a much battered lineup. The 'Varsity scrimmaged against the scrubs for a full half-hour. The big team was still minus the services of Black, Bryan, McQuarrie and Schabacker, all of whom are on the hospital list.

The loss of Bryan at guard, which now seems certain, is a heavy blow to the 'Varsity. It was stated today definitely that he would be out of the lineup for the season. This narrows the competition for one of the guard positions to Breidster, Herrick, and Storck. The latter may start against Villanova on Saturday, as he has been coming fast this week.

Schabacker's place in the backfield went to Terry today, while Gregory was in again at McQuarrie's berth. With McQuarrie out, Lystad did the punting for the 'Varsity. Dodd was used also at full back, but Lystad's kicking ability will undoubtedly retain for him a better hold on one of the ball-carrying back places. Dodd is a rugged, agile back, who hits a line hard, and can dodge and get away in a broken field. He is sure to be a first substitute behind the Army's line.

Swartz's work at centre on the scrubs encouraged the coaches to believe that he is a worthy relief man for Greene, the 'Varsity pivot. It was officially announced today that the Army's last home game, scheduled for Nov. 22 with Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, had been canceled. This means that during the two weeks' interval between now and Nov. 29, the date set for the Navy contest in New York, the soldiers will play but one game, that with Villanova this week-end.

FRESHMEN TEAMS READY.

Yale and Harvard Cubs to Meet in New Haven Tomorrow.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 13.—The Yale Freshman football eleven, which meets Harvard 1923 here tomorrow, has been brought to its annual class game with Harvard with the loss of two preliminary contests, the matches with Exeter and with Princeton 1923. The Harvard game will be played here Saturday morning as a curtain-raiser to the Yale-Princeton 'Varsity contest, and the Yale eleven has made such development this week that it feels confident of victory. Both teams are fit. This year for the first time the team has had the benefit of a formal athletic director, a position created during the Summer. Herman P. Olcott was appointed to it and took charge of the squad when college opened.

HARVARD HINDERED BY RAIN AND MUD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 13.—If Bob Fisher, Harvard's head coach, ever catches the weather man out alone there is going to be trouble. Again today the Harvard advance was stopped by rain and bad footing, and the squad repeated yesterday's program of having a long signal drill, followed by some defensive work for the 'Varsity and the subs against the two scrub teams.

The 'Varsity is getting a good line on the Yale attack, while the substitutes, who in all probability will be called to start the Tufts game Saturday, are being shown something about how to wade into the Tufts freak shift. Coach Fisher hoped to have a little harder workout this afternoon, but the field would not permit anything except careful play.

The first team ran through its plays as it was arranged yesterday. Keith Kane was at left end and Hubbard remained at right tackle, with Havemeyer at centre and Arnold Horween in the running back field with Eddie Casey, Humphrey, and Murray. Kane's showing at end in two days has been satisfactory and there is some chance that he will play one of the wings in Steele's place, even if Desmond comes back in shape to play through all the Yale game.

Steele was at right end today, however, and is getting some thorough drilling. He developed well before playing the Tigers, and his coming in fast while Trimble swung around him for a touchdown is really all the Cambridge coaches have against him.

Havemeyer was at centre and Arnold Horween worked smoothly with Humphrey and Casey in the back field. Cambridge coaches want to win the Tufts game badly in order to retrieve their 1916 defeat, but it is doubtful whether the regular team will be started against the Medford outfit. Fisher may take one or two players to New Haven, but plans to have most of his regulars dressed to play at a moment's notice in the Tufts game, and possibly will put in all the first-string men on hand for one or two periods.

GREEN ENDS YEAR IN SNOW.

Dartmouth Holds Final Practice and Burns Tackling Dummy.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 13.—In a driving rain that turned to snow before the team was through its final workout of the year, the Dartmouth football squad put on the finishing touches this afternoon for the contest against Brown in Boston on Saturday.

This afternoon the coaches shifted Sonnenberg to Youngstrom's place at right guard, and he also did the punting for the 'Varsity, showing up the best of any of the men who have been tried since Robertson has been out of the game. There is a possibility that Sonnenberg will start in this new position with Healey at his place at left tackle, but if Gus remains at tackle Frank Dorney will be Spears's choice for Youngstrom's place.

Sheppard played centre in place of Cunningham for a time today, and Saturday may find him in the lineup, as he has been playing a sterling game at the pivot position, and as this is his last collegiate year he may be the man to take the field against Brown at centre.

The first string back field for the most of the afternoon was Captain Cannell at quarter back, Jordan at full back, with Grundman and Thompson at the half back positions. Eckberg will undoubtedly get into the game for a time in his old place at right half back, but his injuries will not permit his playing the entire contest. Jordan is back in good form and will start the game.

STEVENS GAINS STRENGTH.

Stevens held secret practice for the first part of yesterday's workout, but allowed the student-body to witness the lengthy scrimmage later against team B. The signal drill consisted mainly in rehearsing those plays which were stored up for the Columbia game and held in check when the Engineers gained a decided lead. These formations will be used tomorrow against New York University, when Stevens will use all its strength to beat the local team and, consequently, claim the Metropolitan championship.

Coach Durborow expects New York University to put up a strong attack, and he continued to have his men on the defense throughout yesterday's scrimmage with the scrubs. Three backfield quartets were hurled against the 'Varsity, who stood up well against their persistent attacks.

RUTGERS HAS AERIAL WORK.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 13.—With Paul Robeson, last year's All-American star, impersonating Buck Rodgers of the West Virginia team in throwing forward passes, the entire attention of the Rutgers eleven this afternoon was directed to working up a defense against this play for Saturday. Budge Garrett, the best defensive man on the eleven, has been assigned to special duty in watching Rodgers.

Alexander, the big tackle, was on the side lines today, as Sanford is taking no chances on his injured rib, but he will be ready for the game on Saturday. Storck, end, and Sliker, tackle, were back from the injured list today, but it is not likely that they will be started against the Southerners, as Sanford will rely on the same lineup that beat Boston.

The 'Varsity was given the ball for a short time to try out its new offensive tactics, and French and Gardner showed great form, tearing off gain after gain.

U. S. S. TEAMS TO PLAY.

Elevens from the Pennsylvania and Nevada Meet in Brooklyn Tomorrow

Football teams representing the U. S. S. Pennsylvania and the U. S. S. Nevada will meet tomorrow afternoon at the Brooklyn Athletic Field, E. Sixteenth Street and Avenue K, to settle the championship of the Atlantic Fleet. Each team has won the championship of its own naval district, and also has defeated the championship team of an adjacent district.

The Pennsylvania eleven to date has played six games, and has finished each as victor. This eleven to date has played teams other than the naval aggregations and has given a fine account of itself. The Nevada eleven also has stood out strongly in all games to date. One of the stars of this aggregation is Martin, a former Annapolis player, who was mentioned for All-American honors in his days at the Naval Academy. Play will begin at 2 o'clock, and admission will be free.

CUE TITLE PLAY IS FAST.

Cannefax and Jackson Win in Three-Cushion Tourney.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 13.—Only 100 innings were necessary to complete tonight's games of the three-cushion billiard championship tournament of America.

R. L. Cannefax of New York defeated Tiff Denton of Kansas City, 50 to 31, in 51 innings. Clarence Jackson of Detroit, won from Byron Gillette of Buffalo, 50 to 31, in 49 innings.

Jackson scored the high run of the day with eight in the first inning.

Charles Otis of Brooklyn won from Jess Lean of Cincinnati, 50 to 24, in sixty-eight innings, in the first game of today's play in the three-cushion billiard championship tournament.

Charles McCourt of Cleveland defeated Hugh Heal of Toledo, 50 to 37, in fifty-three innings, in the second game on the card.

CUE MEN IN FINE STROKE.

Robert and Charles Steinbugler Win in N. A. A. B. P. Tourney.

Two games were played last night in the 18.2 balkline tournament for the metropolitan Class C championship which is being conducted by the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. In the first game, Robert Steinbugler defeated Gus Gardner, 150 to 89, and in the second Charles Steinbugler won from Frank Boyd by a score of 150 to 107.

Robert Steinbugler was in excellent stroke, scoring a high run of 31 and two other runs of 27 each, averaging 5 5-29. Gardner's high run was 12 and his average 3 2-29. Charles Steinbugler accounted for 28 in his best inning and averaged an even 5, while Boyd's best effort was 16, with an average of 3 20-29.

GREENLEAF WINS TWO MORE.

Beats Clark, 100 to 49 and 100 to 56, on Daly's Tables.

Ralph Greenleaf continued to hold a generous margin of points over George Clark as a result of their play yesterday afternoon and evening in their 1,200-point pocket billiard match at Maurice Daly's Academy. Greenleaf led, 100 to 49, in the afternoon and 100 to 56 in the evening. In the matinée performance Greenleaf scored a high run of 28, while Clark's most profitable session netted him 24 billiards.

A splendid gathering of 52 points by Greenleaf was the feature of the evening session. Greenleaf was at his best in this match, and Clark, too, exercised a clever cue. Clark's high run was 28. The day's play left the total score: Greenleaf, 800; Clark, 604.

DR. TUGGLE WINS WITH CUE.

The most interesting billiards of the week at Fuller's Billiard Academy was played last night in the fifth match of the American Amateur Billiard Association's Class C tournament for the metropolitan 18.2 balkline championship. This was the match that brought together Dr. W. Tuggle and N. Mayo, and resulted in a well and hard earned victory for the former by a score of 200 to 179. The two players were never more than fifteen points apart during the entire progress of the match and both played excellent billiards.

Dr. Tuggle made high runs of 20 and 19, and averaged 4 in his total of 200, while Mayo scored high runs of 23 and 20 and averaged 3 21-49. These were the highest averages of the toturnament.

CLINTON MAY PLAY IN WEST.

Local High School Eleven Gets Challenge from Chicago Team.

An East vs. West schoolboy football game will be one of the final features of the 1919 season, provided a challenge received yesterday by the De Witt Clinton High School team of New York from the Englewood High School, representing the Chicago district, is accepted. Englewood asks for a game to be played at Englewood, near Chicago, the first week in December.

The decision with regard to the challenge rests with Dr. Francis H. J. Paul, Principal of De Witt Clinton School. Dr. Paul is away for a day or two and the matter will be in abeyance until his return. If the teams meet it will be the first time in ten years that elevens representing New York and Chicago have met on the gridiron.

Clinton held the championship last year of the schools of Manhattan and the Bronx and is looked upon as the sure winner of the title again this Fall. The team has already beaten the elevens from Stuyvesant, Dickinson and Concordia Prep, among others, by decisive scores, and has lost only two games—to White Plains and the New York University freshmen. Clinton defeated the Columbia freshmen, 33 to 6. The Englewood eleven occupies a similarly high position among the schoolboy elevens of the Chicago district.

SEVEN ASK REINSTATEMENT.

Four Cases from Local District to be Decided by A. A. U.

Applications for reinstatement of seven athletes will come up for consideration at the annual Amateur Athletic Union Convention which will be held in Boston Sunday and Monday. Four of the athletes who seek restoration of their amateur status are members of the Metropolitan A. A. U. The others are registered with the New England A. A. U., Southern A. A. U., and Allegheny Mountain.

In the case of one of the local athletes unfavorable action has already been taken which probably will mean a denial of his request. He is William E. Smith of the Bronx Church House, a boxer, who competed in the professional ring in 1917. Smith was called before the Metropolitan A. A. U. Registration Committee last week and, following a discussion of his case, the committee decided to recommend that the application be rejected by the National Committee.

William Jordan, a private in the army stationed at Fort Slocum, was also called before the meeting last week, but was unable to appear. The committee therefore did not take any action in his case, leaving it entirely up to the National Committee.

The other athletes of the Metropolitan A. A. U. who seek reinstatement are Grant M. Colket of the Albany High School and Victor N. Onorato of the Grace Club, a student at Columbia University. The applications of both these athletes have been recommended for approval by the National Committee.

Other athletes seeking registration are Walter Nordstrom of Boston, a pole vaulter; Patrick Burke of New Orleans, a boxer, and James Fitzgerald, well-known distance runner in this section a few years ago and residing in Akron, Ohio.

Brown Beats Matthews, 300 to 196.

Morris D. Brown, playing for 300, defeated Charles T. Matthews, playing for 200, in the Brooklyn 18.2 balkline billiard handicap tournament at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy last night. The score was 300 to 196, and the result was in doubt to the end. Both players were in good stroke, and some exceedingly pretty billiards resulted. Brown's high run was 45 and his average 7 13-16, while Matthews made a high run of 24 and averaged 4 36-49.

Frantzen Skillful with Cue.

In the three-cushion billiard tournament at Doyle's Academy Henry Frantzen and Chris Maxwell displayed a high degree of skill last night, Frantzen winning, 25 to 20, in fifty-two innings. Each of the contestants made a high run of 4. In the pocket billiard tournament at Doyle's George Barton defeated Edward Kirby, 50 to 37. Both scored high runs of 14. In a handicap match at English billiards C. Paser defeated C. Knox, 200 to 161.

JOHNSON'S ILLNESS BLOCKS CONFERENCE

August Herrmann's peace mission to this city and his efforts to bring about a settlement of the rumpus in the American League by a special meeting of the National Commission have been temporarily blocked by the illness of President Ban Johnson.

Herrmann received a long telegram from Johnson yesterday, the American League head saying that his doctor had ordered him not to leave the house for a week. Johnson stated that he realized the importance of holding a meeting of the Commission at this time and regretted his inability to attend. President Heydler of the National League is also laid up with a bad cold, and is unable to go to his office.

Chairman Herrmann was pretty well discouraged last night when he stated that the chances for a meeting of the Commission within the next week were pretty slim. He said, however, that it was likely the Commission would get together as soon as President Johnson recovered. The meeting will probably be held, however, in Cincinnati or Chicago.

The Yankees have claimed Pitcher Bob McGraw of the Boston Red Sox by the waiver route. McGraw was formerly with the New York club, but went to Boston last season. Now that the minor leagues have decided to renew relations with the majors, the Yankees will probably get several new players before they go South next Spring.

Colonel T. L. Huston, half owner of the Yankees, returned yesterday from a hunting trip at Dover Hall, Georgia. The owners of the New York club are now waiting until the thirty days expire in which President Ban Johnson may make an appeal in the Carl Mays injunction case, before taking any further action in the famous affair which has upset the tranquillity of the game.

MINORS END MEETING.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 13.—With the choice of Kansas City, Mo., as the 1920 convention city, and the transaction of considerable minor business, the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues closed today much earlier than a majority of the delegates had expected. There was keen competition for the honor of entertaining the next convention, but the central location of the Missouri city was a factor in its choice.

E. W. Dickerson of Grand Rapids was elected Class B member of the National Board of Arbitration. A. R. Tearney, President of the Western League, was advanced to Class A membership on the board. A ruling was put through regarding liens on baseball territory with the result that liens may be exercised for only three causes: Unpaid players' salaries, debts due by one club to another, and non-payment of dues to the National Association.

A distinct feeling of relief was manifested by the minor league leaders today at having put several of the larger problems behind them. This is particularly true as regards the vexed question of renewing relations with the major leagues. The situation has been highly unsatisfactory during the last year, and in naming a committee to take up this matter the minors have put themselves in a receptive position for a change. This question of resuming a national agreement includes a readjustment of the draft problem which, as it has worked out in the last year, the minors feel has been distinctly to their disadvantage.

ROW IN INTERNATIONAL.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—President J. J. McCaffery of the Toronto Baseball Club returned from the Minor League Association meeting at Springfield, Mass., today. He said that despite the action of the association in declaring players Riley and O'Rourke the property of the International League to revert with the Binghamton (N. Y.) franchise to Akron (Ohio,) he would not give up the players. McCaffery said he intended fighting the award to a finish at the annual meeting of the International League, and that he would oppose the re-election of David L. Fultz to the presidency.

Long Island A. L. to Meet Monday.

To elect officers and map out its athletic campaign for the season, the Long Island Athletic League will hold its annual meeting at the clubhouse of the Brooklyn A. A. Monday afternoon. The league proposes to include basket ball on its list of sports this season for the first time.

COLUMBIA LETTER MEN IN NEW CLUB

Winners of "C" in Major Sports Eligible to Membership—Officers Elected.

The new club for present and former Columbia athletes who have won their "C" was formally inaugurated yesterday at a meeting of several score of students who have earned their major sport letters. This was the first gathering of the athletes since early in 1917, when Harry A. Fisher, then graduate manager of athletics, brought about a temporary organization which was abandoned when war broke out.

Robert R. O'Loughlin, the 'Varsity crew captain of 1917, who was re-elected this Fall after his return from France, where he served as an infantry captain in the 2d Division, was elected the first President. Herbert A. Koenig, baseball pitcher, was chosen Secretary. Lester A. Danielson, graduate manager, spoke to the athletes about the 'Varsity club systems in vogue at other universities and outlined the benefits which would accrue to the college. Graduates, as well as the students who have won their letter, will be expected to show general interest in athletics, but a desirable function will be to keep enthusiasm in the sports in which they themselves were proficient at a high pitch and to interest high school and preparatory school athletes.

Danielson is to confer with the university authorities, through Frank D. Fackenthal, the Secretary, with a view to obtaining part of the Gould boathouse, the former crew quarters at 115th Street and North River, as a home for the athletes. The quarters will be remodeled somewhat, it is expected, and decorations added to make it a desirable assembly place for meetings.

Head Coach Fred Dawson of the football team also spoke and urged the athletes in college to wear their 'Varsity hats and their 'Varsity sweaters. With the Columbia "C" in evidence more and more on the campus, the effect will be beneficial to athletics, and it will elevate the wearers where they will be regarded as men who have performed meritorious service for the university.

O'Loughlin named as the Executive Committee the following students: John Kennedy, football captain; Al Schnaars, baseball captain; Charles E. Shaw, track captain and football half back, and Tom Farrell, basketball captain. The Constitution Committee will be F. C. Bellinger, former football manager; Rex Reeder, former football player, and M. J. Bloomer, Jr., fencing captain and intercollegiate winner. Membership will be restricted to wearers of the "C," but each minor sport will be represented by its captain whether or not he won his "C" in the intercollegiate competition.

KOLBER WINS GLENCOE RUN.

Only fifty yards separated the first and second men to finish in the four-and-a-half-mile handicap road run of the Glencoe A. C. over on Long Island yesterday afternoon. E. Kolber was the winner, but he was forced to fight every foot of the going during the last two and a half miles to keep in front of P. Hecht, who landed second honors. M. Tea, who started from scratch, won the time prize, finishing in third place and establishing a mark of 25 minutes 30 seconds. Second best time was made by S. Silverstein.

The first twelve men to finish were as follows:

SOUTH SEEKS TITLE TILTS.

Will Enter Bid for National Wrestling and Basket Ball Tourneys.

The Southern A. A. U. will make a strong bid for the national wrestling and basket ball championship tournaments for next year at the coming annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union in Boston. This was learned yesterday when Charles W. Street, Jr., Vice President of the Southern A. A. U., arrived in this city on his way to the annual meeting.

Mr. Street, who is Chairman of the Athletic Committee of the Birmingham, Ala., A. C., said his club was prepared to conduct the wrestling title bouts, and the Atlanta A. C., of Atlanta, Ga., was eager to promote the basket ball tournament. This tournament last year was conducted under the auspices of the Southern Pacific A. A. U.

The wrestling championships last year were conducted by the Birmingham A. C., and introduced amateur wrestling in the Alabama city for the first time.

NICKALLS MAY COACH YALE.

English Oarsman's Re-engagement Is Under Consideration.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 13.—Guy Nickalls, who coached Yale crews from 1914 to 1917, will probably become the successor of Professor Abbott, who resigned recently as rowing mentor. Announcement has been authorized by the Yale athletic heads that Nickalls is being definitely considered. Nickalls, who is now in England, has signified his willingness to resume his position in a cablegram to Frederick Allen, Chairman of the committee, and arrangements are pending.

Nickalls, who has a world-wide reputation as oarsman and coach, was remarkably successful with his Yale eights, and the students here favor his resumption of rowing affairs. He was head coach in the Spring of 1917, but, soon after war was declared, returned to England, his native land, to enter the service. He has remained on the other side since.

PRINCETON AND YALE CLUB TEAMS WIN SQUASH MATCHES

PRINCETON CLUB IS VICTOR AT SQUASH

Defeats Harvard in Class B Match by 4 to 3—Yale Is Also a Winner.

BLANKS CRESCENT A. C.

The first of the season's interclub squash tennis matches took place yesterday afternoon on the courts of the Yale Club, the Class B representatives of the Blue making a clean sweep against seven opponents from the Crescent Athletic Club, while the Princeton Club team of corresponding rank defeated Harvard by the close score of 4 to 3. The matches were held simultaneously as both Yale and Princeton were scheduled to play at home, and are at present sharing the clubhouse and squash courts at Forty-fourth Street and Vanderbilt Avenue.

For a Class B combination the Yale side yesterday looked surprisingly strong, several of its members being distinctly of Class A calibre, although not yet ranked among the top-notchers. The comparatively inexperienced Crescent players offered little resistance to this overwhelming array of talent, only one match going to three games, and the majority of the losers failing to reach double figures in their scores.

William Adams, Jr., ran into real opposition, however, when he tackled A. B. Baxter, Jr., of the Half Moon team. This encounter was the last of the day to be finished and for a time it looked as though it might spoil the cleanness of Yale's scoresheet.

A See-Saw Contest.

Adams won the opener after some good rallies, at 15—9, and was well on the way to a victory in straight games. But his rival braced in time and succeeded in tieing up the points and then squaring the match in the extr ahands at 18—15. Baxter kept up his good work in the rubber and seemed at one time a likely winner. But the greater court experience of Adams asserted itself and he pulled ahead in the closing hands for a 15—10 decision.

M. M. Sterling managed to count ten aces in each of his games against C. J. MacGuire, and J. W. Ivens gave Clyde Martin, the hockey star, an interesting argument, carrying the second game to 15—12 before accepting defeat. E. J. Clapp, S. Wainwright and J. A. Victor were all easy winners, while C. T. Cooney, the football giant, took his match from H. W. Dangler by default.

The Princeton run up an early lead against Harvard when her three leading players all turned in victories, and, although the lower half of the team fared badly, L. J. Doyle's defeat of G. H. Breed, the former national amateur fencing champion, clinched the decision for the Tigers. The veteran O. D. G. Vanderbilt, returning to squash after a prolonged absence, gave an impressive display against John Munroe, the Crimson's No. 1 man, whom he defeated, 15—4, 15—7 in a fast exhibition all the way, with court craft and a more thorough knowledge of angles giving the winner a decided edge.

E. C. Olds had far more difficulty in disposing of C. Taylor, losing the second game at 15—9, after taking the opener by the same score, but eventually putting the match to his credit with a 15—8 rubber.

The longest and most stubborn struggle of the afternoon resulted when W. S. Seaman of Harvard met George Walker, Jr., Princeton's former 'Varsity pitcher and a familiar figure on the lawn tennis courts. Seaman lost the opening game in the closest possible fashion, extra points making it 18—16 against him. He then made everything square with a well-earned win of 15—12, but found himself badly in the hole when Walker led at 9—2 in the rubber. Seaman, however, braced remarkably at this stage and gradually crept up to an even score. The game was again set to extra points when both had reached the unlucky thirteen, and after nearly two hours of steady play Seaman finally claimed the victory with a deciding total of 18—15.

Another Three-Game Encounter.

C. F. Clarkson's elimination of L. Richards, the last man on the Princeton list, was also accomplished in three games, the scores all running close, at 15—10, 13—15, 15—10. J. W. Lee gave Harvard another tally when he triumphed over J. Hoyt, 15—4, 15—11. But Dr. A. D. Mittendorf kept the Orange and Black ahead by his spectacular defeat of G. N. Richard, at 15—8, 15—10, and L. J. Doyle put the match on ice when he allowed G. H. Breed, an expert foilsman, but inexperienced with the racquet, only two points in the first game and four in the second.

The Class A teams of the Metropolitan League will get under way next week. This afternoon there will be a continuation of the Princeton Club's handicap tournament, and the third round of the invitation event that is being held under the auspices of the Yale Club will be played off on Monday.

GOLDBERG WINS IN 2 ROUNDS

Metropolitan amateur boxers presented another good show at the New York Athletic Club last night in the preliminaries and semi-finals of a tournament which will be finished tomorrow evening. Sol Seaman, New York State champion at 108 pounds, by a decision over D. Gruber of the Pastime A. C., came through to the finals at the bottom weight and will meet Frank Costello, who eliminated H. Ginsburg, the fast little scrapper of the Ninety-second Street Young Men's Hebrew Association.

At 125 pounds, the winning semi-finalists were B. Embiner, also a Y. M. H. A. representative, and R. Merrill of the Brooklyn A. A., the latter stopping S. McGrapn of the Glencoe A. C. in the second round.

B. Bostein and B. O'Grady proved the best of the 135-pounders. The former had to win a preliminary bout from A. McRae of the Trinity A. C., by the judges' decision, before taking on C. Tabel in the last battle of the evening, but proved strong enough to finish off his second opponent in two rounds of entertaining boxing. O'Grady's victim in the other semi-final was J. Werner of the Rutgers Gym, who lasted to the limit, but lost the decision on points.

A special bout at 118 pounds brought together L. Goldberg of the Pastime A. C., and his clubmate, J. Romano, and produced the fastest milling of the evening. Goldberg, who has been putting out his rivals in regular succession through half a dozen of the recent tournaments, kept up his remarkable record with a spectacular exhibition of clean, hard punching, and the little Italian was unable to keep up the pace for two rounds. Romano, however, although beaten, showed that he has the making of a first-class boxer, and should improve with every appearance in the ring.

A large crowd witnessed the bouts, which were held in the gymnasium of the clubhouse.

PASTIME ARRANGES BOUTS.

Britton, Turner, Benjamin, and Others to Box Tomorrow.

The best of the amateurs will also appear in the ring, among them Sol Seaman of Brooklyn, who finished second in the recent trials for the international team, and Sam Lagonia, one of the stars of the home club.

Crescent A. C. Bouts.

The Crescent Athletic Club announces an amateur boxing tournament to take place at the Brooklyn club house next week, the preliminaries on Tuesday and the finals on Thursday. Bouts will be held in four classes, at 110, 120, 130, and 140 pounds, with prizes for the winner and runner-up in each class.

Entries may be made up to Monday at the clubhouse, or to B. Levine, at the headquarters of the Amateur Athletic Union, Metropolitan Branch, 290 Broadway.

Dempsey Ready for Movies.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will not engage in a ring contest before March, Jack Kearns, the title holder's manager, announced tonight. The champion will be engaged until that time in making a moving picture. Dempsey finished his circus engagement in Little Rock, Ark., Tuesday.

EXTERMINATOR WINS PIMLICO CUP RACE

Kilmer Entry Shows to Advantage Over a Distance as Fall Meeting Ends.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 13.—Showing vast improvement over his last race, W. S. Kilmer's Exterminator quite handily captured the $5,000 Pimlico Cup race at two miles and a quarter here today and sustained the belief that he is one of the best distance racers in the country. The improvement was decidedly marked because he won by four lengths from W. T. Wilkinson's Royce Rools, which slipped in ahead of Exterminator, Cudgel, and Mad Hatter last Saturday in a race at a mile and a half. Woodtrap was the only other starter today and finished last after running a good race for a mile and a half.

The cup race was the feature on the card which brought the Pimlico Autumn meeting to a close. The meeting was one of the best held here in years, as it brought together the best performers in training. Though bad weather marred the meeting to some extent, there was a clear sky for the final day, and as a result another capacity crowd turned out.

Exterminator's victory was not due so much to any sudden improvement in form as to the fact that the condition of the track and the distance favored him against this company. The track was heavy and to his liking, and Exterminator, lacking early speed, had the most strength in reserve when it came to the test at the end. Royce Rools ran a good race, but despite a light impost, he was not strong enough to plow through the heavy going for such a distance and remain up with the sturdy and long striding winner.

Mad Hatter Withdrawn.

S. C. Hildreth had named Mad Hatter for this race but withdrew him and thus took much of the interest from the race. The Hildreth horses have not fared well in Maryland and the New York sportsman decided not to send his three-year-old on such a long race over the heavy track.

While Exterminator was made the favorite, Royce Rools was well played on the strength of his last victory. On that occasion Exterminator was never a contender and seemed unable to get up any speed at all. Royce Rools slipped through when the others had raced themselves out in front, and appeared to be much better than the Kilmer racer, which finished last.

Exterminator had plenty of speed for the slow pace that was set today. With Mad Hatter to keep them moving at a good clip the race might have been run differently, but as it was none of the jockeys desired to get out in front and the horses just loped along for a mile. Woodtrap was in front coming down the stretch the first time, but Exterminator moved up in the back stretch and raced with Woodtrap for a turn of the track. Royce Rools meantime was rated back by Ambrose who saved for the final rush.

Going through the back stretch for the second time Kummer made a move on Exterminator and began to draw away. Royce Rools then showed his first sign of speed and attempted to overtake the leader, but the distance had taken too much out of him, and he could not come with a rush as he had done Saturday. Exterminator sailed along smoothly and Kummer did not even put a whip to him in the stretch. Woodtrap was outclassed and though he ran a good race while the pace was slow he could not keep up when the others began to make their run and he was quickly disposed of at the far turn.

Tippity Witchet Scores.

The star of Max Hirsch, who was one of the most successful trainers at the Pimlico meeting, was in the ascendency again today and he scored again with G. W. Loft's Tippity Witchet in the Woodberry handicap at a mile, in which Tippity Witchet took the measure of Mrs. R. A. Smith's Slippery Elm. Both horses won yesterday and displayed a liking for the condition of the track. Slipper Elm had won with the greatest of ease while Tippity Witchet had been forced to drive to the finish in a six-furlong dash.

There were only four starters, and Dr. Johnson, which is a sprinter, dashed to the front and set a fast pace while he lasted. Slippery Elm was up close to him when the horses reached the back stretch, but Tippity Witchet, which had gone wide at the turn, began to move up and halfway through to the far turn had disposed of both Dr. Johnson and Slippery Elm. From there to the end he had all the speed in the race and when he turned into the stretch he was three lengths in front. Callahan was not of much assistance to Slippery Elm in the stretch drive, but the horse did not get up to within a length of the winner at the finish and made Sande do his best on Tippity. The aged Leochares was third, having easily disposed of Dr. Johnson some distance back.

There was something of an upset in the Caswell handicap at a mile for two-year-olds, when J. K. L. Ross's Faisan Dore slipped down under the wire half a length in front of St. Allan and Kinnoul in the field of seven starters. Kinnoul was very strongly played favorite, though he had never been sent over the mile route before. He is one of the best of the mud larks, but after getting him into a contending position in the back stretch Ambrose took him into the heaviest part of the track and lost three lengths before he began to make his challenge. Kinnoul did not have enough speed to carry him through the stretch.

At the head of the stretch it appeared to be a race between Kinnoul and St. Allan, but both went wide at the turn and Faisan Dore came through on the rail and disposed of both of them.

The first race was also a mile test for two-year-olds and it went to D. Tighe's Cock o' the Roost, which defeated Clarabella by a length, with Gain de Cause third.

CHANGES PLANNED IN MET. GOLF PLAY

Officials May Make Title Tournaments Open Only to Low Handicap Men.

With a view to making the metropolitan amateur golf championship a tournament restricted to really top-notch linksmen, officials of the association are working on the plans for the 1920 season. Accompanying the announcement yesterday that the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Golf Association would be held Dec. 9 at the Hotel Knickerbocker were the assurances from several officials that the tournament for the next title would bring together a better and perhaps smaller class of golfers than in the past.

Already the metropolitan amateur championship ranks next to importance among amateur golfers to the national amateur, but because the field has generally been clogged with mediocre players who cannot be expected to hold their own in the field, there are plans to set a limit on the handicap of players eligible. Although no idea has yet been entertained to issue an eligibility list, as is the case with contestants for the national title, it is more than likely that next year such a handicap allowance as nine or ten strokes will be agreed upon as high enough to permit all the really brilliant golfers of the district to compete. Possibly the limit will be made seven or eight, but there is a certainty that no more title tourneys will be held where golfers with regular allowances of twelve or fifteen or even higher will be allowed to compete against such stars as Oswald Kirkby, Gardiner White, A. L. Walker, Jr., Sam Graham, Grant Peacock and others.

An innovation will also be adopted with respect to the amateur eligibility for the Metropolitan open championship. Possibly a handicap of four or five will be regarded as high enough to permit entry for the really high-class golfers who can compete against the professionals. After the last open tourney at North Shore, on July 11, officials discussed the matter of restricting the amateurs who should be allowed to enter the fixture.

This year's annual meeting will be a return to the grand old soirees of the past, when the occasion was made an elaborate function for winding up the old year and planning for the new. Instead of holding the meeting in one of the official's offices, as was the case during the two years of the war, the delegates and any metropolitan golfers interested will gather at the Knickerbocker at 8:30 o'clock on the evening of Dec. 9, for the election of officers and other matters of business. Because of the limited field of activity during the war, it is probable that most, if not all, of the present officers will be holdovers for a third year. C. J. Sullivan is the President and A. H. Pogson the Secretary, and there is a feeling among the linksmen of the district that these hard workers should be retained for at least one more term.

Three applications are waiting for membership, and with a roll of more than ninety clubs already the M. G. A. looks forward to the most successful year in its history. Several clubs have made application for the amateur title tournament, and although the committeemen have made no promise it is certain that a course nearer to Times Square than Brooklawn, at Bridgeport, where the 1919 event was held, will be chosen. The North Shore links, where the open title was contested, is also regarded as a little too distant, and a closer one doubtless will be selected. Siwanoy, Apawamis, Baltusrol and St. Albans seem to be in the fore in the competition for the honor.

COLUMBIA TO RUN RUTGERS.

Dual Race for Harriers Will Be Held at Van Cortlandt Today.

Columbia and Rutgers will clash in a cross-country run over the six-mile championship course at Van Cortlandt Park at 4 o'clock this afternoon. It will be the last meet for both teams before the intercollegiates next Saturday over the same course. The Morningside harriers will be strengthened by the reappearance of A. W. Stewart, a 'Varsity runner, who has been missing from the last two meets because of injuries. The Blue and White took a last short spin over the course yesterday afternoon.

The runners this afternoon will be as follows: Columbia—Captain Turner, Higgins, Lowenkopf, Knox, Stewart, Morein, and Newton; Rutgers—Oxley, Eschenfelder, Barbenheim, Crane, Molineaux, Margolies, and Robbins.

DISPOSE OF WHISKY UNDER INJUNCTION

BEER SOLD IN RHODE ISLAND

Chicago Bars Hope to be Selling Liquor in the Old Way by the End of the Week.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 13.—For the first time since wartime prohibition took effect on July 1 whisky was sold openly in Louisville today without interference by the Government.

Wright & Taylor and the Brown-Forman Company, who had brought suit in the Federal Court, disposed of their tax-paid stock, taking advantage of an injunction granted today by Judge Evans restraining the Government from enforcing the provisions of the wartime prohibition act against these firms.

Wright & Taylor sold floor stock at $75 a case. The Brown-Forman Company had orders on hand and proceeded to fill them after the injunction had been granted.

The Government has pointed out that it will prosecute all who sell liquor if the Supreme Court reverses Judge Evans. The penalty is a fine of from $150 to $1,000 for each offense, and as each sale would constitute a separate offense, a staggering fine could be imposed.

Saloon-keepers have not shown any disposition to fry to resume.

Judge Evans, in Federal Court, this morning granted a temporary injunction and a restraining order to prevent United States District Attorney Gregory and the Internal Revenue Collector from interfering with the sale of tax-paid whisky in the distillers' stores.

United States District Attorney Gregory immediately asked for a writ of supersedeas. This was denied. The case will be taken at once to the United States Court of Appeals at Cincinnati.

Judge Evans said:

"I am thoroughly convinced that the plaintiff is entitled to this relief in each of these cases. As to what effect it will have on persons outside I am not saying anything. It cannot have any direct effect."

United States District Attorney Gregory has announced that the Government will proceed against all who sell liquor in violation of the Supreme Court decision Judge Evans.

Saloons Open and Shut.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 13.—Following the entry of a decree in the United States Court today enjoining Federal officers from enforcing the war prohibition law, saloons in this city and State began at once the sale of 4 per cent. beer. Outside of Providence saloonkeepers continued to sell as long as their supply at hand lasted, but in this city the Police Commission at 9 o'clock tonight notified every dealer to stop the sale of anything stronger than one-half of 1 per cent.

The commission's order stated that although the decree had been entered, the police would not allow the 4 per cent. to go on sale until after the case had been heard in the Court of Appeals in Boston.

Following the entering of the decree, Judge Brown refused to grant a supersedeas which would have acted as a stay to the enforcement of the order putting the injunction into effect.

United States District Attorney Harvey A. Baker announced that he would take an appeal to the United States Court of Appeals in Boston and it was later learned that the appeal would be entered next Tuesday.

Chicago Prepares to Sell.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—So certain were Chicago saloonkeepers today that Federal Judges Carpenter and Fitzhenry would decide against the wartime Prohibition and Enforcement acts that they were arranging for delivery of liquor stocks. Among liquor men it was hoped that Bars would be selling liquor as of old by Saturday night.

District Attorney Clyne issued a warning that should the liquor interests be successful in the suit, profiteering in whisky would be prevented. He also declared that accepting orders for delivery of liquor conditioned on the issuance of an injunction preventing the Government from enforcing prohibition was illegal.

SUIT IS FILED IN BOSTON.

Brewers Maintain That Volstead Act Is Unconstitutional.

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—The first step in an attempt to prevent enforcement in this State of the Volstead act was taken today, when the New England Brewing Company filed in the Federal Court a bill in equity, seeking a preliminary injunction restraining United States District Attorney Thomas J. Boynton and Acting Collector of Internal Revenue Andrew J. Casey from enforcing the act against them, on the ground that it is unconstitutional.

Judge George W. Anderson will give a hearing on the bill on Nov. 17.

The bill alleges that the Volstead act is unconstitutional in that it seeks to enforce and provides for national prohibition during the period which must elapse before the Eighteenth Amendment, which the constitution will become effective, can become a part of the Eighteenth Amendment.

SAY OHIO STOPS 'DRY' LAW.

"Wets" Plan to Have Jan. 16 Canceled as the Date.

On the heels of the repudiation by the people of Ohio of the ratification of the prohibition amendment by the State Legislature it was learned yesterday that the liquor interests are planning legal steps to prevent prohibition from going into effect on Jan. 16. The "wets" will base their attack on the result of the referendum in Ohio.

It will be contended that the repudiation of the action of the State Legislature by the people of Ohio withdraws that State from the list of those ratifying the Eighteenth Amendment. The courts will be asked to set aside Jan. 16 as the date when the amendment is to go into effect on this ground. The vote in Ohio, it will be maintained, created a new situation, so that the nation had not really complied with the necessary requirements when the date was fixed for permanent prohibition.

As explained yesterday by the "wet" forces, the Eighteenth Amendment was to go into effect one year after it had been ratified by thirty-six States. The required number ratified the amendment on Jan. 16 last, following which the Secretary of State proclaimed that the law had been fulfilled and that a year from that day the amendment would go into effect. Ohio was one of the thirty-six States that ratified up to last Jan. 16.

The "wet" interests assume that if the results of the referendum are not upset in the recount it will mean that when the Secretary of State made his proclamation last Jan. 16 there were only thirty-five States which had ratified the Eighteenth Amendment.

It will undoubtedly be contended by the prohibitionists, it was asserted, that if Jan. 16, 1920, is not the exact date, then it merely remains for the State Department to set a new date a few days later, and count in Ohio's place one of the States which ratified the Eighteenth Amendment later. Some doubt was advanced as to whether it would be lawful to take this step.

It will be the endeavor of the anti-prohibitionists not only to have Jan. 16, 1920, cancelled as the date on which the Eighteenth Amendment is to go into effect, but to prevent another date from being fixed. This would put the whole thing off until after 1920. Ohio is regarded by the liquor interests as a test case, and they hope that Washington and California will follow Ohio's example. Ohio, it was stated, is the only State where national prohibition was submitted to the people, who disapproved the action of their State Legislature in ratifying it.

PALMER TO CONTINUE ENFORCING DRY LAW

Government's Course Will Not Be Changed Unless the Supreme Court Should So Decree.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Attorney General Palmer's position with respect to enforcement of war-time prohibition has in no way been altered by court decisions in Rhode Island and Kentucky, it was officially stated tonight at the Department of Justice. The Government's contention that the war-time law is valid, it was added, will be vigorously defended until final decision has been handed down by the United States Supreme Court.

While enforcement of the law is stopped in the two States, United States District Attorneys, acting on prior instructions, will proceed with prosecutions of violators in other communities, officials declared.

Department officials differed as to the results of the injunction. Some held that, during the life of the restraining order, there was nothing to prevent open sale of all beverages as covered by the order. Others did not agree with this belief.

With regard to the effect on the constitutional amendment of the Ohio referendum overturning the Legislature's action, the Attorney General's view was said to be that action by the Ohio electorate would not change the date on which the prohibition amendment to the Constitution went into effect. Until the number of States ratifying the amendment falls below thirty-six the department will not concern itself with the changes in their identity, according to the opinion expressed by the officials of Mr. Palmer's staff.

Reports of a new attack to be made by anti-prohibitionists in an effort to stave off Constitutional prohibition have reached the Department of Justice from several sources. This assault is expected to be based on the reversal in Ohio's stand, it was said. Officials, however, said they felt sure of their ground. None believed that more than a reissuance of the proclamation of ratification could be forced, while a majority held firmly to the suggestion that so long as thirty-six States remained in the dry column the Government need take no heed of the names of the States.

"Teaching My Children Music"

(A Letter from an Ampico Owner)

"We bought our Ampico to give our children an education in music, and it is accomplishing this purpose. They get their education with pleasure and with perfect results, instead of depending on their unguided musical instincts. With the Ampico reproductions of great classics, interpreted by master pianists, to serve them as models they are getting the best possible education and have amazed me by their progress.

"The instrument is proving a great pleasure, not only to my family, but also to those friends whom we are pleased to have enjoy it with us."

No grown-up can fully know what music means to a child—only a child holds the key to those elfin lands of child delight—the exquisite realm of a child's imagination peopled with fairy princesses and brave knights.

Children love music. A little one singing or dancing to a merry tune or listening open-eyed, to the wonder music that brings with it its picture of the fairy princess, is an exquisite thing to see. Such music is brought into the home with the Ampico and such music heard on this most wonderful of musical instruments is always ideally played, for on the Ampico one is hearing the greatest pianists in the world giving their best in the records of their playing which the Ampico provides.

The child brought up in an atmosphere of the best music gains an appreciation and knowledge of this, the most exquisite of the arts, that will make for happiness throughout his whole life.

Not only the children, but mother and father, the big boys and girls, will each enjoy the music that the Ampico brings into the home, for it provides music of all kinds—the splendid music of the concert stage, the life and gaiety of Broadway's musical comedy, the tender song, touching and sentimental—all these are ready to be heard and enjoyed by the whole family.

You are invited to hear the playing of such great artists as Godowsky, Levitzki, Ornstein and Rachmaninoff reproduced in the Ampico studios

TEN CENT POSTAGE

Every user of "process" form letters is compelled to spend ten cents in postage on every letter that is read.

"Ridiculous," you say. But is it, really?

Large users of "process" letters tell us that if 20% of the people who receive them actually read them, they're doing well.

Yet not one business man out of a hundred ever takes into account the postage cost of the 80% or more that are never read.

It means just this: FOUR STAMPS ARE THROWN AWAY THAT ONE MAY DO ITS DUTY! Four letterheads and envelopes are wasted that one letter may be read. This is a waste of eighty per cent. of your good material.

The possible business that might have been secured from the eighty per cent. that don't read process or imitation letters probably means a loss that is greater than the postage loss, and that's big enough.

There is a way, however, where the little 2c stamp can be made to do 100% work—and that's by writing letters that will be read. The letters you dictate individually are read—and all the letters you send out by hundreds or thousands can be made just as distinctive.

Just two ways to produce such letters: Either you can hire a lot of typists to pound them out by hand (and mount up to a tremendous overhead) or you can install the HOOVEN Automatic Typewriter in your office and let it produce genuine typewritten letters better than hand-typists can do, and at from one-fourth to one-sixteenth the cost!

The HOOVEN Automatic Typewriter is simply a typewriter, electrically operated, that, by means of a paper stencil, does actual typewriting at tremendous speed. Your typist can operate it and do other work besides. As a time and money-saving device it is without an equal. Yet its greatest value is as a money-maker.

The chances are that you paid in wasted postage this year more than one or more HOOVENS would cost. And the business you didn't get with letters may have been a larger loss than the postage.

There's a HOOVEN representative, trained in mail problems, ready to tell you what the HOOVEN can and can not do in your business.

PRESIDENT ENJOYS CHAT WITH PRINCE

THEIR CONVERSATION GAY

ALEXANDRA SENDS MESSAGE

President's Reply Says He is "Steadily Improving" and That Prince's Welcome "Is from the Heart."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—One of the most cheerful twenty minutes which President Wilson has spent since his illness he enjoyed late today when the Prince of Wales called upon him at the White House. In describing the visit afterwards, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, the President's personal physician, said the two had a "fine old time."

President Wilson sat propped up in a great, old-fashioned bed, in which not only Abraham Lincoln had slept, but in which the Prince's grandfather, Edward VII., had reposed when he visited this country nearly sixty years ago. Even before Prince Edward knew of this his attention was attracted by the great mahogany bed, with its towering headboard. He kept talking about it to the President.

The President and his boyish caller laughed and joked the entire time, and Dr. Grayson said afterwards there was do doubt that the visit put the President in splendid humor. President Wilson asked many questions about King George, Queen Mary, and Queen Alexandra, whom he had visited in London early this year. The Prince brought the President many personal messages from the royal family.

Prince Edward displayed genuine enthusiasm over his visit to the United States. He talked with the same boyish charm and lack of affectation that has made so many friends for him here in Washington. Mrs. Wilson and Admiral Grayson remained in the room during the visit, and the Prince also included them in the conversation. Both are friends dating back to the days of the President's visit to London.

It was learned today that when the Prince first arrived in Washington the President sent him one of his books with the President's signature and an inscription. The Prince today expressed appreciation for this gift.

The royal visitor was at the White House about forty minutes in all, half of which time he spent at the President's bedside. The other half of his time was spent in an informal tea with Mrs. Wilson and Miss Margaret Wilson and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, daughters of the President. Only two members of his personal staff, Admiral Halsey and Captain Lord Claude Hamilton, accompanied him to the White House.

The Prince had not long returned from Mount Vernon when he arrived at the White House. He went to Mount Vernon about 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and laid a wreath upon the tomb of George Washington. In the corner of the vault stood a wreath which Edward VII., the Prince's grandfather, had left there nearly sixty years ago. He planted a tree in the grounds.

Vice President Marshall accompanied the Prince to Mount Vernon and escorted him through the house. Here the Prince was introduced to two old ladies, who recalled his grandfather's visit to the historic place. Like other distinguished visitors, the Prince wrote his name in the register.

Early in the forenoon Prince Edward bestowed decorations upon a large number of American officers, enlisted men and nurses. This ceremony took place at the Belmont home, where the Prince and his party are staying. The decorations were laid upon a marble table, and each officer and enlisted man came forward, while the Prince either pinned the order upon his breast or placed the ribbon carrying the decoration about his neck. Scores of diplomats and other distinguished visitors were present. Eight or ten air pilots who were decorated had served with the British forces.

After the embassy reception the Prince, with members of his staff, attended a small dance given by the Speaker and Mrs. Gillett at the Country Club. Here the guests were chiefly young people, contemporaries of the daughters of the hostess, and the younger diplomatic corps.

President Wilson sent a cablegram today to Dowager Queen Alexandra of England saying his health was steadily improving, in reply to one from the Queen thanking him for receiving her grandson, the Prince of Wales, and expressing the hope that his rest would give him "fresh strength and health for the future."

President Wilson, Washington:

I do hope with all my heart that you are feeling stronger now and that the rest after your wonderful work for the benefit of the whole world has given you fresh strength and health for the future. I am so glad you were able to spare a moment to see my precious grandson, and with kindest remebrance to your wife.

ALEXANDRA.

Her Majesty, Queen Alexandra.

Your Majesty's message gave Mrs. Wilson and me a great deal of pleasure. The welcome accorded your grandson here is from the heart. I am happy to say I am steadily improving, and Mrs. Wilson and I shall always hope to renew the friendship so delightfully begun. We unite in the most cordial messages and in thanking you for your thought of us.

WOODROW WILSON.

Tomorrow the Prince of Wales goes to Annapolis, returning to Washington in the evening, when his official visit ends.

The Prince at Mount Vernon.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Prince of Wales was accompanied to Mount Vernon today by Vice President Marshall and Secretary Lansing, and he seemed to enjoy thoroughly the drive through the Autumn-tinted Virginia woods with the sun shining for the first time since he entered the United States.

Arriving at the entrance of the grounds of the Washington mansion, Prince Edward passed through a long lane of infantrymen at "present arms" on his way to the tomb. He remained there only a few minutes and passed on to the Washington mansion.

Examining the relics within the mansion, the Prince showed both a youthful curiosity and a student's interest and was particularly attracted by a photograph taken of his grandfather when he visited Mount Vernon. Looking at the photograph closely, the Prince remarked:

"I see grandfather wore a plug hat. I wonder if I should have done the same?"

The Prince signed the register beneath the names of King Albert, Queen Elizabeth, and the Duke of Brabant.

The Prince will conclude his visit in Washington tomorrow with a call on Mrs. Marshall, wife of the Vice President, who has been unable to attend the functions given in the royal visitor's honor because of illness.

Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada, who has been at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., recuperating from a recent illness, arrived in Washington during the day to greet the Prince. The Premier attended the dinner at the British Embassy tonight and the reception which followed.

25,000 Follow Ashes of Haase, German Socialist, to Grave

BERLIN, Nov 13, (Associated Press.)—The ashes of Hugo Haase, leader of the Independent Socialists, were deposited in the Lichterfelde Cemetery today.

It is estimated that 25,000 men tramped through six inches of slush, caused by the heavy snowfall, behind the hearse bearing the urn to the cemetery. The cortège was more than an hour in passing a given point.

Mammoth red-ribboned wreaths formed a conspicuous feature of the procession, which started from the Reichstag immediately after the conclusion of a memorial service held there.

DINNER TO BRITISH OFFICERS.

Mayor's Committee Will Entertain Them—Many Races to Greet Prince

Officers of H. M. S Renown and H. M. S. Constance, the warships escorting the Prince of Wales, will be the guests tonight of Rodman Wanamaker, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Reception to Distinguished Guests, at a dinner in the Ritz-Carlton. The Constance is expected to anchor this morning near the Renown in the Hudson off Eighty-third Street.

General T. Coleman du Pont, Chairman of the Interracial Council, 120 Broadway, announced last night that representatives of thirty races in the United States will assemble on the Renown next Tuesday afternoon to pay their respects to the Prince. The plan to present a "cross-cut" of American life to the Prince was arranged by the Committee on International Affairs, of which Mrs. David Dumsey is Chairman.

The party to go aboard the Renown, which is to be the Prince's home while here, will be limited to seventy-five persons, including two leading representatives from each of the racial groups and members of the Executive Committee of the council.

WILSON PLANNING MESSAGE

He Will Probably Begin Work on it in a Few Days.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—President Wilson is giving some thought now to his annual message to Congress next month, it was said at the White House.

He probably will begin actual work on it within a few days, but whether he will write it himself or dictate it to a stenographer will depend upon the condition of his health.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Following the recent report that Lord Astor had invoked the highest authorities in an effort to secure the removal of the political disability which prevented him as a Peer from sitting in the House of Commons, it is now stated that a bill is about to be presented to Parliament by several private members with the object of obviating the necessity of Lord Astor taking his seat in the House of Lords.

4 BY-ELECTIONS IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Four Parliamentary by-elections are to be held this week, the most important of which will take place at Plymouth Saturday, with Lady Astor, wife of the new Viscount Astor, as Unionist candidate, against W. T. Gay, Laborite, and Isaac Foot, Liberal.

Today balloting took place at Chester-le-Street, Durham County, where John Lawson, Laborite, and David Gilmour, National Democrat, contested the seat. Tomorrow at South Croydon there will be a contest between Sir Allan Smith, Coalition Unionist, and Howard Houlder, Liberal, and on Saturday at Isle Thanet, Kent, between Esmond Harmsworth, Unionist, and Captain A. J. West, Liberal.

The results in the elections will be announced in a fortnight.

FIUME NOW GETS FOOD

Commercial Relations With the Outside World Has Begun.

FIUME, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—Food is now passing to Fiume regularly over the railway from Trieste. Commercial relations with the outside world have begun. The opening of sea traffic, which is expected, has caused resumption of work in the harbor, as well as in some Fiume industries which have been tied up during the occupation by the forces of Gabriele d' Annunzio.

Efforts are being made by the d'Annunzio command to stabilize the currency. All old Hungarian money has been called in and money which does not bear the Fiume mark will be invalidated. Money has been pouring in from all parts of Italy. It has been used to pay the soldiers and to keep up the d'Annunzio organization. It also has been distributed to the unemployed to allay unrest.

Relaxation of the blockade by land and sea is expected to relieve the situation.

HUGE OPERA HOUSE PLANNED FOR BERLIN

INTERNATIONAL IN SCOPE

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Despite the pessimistic view of many business men and politicians regarding Germany's future, there are numerous capitalists, German and foreign, especially Swiss and Dutch, who firmly believe in Germany's speedy revival, and are willing to back their optimism with hard cash. It is surprising how many new theatrical enterprises on a much grander style than anything known here are planned or already building; for instance, Professor Reinhardt's new theatre containing 5,000 seats, costing many million marks, which are principally furnished by foreign capitalists, believing Berlin will become the centre of Continental Europe.

Greater even than Reinhardt's is Otto Tamini's new operatic enterprise for which the present Opera Comique corner at Friedrichstrasse and Weidendam, the site of the Hotel Belvedere and several other adjacent buildings have been already purchased. This immense plot, situated close to the new Friedrichstrasse railway station, will be covered by a monumental theatrical building which it is proposed shall be named the "International Opera House." Otto Tamini, a tenor who is well known to New Yorkers, is the soul of this enterprise, and already has invested a large part of his fortune.

The house will be built on plans of the Metropolitan Opera House, only larger, containing a roof garden, restaurants, ballrooms, and exhibition hall. Tamini, who personally supervises the whole scheme, is determined that all his experience gained in the principal houses of the world shall be employed to advantage in this new international opera house which is to be technical and artistic perfection. It will be the home of all kinds of arts that require large apparatus and a grand house for performances, and it will be truly international, catering to German and Italian opera, Russian ballet, French and American vaudeville, classical dancing, &c. The enterprise will require 15,000,000 marks, more than half of which has been subscribed in Switzerland and Holland.

Most of the German subscribers are Prussian Junkers and South German noblemen which circumstance lends to the whole scheme a suspicion of reactionary spirit. Tamini's friends, however, declare politics has nothing to do with it and explain that the Junkers merely are seeking a good investment for the money accumulated during the war. Tamini, like many eminent singers, considers the old Royal Opera, now the State Opera, no serious competition, it being impossible to conduct an art enterprise successfully on Socialist lines. Jadlowker thought so too and refused to undertake the management. Anyhow the Royal Opera House is old and antiquated and could hardly compete with Tamini's modernized house which is to be art's last word. Tamini's is supposed to possess great managerial qualities, being the son of a banker and a bank employe himself until Lilly Lehmann persuaded him to try opera.

FEAR CROP LOSSES SPELL CATASTROPHE

By GEORGE RENWICK.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12. — Does Germany stand before a food crisis which will probably reduce the country during the course of the Winter to a condition similar to that in Austria? Figures just issued by the Prussian Statistical Office are serious enough, but the early Winter which holds the fatherland snow and frost bound makes the situation such that it must be described as one in which a catastrophe is approaching.

The Prussian Statistical Office declares the potato crop is 12.3 per cent. less than last year, turnips 17.3 per cent. less, and sugar beets 31.2 per cent. less. That, of course, is an estimate of the crops as they lie in the ground, but the tremendous damage done by the frost to a great percentage of the potatoes, &c., which have not yet been lifted, owing largely to the lack of labor, and to hundreds of thousands of tons which were left standing on railway wagons on account of the bad condition of transport, makes the position loom infinitely worse.

The Government authorities in Dresden report that practically the whole potato crop in the high-lying districts is still in the ground, while in the lowlands large quantities still have to be gathered in. Of the other root crops about two-thirds must be regarded as lost. In East Prussia the Chamber of Agriculture estimates the loss through frost and the lack of agricultural labor at a million tons of potatoes and about 25 per cent. of the other root crops. In West Prussia only three-quarters of the potato crop has been saved, while turnips, &c., have not been brought in to any large extent.

Silesia reports a similar state of affairs, and conditions in Pomerania are very little better. A report from Mecklenburg states that the crops vary between one-half and one-third of the normal. Similar gloomy statements come from other districts. The farmers complain that the laborers are demanding impossible wages, and those who were engaged some time ago mostly disappeared when the wintry weather supervened. Add to all the prospect that during the Winter the transport facilities will be extremely poor, and it looks certain that the Winter months will be tragic for the great masses of the people. Nor is that all. The farmers will certainly hold up what crops they will have gathered already. They are shouting out for higher potato prices, and stronger Governments than the present one have stood powerless while the landed interests thus waged economic war on the towns.

Says Union Firemen Menace Jersey City; Transfers to End "Bolshevism" Begun

Public Service Commissioner F. X. O'Brien of Jersey City began yesterday a sweeping reorganization of the Fire Department, which he declared had become demoralized, since it became unionized a short time ago, to such an extent that it was becoming a menace to the city.

Not only did Mr. O'Brien transfer ninety-seven men, admittedly with the intention in many instances of punishing them, but he restored fire drills as a disciplinary measure, threatened a wholesale shakeup of some 200 to 300 men unless there was quick reform, asserted that some of the leaders in insubordination would be tried and dismissed and proclaimed his determination to replace practically the whole force with ex-service men, rather than permit it to become "Bolshevik."

In all, the Commissioner transferred eight Captains and six Lieutenants.

"I certainly do not intend to countenance any Bolshevik methods in the Fire Department," Commissioner O'Brien said, "and I feel that the people of this city will support me in this attitude. Insubordination, carelessness, and indifference in the Fire Department are evil things, and it is my intention to eradicate them, even should it be necessary to organize a practically new Fire Department to accomplish the task.

"A demoralized Fire Department is a serious menace to any city, and I do not intend to let that condition exist in Jersey City, even if I have to offend all the slackers.

"The shirkers will have to get out. There are many ex-service men in the city who would be glad to get jobs in the Fire Department and who would make most efficient firemen."

The Commissioner said there were a number of loyal, efficient men in the department who deserved praise for "resisting the evil influences of those who would place the department on a plane with Bolshevik organizations."

"There will be dismissals. The men will have fair trials, but I will be the judge. I have evidence that convinces me of the insubordination and of disregard of orders and of one flat refusal to obey orders. There are three men who have been urging the others on. I know there have been secret meetings.

"I have never taken a cent of political contribution from the men of the department of which I am the head. I have aimed to make firemen and not contributors or statesmen or politicians."

Jersey City firemen receive $1,400 the first year, $1,500 the second and third years, and $1,600 the fourth year and thereafter, Commissioner O'Brien pointed out, adding that there was no better paid fire force in the country. They are to have a two-platoon system, a proposal for which was carried by a big majority at a referendum vote at the recent election.

Unable to attend last night's meeting of the Central Labor Union because they were denied time off, the firemen sent a long written protest against alleged unfairness and hostility on the part of the Commissioner and, in response to their request for aid, the central organization decided to send its Municipal Committee to City Hall today to protest. The firemen denied the intention of striking, saying the Commissioner himself had interjected this thought into the controversy.

They said the shakeup would prevent men from seeing their families as often as formerly, and they were bitter against an order compelling them to report for drill on their days off.

They complained, too, about the establishment of an all-night floor watch in each fire house, alleged a number of other grievances, and laid the Commissioner's displeasure to the adoption of the two-platoon system at the last election by a 10-to-1 vote.

GOVERNMENT IS DESPERATE

BERNE, Nov. 12.—A medical mission just returned from Vienna declares that the death rate of new born infants there is becoming distressing, even in the maternity hospitals, and that the main cause is coal shortage. The mothers shiver from cold and the babies born die of bronchial catarrh or inflammation of the lungs owing to the too low temperature of the hospitals and houses. Frequently mothers die at the same time as the infants, and this again is mainly due to the lack of warmth. New born infants cannot be washed except at the risk of their lives owing to the temperature. The American Commission for Saving Children is trying to cope with the disaster and some coal which Germany should have sent to France is being now diverted to Vienna. Owing to the appalling conditions of life, many Viennese are becoming demented.

It is rumored that the Austrian Government is becoming desperate and that it may any day proclaim the dissolution of the Austrian Republic, whereupon each constituent province would proclaim its union with Germany, and that the army is ready to maintain order and prevent opposition to this upheaval. The People's Guards, as the Austrian Army is now called, will support the civil authorities of the provincial governments and if necessary take their place. The various allied missions, commissions, committees and sub-committees, except those purely charitable, are merely irritating the Viennese and wasting public funds. The Viennese say that drafting reports and compiling statistics can't help them and that the allied peacemakers knew a year ago that German-speaking Austria was in a state of bankruptcy and beggary.

STONE ITALIAN POLITICIANS.

Socialists Attack Campaigners—Many Hurt at Debate.

ROME, Nov. 12.—A number of disturbances have taken place in Northern Italy in connection with the election campaign. Giuseppe Bevione, formerly Italian Commissioner of Aeronautics in America, was prevented from speaking at Chiari by Socialists, who stoned his carriage.

At Montebello Socialists threw stones, wounding former Deputies Teso and Dalmolin while they were canvassing.

After a public debate at Bertinoro between Signor Comandini, a Republican candidate, and Signor Carati, Socialist, the adherents of the candidates took sides. A battle, in which stones, sticks, and revolvers were used, resulted. Many persons were wounded and two are dying.

BRITISH BAR MISS TROY.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Replying to a question in the House of Commons today as to whether Lillian Scott Troy would be allowed to return to England, Home Secretary Shortt said that Miss Troy had been deported as an undesirable alien and that for the same reason she would not be allowed to return.

Miss Lillian Scott Troy of San Francisco was deported by the British Government last April, reaching New York on April 21. One of the grounds is said to have been that she had worked indefatigably to secure the release of Baron Louis von Horst, interned by the British Government in 1914, and had clashed several times with the Government over the settlement of his business after his internment. She was an assistant in the management of his companies.

RUMANIA SEEKING TO MAKE CONDITIONS

Notice of Willingness to Sign Treaty Reaches Paris After New Note is Framed.

COUNCIL WILL CONSIDER IT

By EDWIN L. JAMES.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—The Council has voted that a proposed new note to Rumania, in the nature of an ultimatum, shall be submitted to the Allied Governments before being sent to Bucharest. The new note would call on Rumania to answer within one week as to her intentions with regard to withdrawing her troops from Hungary and as to signing the minorities' clause of the treaty with Austria. The note would provide that should Rumania not comply within the time limit she would be subjected to economic and political ostracism from the Allies. Approval of her territorial readjustments also would be withheld as punishment.

A short time after the conclusion of the session of the Supreme Council at which this action was taken, Rumania's representatives sent to the Foreign Office a letter saying that they had just received from Bucharest a telegram sent on Nov. 6, saying that the Rumanian Government would sign the treaty with the minorities clause. Delegates were busy tonight interviewing members of the Supreme Council in trying to affect a change in today's action.

Rumania's reply to the last three notes which was read to the Council yesterday, stated that she would withdraw her troops to the River Theiss and avoid satisfactory action on the other two points. The new note would tell her that withdrawing her troops to the River Theiss only was not satisfactory but that she must go back to the border fixed by the Peace Conference. Not all the notes sent by the Conference to Rumania regarding her unauthorized occupation of Hungary have been made public, but it is stated on good authority that the new note would be No. 9.

Some figure that the reply to the new note, if sent at once, would not reach Paris before the Supreme Council and Conference had passed to the great beyond, that being expected to take place the last week in November.

This outcome would leave the Balkan troubles to the various Foreign Offices. It is expected by European diplomats that when that system comes into effect the United States will have less to do with European politics than she has had to do at the Peace Conference. In the Peace Conference it has been America, seconded by England, which has insisted most strongly on bringing Rumania to terms. It has long been alleged that France and Italy would rather please Rumania than Hungary in the present controversy.

In addition to having strong economic ties with Rumania France wishes to have Rumania built up into a strong nation to stand as a barrier on the south against the Bolsheviki. Le Temps, which reflects the opinion of the Foreign office, contributes to La Presse de Paris, the composite newspaper being published during the printers' strike, an article in which it says: "The recent successes of the Bolsheviki aggravate the Russian problem; aggravation of the Russian problem gives importance to the Rumanian problem.

"If Rumania remains a State well ordered and strong, there would be an insurmountable obstacle between Russian Bolshevism and the Balkans. If Rumania is menaced with disorder and even with revolution, the outcome will be good for Lenin and Trotzky."

After reviewing the political situation in Rumania Le Temps editor writes:

"Provided that the Allies permit Rumania to accomplish peaceably her interior evolution, she can adjust herself, give to the rural masses legitimate satisfaction, and maintain withal the solidarity of the Rumanian State. But it will be otherwise if certain powers, who sit on the Supreme Council, seek to dictate to Rumania the choice of her Ministers or wish to impose upon her conditions contrary to national independence."

Condition on Minorities Clause.

PARIS, Nov. 13, (Havas.)—According to the Presse de Paris, the session of the Supreme Council had just closed today when Victor Antonesco, Rumanian Minister to France, transmitted to the French Foreign Office a telegram from the Rumanian Government, sent Nov. 6, but only received here Wednesday. The telegram announced that Rumania had decided to sign the Austrian treaty without reservations on the article concerning minorities, but would demand an understanding as to the friendly spirit in the application of this article.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 12.—Rumania, it is learned, is making demands upon the Turkish Government for the return of materials alleged to have been taken from the Rumanian factories by the Turks during the occupation of Dobrudja, a special delegate of the Rumanian Government having been sent here to present the demands.

A portion of the material has already been returned to its original owners through the efforts of a commission appointed by Turkey to investigate the Rumanian claims. Legal ownership of certain machinery claimed, however, is asserted by its Turkish possessors, who have produced papers to show that they bought it from the Germans.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—For a dreary fortnight the Parliamentary commission inquiring into the causes of America's entry into the war has been going on in the committee room of the Reichstag Building. Press representatives long ago became heartily tired of the whole proceedings. The public is represented by a couple of dozen of obviously leisured people.

Witness after witness has been allowed to wander as far from the point at issue as he likes. Often a witness will turn his back on the Commissioners and address his impassioned periods to the scanty audience. The Commissioners mumble their questions and the witnesses drone out their long replies. Ten sittings have been held and nothing has been achieved save confusion worse confounded.

Today has been one of exception, however. Dr. Karl Helfferich held the stage. It is indeed curious to see again all those once mighty personages. Bethmann Hollweg sits like a tired professor beside Zimmermann, formerly Foreign Secretary, red-mustached, with a face scarred by duelling wounds. They are figures which might have stepped out of the German forests of old. They know their day is done. Bernstorff, dapper and debonair, smiles and chats pleasantly. He thinks he may yet have another day. Admiral von Capelle, once Marine Minister, and Admiral Scheer, Lord Jellicoe's opponent at Jutland, are indeed tragic figures in their mufti.

But the greatest tragedy of all is Dr. Karl Helfferich, who reached the height of Deputy Chancellor. Few men, I think, lost so much by Germany's defeat. A victorious Fatherland would have had a great place for this keen, down-right hard-hitting person whose abilities are so varied and whose Germanism was so deeply rooted.

Even today as a witness before this commission of inquiry he boldly sang the praises of the Kaiser and Pan Germanism. Financier and scholar, poet and politician, chief among the U-boat prophets, a merciless political fighter, believer in no quarter for his opponents, bullet-headed, incisive of speech, he lost a place in history by his country's defeat.

He comes to a small table where the witnesses sit. He places an orderly bundle of papers before him and then begins to speak in rapid, sharp-cut sentences. He is no witness. Really he is a professor lecturing these politicians and experts. He waves their questions aside in a flood of purple patches about the merits of the old régime. He smothers all comment with a torrent of rasping, scornful sentences. He shakes his clenched hands in the face now of this Commissioner and now of that. He bangs his fist on the table to emphasize his points. So the members of the commission lean back in their chairs and resign themselves to listen.

They listened all today and they will listen all tomorrow. They listen to what? That the U-boat war was justified, that President Wilson was, before America came into the war and when the President was working for peace, a mere "dishonest broker"; that William II. was a great peace apostle.

"Let us thank God who preserved us from this peacemaker Wilson," Helfferich shouted, banging his fist on the table once more.

"America only wished to make money out of the blood and tears of Europe," was another harshly spoken sentence. And who was the real worker for peace? Why, the Kaiser, of course, who at the end of October, 1916, sent a letter to the Chancellor declaring peace to be "a high moral act necessary to relieve the world from its heavy burden," and the letter went on: "Such a deed is that of the ruler who has a conscience, who feels himself responsible to God, who has a human heart and who, disregarding misrepresentations which will follow such a step, has the will to set the world free from that scourge, and I will dare with trust in God."

The letter was read over with all Helfferich's oratorical skill, and it is not negligible. Even the pacifists on the commission seemed impressed. A long and glowing tribute to the peace-loving nature of the German people followed. "It is the eternal title of fame for Germany that it was from her and her allies that the first offer of peace came," he said. No one of the members of the commission was loud voiced enough to put bounds to this long panegyric on the Germany which has gone and the ruler who is exiled.

But Helfferich forgot one thing. On the very day on which Germany's "peace offer" was issued his Majesty addressed some of his troops in Upper Alsace. Then William II. told his soldiers of Germany's peace offer and added: "Germany will under all circumstances conclude a victorious peace and dictate terms to the enemy."

I believe some one will remind Dr. Helfferich tomorrow of that utterance, which was at the time officially issued by the Wolff News Agency. If there is any grit in this weary commission it ought to get its own back then on this outspoken champion of the old order that has changed.

220,000 IN BAVARIAN GUARD.

Proposal to Raise Force of "Citizen Soldiery" to 400,000.

BERLIN, Nov. 12 (Associated Press.) —The newly organized "Citizen Guard" of Bavaria now numbers 220,000. According to the Tägliche Rundschau, it is proposed to bring the number up to 400,000.

The State Government has just completed a draft of the statutes governing the citizen soldiery, which is under the command of a captain, whose staff comprises an officer for each of the seven districts into which Bavaria is divided. The captain will be responsible to the Government. He is Major George Escherich, who has just been appointed.

IN CAR WITH $2,500,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CRESTON, Iowa, Nov. 13.—A $2,500,000 gold robbery was prevented here last night when three men were dragged from a Burlington Railroad treasure car and placed in jail.

Railroaders say it was an attempt at the greatest railroad robbery ever undertaken. The gold shipment was en route from the mines of the West to the East and was in the shape of bars and bullion. It was in a blind baggage car immediately behind the engine. When the train reached Creston the express agent found the seal on the treasure car broken. He held the train and called the officers.

Plague in Constantinople; Red Cross Aids Red Crescent

GENEVA, Nov. 12.—The International Red Cross today received a telegram from Constantinople dated Nov. 9, stating that a plague had broken out in the Turkish capital, and asking for help.

The Red Cross officials immediately took steps to rush serum to the Red Crescent (the Turkish Red Cross) to fight the disease, which threatens the whole city and the Near East.

ALLIES TO TAKE UP PROBLEM OF RUSSIA

HAS NOT DEALT WITH REDS

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Premier Lloyd George declared in the House of Commons today that no person at any time, on his behalf or with his knowledge, had interviewed Bolshevist representatives in order to learn whether negotiations for peace might be opened, and upon what terms.

The Premier announced that he purposed to call at an early date an international conference at which the Ministers of the allied and associated powers might consider the various problems which the Peace Conference as yet had found itself unable to settle, among which was the problem of Russia.

Referring to the so-called peace advances by the Bolsheviki, Mr. Lloyd George said the Allies had always declined to take action on communications purporting to come from hostile countries through irresponsible agencies, and he thought it inadvisable to depart from this practice.

The Premier admitted that the Bolsheviki were rapidly approaching Omsk. Admiral Kolchak was still there, however, and the fate of the place would only be decided as the result of the battles that might be fought shortly in front of the city.

The Premier announced that John H. Mackinder, Member of the House of Commons for the Camlachie Division of Glasgow, had gone as a special Commissioner to open up trade and commerce with Southern Russia.

The settlement of the Russian problem, said the Premier, was most essential to the reconstruction of the world. The conditions in that country were a contributing cause to the prevailing high prices. Likewise the German reactionaries were already using the present strife in Russia to strengthen their influence.

Mr. Lloyd George detailed the difficulties of the position of General Denikin, (anti-Bolshevist leader on the Southwestern Russian front) declaring that General Denikin was holding with a small army a front of 1,300 miles with marauding bands in his rear—a territory of such vastness that Denikin was unable to administer it properly.

The Premier offered to give the House an opportunity on Monday next to discuss the Russian situation, but he pointed out the dangers of a public debate on such a delicate subject. Meanwhile he assured the members that the Government would not inaugurate a new policy or burden the country with any fresh commitments.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—There is to be no compromise with the Bolshevist Government in Russia by the United States and no movement is contemplated which could be considered as offering to confer with the Bolshevist element in that country, it was learned today at the State Department. Officials said there had been no exchange of notes between this Government and the British or any other Government concerning suggestions that a conference with the Bolsheviki be undertaken.

This country's attitude is the same now, it was said, as it was last year when Secretary Lansing appealed to the civilized nations of the world to declare the Bolsheviki outlaws. Emphasizing that there could be no compromise with the Bolsheviki, officials said, recent radical outbreaks in the United States were largely due to Bolshevist influence.

LENIN THREATENS INDIA.

Hints at Future Operations in Letter to Turkestan Reds.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Nicolai Lenin, the Russian Bolshevist Premier, has sent a letter to Turkestan Communists in which he says that the restoration of communications between Soviet Russia and Turkestan "opens the way for a struggle against universal imperialism headed by Great Britain."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—At a joint meeting of the Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress and the National Executive of the Labor Party, held tonight at the House of Commons, a resolution was adopted "welcoming the Prime Minister's statement at the Guildhall indicating that the Government would immediately withdraw the support now being given to the warfare carried on in Russia and seek to bring about peace in that country."

Another resolution deeply regretted the death of Haase and expressed the hope that "the German comrades will reunite their sundered forces for a renewal of the working class struggle against European reaction."

ATTEMPT TO KILL M. MANDEL

Crowd Assaults Clemenceau's Secretary and Shot is Fired.

BORDEAUX, Nov. 13.—An attempt was made early this morning to assassinate Georges Mandel, Premier Clemenceau's Chief Confidential Secretary, who is a candidate on the Nationalist ticket for the Department of Gironde.

As M. Mandel was entering his automobile after a public meeting his car was surrounded and he and his friends were assaulted with canes and sticks. A revolver shot was fired at M. Mandel, shattering the door of the automobile. He escaped unhurt. His chauffeur started the car at full speed to escape the crowd.

PREDICTS HAPSBURG RULE.

Hungary Will Become Monarchy, Asserts Czechoslovak Minister.

PRAGUE, Nov. 12.—The establishment of a Hapsburg monarchy in Hungary is inevitable, Dr. Eduard Benes, Czechoslovak Minister of Foreign Affairs, declared in an address here on the Peace Peace Treaty and the foreign policy of Czechoslovakia. Although he conceded the desirability of friendly relations with Hungary, he considered that the decisions of the Peace Conference should be final and that the present Czechoslovak frontiers should not be changed.

The Foreign Minister said the Government intended to maintain friendly relations with Poland, Jugoslavia, and Rumania.

YUDENITCH ARMY AGAIN ADVANCES

Northwestern Russian Government Still Hopes Petrograd Will Be Taken.

KOLCHAK LOSSES HEAVY

LETTS CAPTURE MORE GUNS

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 13, (Associated Press.)—A Northwestern Army communication, dated Tuesday, says:

"An advance is proceeding in the direction of Pskov.

"The Whites are progressing east of Gorstitsa, six villages having been captured.

"Prisoners and machine guns have been captured."

Officials of the Northwestern Russian Government still profess the belief that General Yudenitch will be able to resume his attack on Petrograd.

Finance Minister Margulies told The Associated Press correspondent today that the Government was working on a new plan, namely, a fresh campaign, with the help of Finnish and Esthonian recruits, the Allies to furnish the supplies and foot the bill for the operations. Repayment, the Minister asserted, would be guaranteed with flaxseed and other products of the region. The Government believes that Yudenitch could take Petrograd by Christmas.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Between Nov. 8 and 10, according to a Bolshevist wireless message received here, the Reds captured four entire regiments of Admiral Kolchak's troops and two divisional staffs. The message says all officers who refused to surrender were shot by their own soldiers.

OMSK, Nov. 6, (Associated Press.)—The evacuation of Omsk by the allied missions was carried out today according to program, all the trains departing from the Central Station at noon. The British representatives were the first to leave, followed by the American Consul General, Ernest Harris; the French mission, and the remainder of the Czech troops under command of Major Gen. Jules Janin. The Japanese representatives have announced their intention of remaining in Omsk temporarily.

The American Vice Consul, T. R. Hansen, remains at Omsk, enabling Mr. Harris to retain daily contact with the Kolchak Foreign Office and the situation generally from Novo Nikolaevsk, where he intends to remain temporarily.

On the train conveying Consul Harris were the last Americans in Omsk. They included the consular staff, Messrs. Haven Dewitt, Schaffer, Shaw, and Winters; Majors Martin, Eversole, and McDonald, and Drs. Sweet and Wat of the Red Cross; Investigator Tack of the United States Department of Agriculture and his assistant, Mr. Hamilton; Colonel Johnson, Major Maclearen, Major Parker, Captain Myers, Lieutenant Well, Lieutenant Jones, Lieutenant Brown, and Lieutenant Hennessey of the American Railway Mission, and Major Homer H. Slaughter, representative of Major Gen. William S. Graves, commander of the American forces in Siberia.

Their departure is not believed to denote any immediate danger to Omsk, which is quiet and orderly, with the Bolsheviki more than 100 miles away.

SAFETY FOR RED ENVOYS.

Esthonians Assure Bolsheviki of Immunity at Conference.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 13 (Associated Press).—Peace negotiations between the Esthonians and the Bolsheviki will begin Saturday, it was announced here today. The Lithuanians will not participate in the negotiations.

George Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Foreign Minister, sent a wireless message to M. Piip, Esthonian Foreign Minister, demanding guarantees of safety for the Bolshevist representatives to the conference. M. Piip replied, assuring Tchitcherin of safe conduct and immunity from arrest for the delegates.

SILENT ON POLISH SWEEP.

Berlin Papers Drop the Subject of the Upper Silesia Elections.

By GEORGE RENWICK.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—The local councils elections in Upper Silesia have so greatly alarmed and disappointed the Berlin press that it has thought it well to drop the subject almost entirely before the definite general result has been announced. Figures to hand do not furnish material for direct comparison between the strength of the Polish and German vote, but some correspondents on the spot declare the Poles won 75 per cent. of the seats in the rural districts and 40 per cent. of those in the towns. That means it is fair to assume that the Poles have obtained a majority of votes in the entire province.

The Majority Socialists suffered a smashing defeat and the Centre Party also has done badly.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—First reports on the municipal elections in Upper Silesia to reach Paris show the Poles obtained 75 per cent. of the votes cast and say that the Germans themselves admit defeat.

Polish organs express the hope that the Entente will consider the municipal elections, which were organized by the Germans, as final and that a plebiscite is now unnecessary, Polish opinion expressing itself in spite of what the newspapers term "unsatisfactory voting conditions."

PARIS, Nov. 13.—The elections recently held in Silesia were taken up today by the Supreme Council. A note to Germany was framed advising that country to disregard these elections.

CHARGES INSULT TO POPE.

ROME, Nov. 11.—The Catholic Committee here has lodged a complaint with the Crown Prosecutor against the newspaper Popolo Italia, edited by Professor Benito Mussolini, Socialist leader, alleging that an article written by Signor Resiati contained insults against the Pope.

The committee asks that the newspaper be tried according to the Law of Guarantees.

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

The New York Symphony Orchestra.

Mr. Damrosch made the program of the New York Symphony Society's concert in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon largely of French music called forth by the great war; the symphony was a new one by Vincent d'Indy, his third, and it was followed by a "Berceuse Héroique," by Debussy, "rendering homage to King Albert of Belgium and his soldiers." Besides these there was an orchestral piece by Dupare, "Aux Etoiles," marked "new," and played for the first time, and another by Joaquin Turina, marked in the same way. The soloist was Ossip Gabrilowitsch, who played Schumann's concerto for the piano.

D'Indy's symphony, which was first played in this country by the Boston Symphony Orchestra some three weeks ago, was composed in 1916-18 and performed in Paris last Spring. Its relation to the war is evident. Its sub-title is "Sinfonia brevis de Bello Gallico" or "a short symphony concerning the Gallic war." Themes in the first movement suggest the call to arms; there are marcn rhythms, a military character. Harsh bugle calls interrupt the course of the scherzo. In the slow movement a theme of "brutal ugliness" as Mr. Damrosch's analysis calls it, appears to typify the boche. There is a triumphant march movement in the last and piercing fanfares of high trumpet tones, the sounds of tumultuous rejoicing. There is an attempt to portray in music the anguish, the heroism of the French.

It would be hardly necessary to say of music by d'Indy that there is an evident intention to get beneath the more obvious and extraneous representations of war as they have conventionally appeared in music. He does not exult in "Battles of Prague" or "Wellington's Victories." Yet this symphony, as a product of the great convulsion which was expected to move creative artists to new flights, is disappointing. There are beauties in it, as the introduction, in which Mr. Damrosch sees the happiness of peace brooding over France; pages of the slow movement are deeply felt and emotionally expressive; the scherzo with its folksong character—and it does not seem always French—is enlivening. The last movement, notwithstanding its elaboration and its orchestral brilliancy, seems more commonplace; and, indeed, the composer has not avoided commonplace in more than one extended passage in even his more successful movements. There is much of the skilful and convincing craftsmanship that is to be expected in d'Indy's work. But there is also evidence that less of mature reflection, less of purely artistic concentration have gone into the making of this symphony than into other works of the composer's maturity. There are joints, dislocations in the musical thought. The music in places does not hang together unerringly in d'Indy's manner. The stress of emotion under which this symphony was composed can be appreciated, but it has not resulted in a work that will enhance the composer's reputation or that is worthy to rank with his best artistic production.

Debussy's "Berceuse Héroique," which must have been one of the last of his compositions, has little of the quality or significance that made his name. Here, too, the emotional intention has not found full expression in the musician's work. And in the Duparc of this piece, "Aux Etoiles," the Henri Duparc of the songs that stand so high in the music of the modern French school—the Duparc who we are told has been in retirement for a generation from unrest—it hardly seems likely, for the piece, pleasingly orchestrated, has little more to say than some salon composition of the better class. Nor has Turina, the French-educated Spaniard, much more to say in his musical description of "The Procession of Rocio." Both graze dangerously the commonplace.

D'Indy's symphony was played with brilliancy and after evidently careful preparation, in which Mr. Damrosch showed full sympathy with the work. There was much and long continued applause.

Mr. Gabrilowitsch gave an exquisitely finished performance of Schumann's concerto, somewhat on a miniature scale, with its proportions all unerringly adjusted to that scale; with a delicate poetical feeling, with an assured rhythmic impulse; a performance that gave much pleasure signified by several recalls given him by the audience.

The Philharmonic Society.

The Philharmonic Society began its seventy-eighth season last evening in Carnegie Hall before an audience that filled the hall and greeted Mr. Stransky warmly when he appeared. The orchestra showed no great changes in its appearance, except that the number of double basses has been increased from eight to ten. It is, as it has been, a company of excellent players, who must be made to accomplish excellent results.

The program last evening contained two novelties, a dirge for orchestra, "To the Fallen," by an American composer, Bernard Rogers, dedicated to those who gave their lives in the war, and a symphonic poem, "In the Tatra Mountains," played for the first time in this country, by Vitezslav Novak, a Czechoslovak composer of prominence in his native land. The symphony was the second of Brahms, and the concert closed with the prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg."

Mr. Rogers's piece conveys the spirit suggested by its title in an elegiac spirit, in a manner not without impressiveness. He shows the influence of Mr. Bloch, his master, in his style and the manner of treating his material. The work is short, and comes to reached an effective climax, with a contrasted close. It found a responsive chord in the hearts of the audience.

The symphonic poem by Novak is intended as a piece of nature painting, a storm in the Tatra Mountains of Bohemia, with the oppressive quiet preceding and the peaceful calm succeeding it. The music presents vivid effects, and the orchestration is rich and abundant in color, but the substance is hardly of strong originality or great significance in itself.

The performance of Brahms's symphony was such as Mr. Stransky has given in previous years, and exhibited strongly his limitations as a conductor. It was a dull performance of a work that is alive with grace, beauty and power; a performance that never sang, that lacked spirit and vitality of rhythm and that showed little comprehension of the delicate and subtle matter of balance between the orchestral voices. Mr. Stransky made modifications of tempo, some of them singularly unfortunate ones, at times even directly contradicting the composer's prescriptions. The adagio quite missed its effect and made correspondingly little impression on the audience.

TWO PIANISTS APPEAR.

Flora Zygman, who Makes Debut, and Carolyn C. Baldwin.

Two young women pianists appeared in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon and night, the débutante by daylight being recently a war refugee from Russia. A mere handful of people heard Flora Zygman's matinee; more should have done so, for the quiet girl showed a conjuror's power at the keyboard, a polychromatic technique in wholly unknown trifles of Szymanowski, Michalowski, Bortkiewiez. Miss Zygman won applause in a MacDowell polonaise, a vigorous theme and variations by Chévillard, melodious airs of Scarlatti and Rachmaninoff, and a Chopin group, in which last she found more than do most players of an influence from the barbaric, ancient East.

Though not a newcomer, Carolyn Cone Baldwin in last evening's Aeolian recital trod unfamiliar ground in presenting Debussy's "Terrace of Audiences by Moonlight," and a sonatine by Ravel, whose three movements included a charming minuet. Mrs. Baldwin was at her best in the tints and half-lights of modern harmonies, and hardly less so in Brahms's G-minor ballade and MacDowell's "Witches' Dance." With the pianists' battle-horse of Chopin's etuds Op. 25, she was not so fortunate; its cocksure swing, like a magic mirror, revealed not the heroic temperament, but a struggle of force. A "Funeral March" played with heavy blows that shook the player's form, and a glassy-clear cascade of notes that never once was "The Wind Over the Grave." There were other technical pieces of Busoni, Liadow, and Rubinstein.

HUGHES GETS NO FEE FOR TRANSIT INQUIRY

Acts as Counsel for Citizens' Committee as a Matter of Public Duty.

BEGINS ORGANIZING STAFF

Hylan Says Merchants' Association and Mr. Hughes Are in Sympathy with Utilities.

The work of getting together a staff of engineers and expert accountants was begun yesterday by Charles E. Hughes, counsel for the Citizens' Transit Committee, organized by the Merchants' Association, to supervise the inquiry into the traction situation in this city. No information came out of Mr. Hughes's office except the bald statement that the work of getting the facts for the public would begin as soon as the preliminary work, already under way, had been completed.

Mr. Hughes, according to a statement made by an official of the Merchants' Association, is to carry on the work without compensation, because he considers it an important civic duty. It was also said that Mr. Hughes had never consented to accept an annual retainer from any corporation, and that he had no interest, direct or through clients, in any of the city transportation companies.

In selecting the committee, it was said, the Merchants' Association was careful to exclude all those interested financially or otherwise in the companies, and that no member of the committee, consisting of 129 leading business and professional men, was more concerned in the traction situation than the humblest citizen.

This information concerning the committee was not in the form of an answer to a statement made by Mayor Hylan, in which he accused the association and its committee of acting solely in the interest of the traction companies, because the Mayor's statement had not yet reached the official of the association who supplied the information in reply to questions.

It was learned that the committee would engage offices for the use of Mr. Hughes and his assistants, and that it was expected that the inquiry would be long, running probably into the new year, and that it would be ready to furnish official committees and all others seeking precise information with the means of obtaining it. It was suggested that Mr. Hughes would be ready to supply Legislative Committees with any information needed by them in the consideration of measures seeking to clothe the Public Service Commission with authority to increase fares, and that if the information had not already been gathered that every effort would be made to obtain it.

The chief work of the accountants at the outset will be to digest and to put into easy reference form the mass of information obtained under oath and otherwise by the Public Service Commission, by the traction companies themselves, and by receivers.

The work under Mr. Hughes will be carried on in quasi judicial form with the backing of the Federal Court, and whatever assistance Judge Mayer, who named the receivers of the bankrupt lines, can give.

S. B. De Berard, Secretary of the Merchants' Association, explained that the committee created by the association was to act purely in the public interest and to the end that the people might continue to receive all of the advantages of the present transportation system and not be compelled to face the possibility of a complete breakdown of it.

The statement issued by Mayor Hylan was in response to a request for an expression of opinion and reads:

The Merchants' Association has always been and is now in sympathy with the public utility corporations. The object of the committee appointed by the Merchants' Association, called the Citizens' Traction Committee, is evidently to force public officials, if possible, to favor an increased fare. This committee should be called the "Interborough and B. R. T. Traction Committee," instead of the "Citizens' Traction Committee."

Understand that the desire of the Merchants' Association is to have the people get the impression that this committee is acting for the citizens of the city. Neither the Mayor nor the members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment have made any suggestions in regard to the appointment of such a committee.

The selection of Charles Evans Hughes by the Merchants' Association as chief counsel does not surprise me. He is very well versed in transit matters. Was it not Mr. Hughes who appeared at Albany during the last session of the Legislature and argued for the passage of the Carson-Martin bill, the purpose of which was to boost streetcar fares in the city? This is the same Mr. Hughes who, as referee in the gas case, recommended higher gas rates.

I had concluded that the traction crowd had resorted to almost every scheme that human ingenuity could devise, to drive, force, or coerce public officials to favor an increased fare, but this latest scheme, called the "Citizens' Traction Committee," is the greatest joke ever perpetrated upon the public.

In Honor of Frank L. Dowling.

A memorial meeting in honor of the late Borough President Frank L. Dowling will be held at Public School 33, 418 West Thirty-eighth Street, this evening, under the auspices of the Hudson Guild. Mayor John F. Hylan will make the principal address. Other speakers will be Peter F. McElligot, Assemblyman from the district; Father Thornton of St. Columba Church, and Dr. John L. Elliott, headworker of the Hudson Guild. Many of Mr. Dowling's associates will be present, and a church choir and a string quartet will render appropriate music.

Education Notes.

The School Boards of the Bronx are preparing a bill, which is to be introduced at the next session of the Legislature to create a board of appeals to review the findings of the Board of Examiners of the Department of Education. A draft of the proposed bill will be sent to the various school boards of the city, and the joint conference of local boards in City Hall early in December will discuss it with other important Department of Education matters.

The Washington Heights Evening High School, 145th Street, near Broadway, can register a few more men and women students in its accounting class, Tuesday and Friday, 8 to 10 P. M. The subjects covered, include all those required in the practice of accountancy. Registration any evening.

The Board of Education has refused to permit the collection of funds from school pupils to establish a free dental clinic in the public schools.

The Teachers' Welfare League has amended its constitution and by-laws so as to admit teachers from all parts of the city. It also has voted against the present test ratings of teachers.

The Julia Richman High School will hold a pageant at the 9th Coast Defense Armory, Fourteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, at 2 P. M., on Nov. 21.

A pageant will be given by the pupils of P. S. 76, Manhattan, at the 7th Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street, at 2 P. M., on Nov. 20.

Final action will be taken by the Board of Education on next Tuesday afternoon in placing the new salary schedules for teachers and employes.

By-laws have been adopted by the Board of Education, fixing the powers and duties of the Superintendent of plant operation. This has been done despite the statement by City Superintendent Ettinger that they were in conflict with his statutory powers.

$14,418,237 IS COST OF WIRES CONTROL

Burleson Reports Deficit of Telephone and Telegraph Services Under Wartime Operation

REPORT ON CABLES DELAYED

Apparent Loss Includes $3,000,000 to Settle Future Claims—Mackay Repudiates Alleged Debt.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—War time operation of the telephone, telegraph and cable systems of the country cost the Federal Government $14,418,237, according to a report of Postmaster General Burleson, transmitted to Congress today by President Wilson. This sum represents the difference between the net earnings of the companies taken over and the compensation guaranteed by the Government.

No figures as to the operation of the cable systems, which were under Federal control for six months, were given, Mr. Burleson explaining that the reports from the companies had not yet been received. Any profits from the operation of these companies would reduce the total Government deficit, Mr. Burleson said.

Total net earnings of the telephone and telegraph lines during Federal control were reported at $70,387,532, while the compensation assured was $83,036,769. The total deficit included an estimated $3,000,000 for settlement of future claims. Small independent companies operated by the Government reported a surplus of $57,428.

Reported deficits of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., operating thirty-six subsidiary companies, were $9,290,170.31, while the Western Union Telegraph Co. asked an adjustment of $921,511. The Ohio State Telephone Co. of Columbus, Ohio, operating four subsidiary companies, showed a deficit of $392,123.

"If the unadjusted claims of the Government against the Mackay companies be taken into consideration," said Mr. Burleson, "the estimated obligations of the Government would be substantially reduced."

Postal Refuses to Pay.

William J. Deegan, Secretary of the Mackay Companies' Postal Telegraph system, announced yesterday that the company would decline to pay to Postmaster General Burleson the $2,349,195.20 claimed by him, on the ground that it was earned by the company and rightfully belonged to it. He gave out a letter from Mr. Mackay to the Postmaster General, in which Mr. Mackay mentions the opinion of Charles Evans Hughes that the Government is not entitled to this amount. Mr. Deegan said:

When Mr. Burleson says that he has a claim against the Mackay Companies' Postal Telegraph system he means that while our lines actually earned $4,029,195 during the year of Federal control, he proposes that of that amount we shall be allowed to keep only $1,680,000, which he claims to have awarded us, and turn the balance over to him, in order that he may pay it over to our competitors, the Western Union Telegraph Company and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. To these latter companies he awarded over $10,000,000 more than their lines actually earned during the year of Federal control.

In other words, Mr. Burleson proposes that our $2,000,000 shall go to help make good the $10,000,000 excessive award made by him to the Western Union and American Telephone Companies, and the taxpayers are expected to put up the balance. Further comment on such a proposition is unnecessary. Congress will have something to say about that. All we ask is that we shall keep what our lines actually earned, not a dollar more or less, and we don't propose that any part of our earnings shall go to our competitors.

Mackay's Letter to Burleson.

Mr. Mackay's letter to Mr. Burleson follows:

New York, Nov. 12, 1919.

Dear Sir: I have your telegram of last Saturday, and I gather from it that you demand we send you a check for $2,349,195.20, this being the difference between the $4,029,195.20 which our company earned from Aug. 1, 1918, to Aug. 1, 1919, and $1,680,000, the award which you claim to have made us. We decline to send you a check for $2,349,195.20, for the following reasons:

1. Our counsel, Judge Hughes and Mr. Cook, have rendered an opinion that that money ($2,349,195.20) belongs to us.

2. Since that opinion was written you have divided telegraph and telephone companies into three classes, as follows: (a) Companies which have contracted with you as to compensation. You pay them in full. They have no grievance. (b) Companies to which no specific award has been made. You have allowed them the option of keeping all that they have actually made in their business. Of course, they have no grievance. (c) Companies the compensation to which has been fixed in a formal specific award by you, but refused by them. We presume you claim there is only one in this last class, namely, our company. This is a rank discrimination, and our counsel says that it is illegal. Counsel says we are entitled to the same treatment as all other companies which did not make a contract with you. We cannot legally be singled out for such unjust discrimination.

3. You have not yet announced the financial results of the contract with the Western Union, but we figure from Mr. Koon's testimony before the House committee that you have paid, or will pay, to the Western Union more than the Western Union has earned during the year of Federal control. You demand from us $2,349,195.20. Apparently you are short of funds to pay the Western Union, and you therefore demand $2,349,195.20 of our profits in order that you may pay them to the Western Union. This means that you wish to use our profits to pay Western Union losses. Our counsel says that this also is not legal.

Your action in increasing the telegraph rates by 20 per cent. was at the instance of and in the interest of the Western Union Telegraph Company. Up to April 1, 1919, the earnings of that company's lines while under your control were millions of dollars less than the compensation you had awarded them. When they earned after April 1, 1919, with the 20 per cent. increase in rates, we do not know. Certainly we do know that in order to recoup on your excessive award to them you increased the telegraph rates to the public by 20 per cent.

4. We would add that we have already spent this $2,349,195.20, or at least much the greater part of it, in stringing new wires and increasing our telegraph facilities throughout the country. This has been done in order to take care of the increase in our telegraph business by reason of our having cut off on Aug. 1, 1919, (the date when we got back our lines from you,) the 20 per cent. increase in the rates, which you inaugurated April 1, 1919, over our protest. On the other hand, the Western Union Telegraph Company is continuing up to this day to charge the public the 20 per cent. increased rates inaugurated by you.

5. The idea that any department of the Government can step in and take a man's property, and, without contributing a dollar of capital to or management of such property, demand that 58 per cent. of the profits of such property be turned over to the Government, is so preposterous as to be unbelievable in this country. But the outrage is made complete when a department of the Government proposes to turn over all or a part of this money of ours to our competitor, the Western Union Telegraph Company.

6. We understand that you allowed several thousands of telephone companies to retain what they earned. We are entitled to retain what we earned, and we intend to do so. Yours very truly,

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, President.

The following letter on the cable situation was made public yesterday:

New York, Nov. 10, 1919.

Dear Sir: In reply to your three letters to me as President of the Commercial Cable Company, Commercial Pacific Cable Company, and the Commercial Cable Company of Cuba, asking for a "settlement," you are aware that we deny that you ever took over the submarine cables legally, and we deny that you legally removed from office my associates and myself and placed in charge of our cables Mr. Newcomb Carlton, the President of our competitor, the Western Union Telegraph Company. The lower court decided against us, but this decision was reversed by the Supreme Court of the United States in the Commercial Cable Company v. Burleson, 250 U. S. 360, to which I refer you. Yours very truly,

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, President.

Sick-Lists are Unprofitable to the Man Who Pays Salaries

Right now, in your office, thousands of dangerous disease germs are probably assailing your health and that of your associates—attempting to find a susceptible spot through which to enter and cause serious contagious illness.

STOCKS RISE AGAIN IN STEADY MARKET

Securities Hard Hit in Wednesday's Slump Regain from 5 to 45 Points.

CALL MONEY AS LOW AS 6%

The stock market came back with a rush yesterday and securities which had fallen from 10 to more than 60 points Wednesday rallied in the late afternoon to figures which showed recoveries ranging all the way from 5 to 45 points from the low levels of the day before. The call money market displayed a much more stable condition, opening and renewing at 16 per cent., and holding at that rate until about 2:30 in the afternoon, when it declined rapidly to 6 per cent.

At the opening of the day's business on the Stock Exchange there was a degree of orderliness which was highly encouraging to brokers and their clients. Under the surface there was a good deal of nervousness, which was not dissipated until the afternoon, when the speculative fraternity, gathering courage from the fact that there were no further flurries in the money market, and rather pronounced enthusiasm when the rate fell to 6 per cent., took the bit in its teeth again and bid prices up rapidly.

The only time when anything even remotely resembling the previous day's demoralization occurred was about 11:30 o'clock, when the call money market renewed at 16 per cent., an advance of 2 per cent. over the renewal rate of Wednesday. For a brief period security prices fell, and in some cases the highly speculative issues sold at figures below the extreme lows of the preceding day. The decline was speedily checked, and thereafter there was a steady advance, until in the late afternoon the movement became rapid.

At the top of the afternoon advance General Motors, which had gone off 60 points Wednesday, was 45 points above the low of Wednesday, and Chandler Motors and Mexican Petroleum, which had lost 17¾ and 33½ points, respectively, Wednesday, had recovered about 30 points each. Texas Company, American Woolen, Associated Oil and Crucible Steel were all up 18 to 20 points on the day. The rest of the market regained anywhere from 5 to 10 points.

This rally was so aggressive that many conservative bankers, who were convinced that the movement to curb speculation was real, were inclined to regard it with disfavor. There were some predictions that further steps would have to be taken if the general speculative community refused to recognise the gravity of the credit situation and declined to refrain from further speculative commitments. What these steps might be were subjects for conjecture, but in responsible quarters it was assumed that something additional would be done.

The disposition to criticise the Reserve Bank officials for alleged "strong arm" methods in forcing a curtailment of speculative activity was generally frowned upon in representative banking quarters. It was pointed out that the great speculation had built up an untenable position and that it was necessary to end it. Most of the charges made against the Reserve Bank and Reserve Board officials were branded as twaddle by competent judges of the situation, who were in position to know exactly what had been going on.

The fall in money rates in the afternoon was ascribed to the fact that many brokerage houses, having been forced to reduce loans on previous days, and having greatly reduced the amounts of securities which they were carrying as a result, found that the latter reduction had somewhat outstripped the former. In consequence they were more plentifully supplied with funds than their requirements demanded.

After the final delivery hour, 2:15 o'clock, many of these firms sent in their surplus funds to be loaned to other brokers, and for a time there was more money than the demand called for, and rates accordingly broke.

In the early part of the day there was some withdrawal of funds sent here by interior banks to be loaned in the call money market. Ordinarily, high rates here attract funds from the interior, but the decline in prices Wednesday had been so precipitate that many of the interior lenders became frightened, and despite the high and attractive rates obtaining hurriedly withdrew their funds.

Yesterday this continued for a short time, but later money came from the West and the South, and this, added to the greatly reduced demands of brokers, caused the apparent ease in money market conditions. Bankers last night pointed out that the ease was only apparent, and it could be changed into great stringency again at short notice.

DRAWS LESSON FROM SLUMP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 14.—The Daily Chronicle's City editor, writing on Wall Street's slump, says:

"To some extent, of course, it was a factor in depression in London markets yesterday, but only a secondary influence, in spite of the fact that owing to the war New York is a much more important financial centre than it was some years ago.

"It will be remembered, that during the war, in response to the wishes of the Government, most of the securities held in this country in which Wall Street was interested were sent across the Atlantic, either to be sold for cash or to be lodged as security for loans to assist in meeting our enormous obligations to the United States for munitions and foodstuffs. Consequently, there is now practically no American market on this side, and it will be some time before this department of the Stock Exchange is re-established.

"The New York slump, therefore, has less effect than formerly on prices of securities over here. The happenings in Wall Street provided ample justification for the Bank of England's decision to raise the bank rate last week. Those who have been speculating so wildly in this country, especially in oil shares, must realize that one of the objects of the establishment of dearer money is to check this reckless gambling. It may be necessary to put the rate up still higher, and it was this possibility that was the chief cause of depression on the London Stock Exchange today.

"So far, bankers in this country have not found it necessary to restrict credit facilities on any very considerable scale, but there is always the possibility that they may do so, and Wall Street provides us with its full object lesson of the after-effects of speculation run riot."

TOLEDO CARLESS 30 DAYS.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 13.—There is little possibility of this city enjoying street car service again for at least thirty days. This was intimated by Henry L. Doherty this afternoon before Mayor Cornell Schreiber, other city officials, and members of the Committee of Council on Franchises, Railroads, and Telegraph.

Doherty said he would summon from New York at once his attorney, Judge J. C. Bailey, who would confer with Ralph Emery, City Law Director, on two tentative franchise drafts now in the hands of the Mayor, one based on the service-at-cost plus a reasonable return plan, and one for municipal ownership. Doherty asked that the cost plus plan, which is a modification of the Taylor plan, be considered first. He asked that after it is drawn up by the City Law Director and his own representative it be submitted to Council, and if it be adopted by the latter with organized labor concurring, that the measure then be voted upon by the people. Then if it were turned down, he said, he was ready to sell the cars, rails, and other equipment to the city.

In the meantime, however, Doherty said he would not attempt to operate the street cars as he had no legal right to do so.

Retail merchants are becoming alarmed at conditions. Many of them were present at the conference.

MERCY TO BRIDE-ELECT.

Girl Who Stole Jewel Permitted to Plead to Lesser Crime.

Because she was soon to be married Mary Margolis, 16 years old, of 4 Scudder Street, Jamaica, was allowed to plead guilty to petty instead of grand larceny in the Queens County Court yesterday. In May last while employed by Mrs. Adeline Hayes of 60 Orchid Street, Jamaica, she stole a lavalliere belonging to a visitor at the house. The latter as a safeguard slept with the jewel about her neck. One morning she awoke and found it missing. Later detectives found it in the girl's room at her home.

When Miss Margolis came to court yesterday she was accompanied by her mother and Joseph Prush, her intended husband. After she had made her plea her attorney asked Justice Humphrey not to commit her to jail pending the passing of sentence on Monday. The Judge paroled her in the custody of her attorney.

After leaving the courtroom the pair went to the Marriage License Bureau and obtained a license to wed. The marriage is to take place on Sunday.

In Aid of Institutional Synagogue.

A vaudeville program will be given at the Manhattan Opera House on Sunday night, Nov. 23, in aid of the building fund of the Institutional Synagogue at 112 West 116th Street. Barney Bernard will be master of ceremonies.

WOMEN TO SERVE MILK TO THE NEEDY

PURE PRODUCT AT COST

Milk Centres to be Established Throughout Country—Will Aid Children Abroad.

A movement has been started by many prominent women in New York City to launch a milk campaign with the object of establishing milk centres in every city of the United States where pure milk of the highest grade will be provided at a nominal price for those whose needs are legitimate. Realizing the acute crisis in the milk situation which has affected the health of thousands of children in this country, this movement was started in an effort to meet and cope with this stringent situation.

This campaign will be known as the Blue Bird Campaign for Happiness, and will be opened at the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday evening, Dec. 27, by the world's first performance of the new opera founded on Maeterlinck's famous fairy tale, the "Blue Bird," the music of which has been composed by Albert Wolff, the eminent French composer and conductor.

Miss Elisabeth Marbury, who recently returned from war work overseas, is Acting Chairman for the Milk Committee, and arrangements have been completed by which this new organization will receive one-third of the proceeds of the "Blue Bird" performances. One-third of the proceeds will be given to the Queen of Belgium Fund for Belgian Children, and another one-third will be given to the Millerand Fund for French Children.

It is proposed to make this campaign a universal movement, and it is hoped the work will spread all over the world. Welfare organizations are invited to establish chapters of this organization. Milk centres will be established in cities throughout the United States with headquarters in New York City. Any organizations in sympathy with this movement desirous of having a Blue Bird Chapter are requested to make immediate application to the headquarters of the Blue Bird Campaign for Happiness at 501 Fifth Avenue.

Miss Julia Arthur.

It was announced yesterday that the campaign would distribute milk among the needy before Thanksgiving Day.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, said yesterday that the man who had offered on Wednesday to finance a distributing company to dispense milk in this city, had visited him again yesterday and offered to raise $15,000,000 if that amount was needed to make the business a success.

"I had a meeting today," said the Commissioner, "with a large delegation of grocers to ascertain if it is possible that milk could be handled exclusively through the grocers. They were enthusiastic in their desire to assist in bringing about a reduction in the price of milk.

"I think that milk could be distributed through the grocers by two different methods. First by sales to what is known as the cash-and-carry customer, and, second, by the grocer delivering the milk to the customer who desires it left at his door."

MORAN GAINS 11 VOTES.

County Boards of Canvassers Continue Official Tabulation.

Members of the Board of Aldermen, constituted as County Boards of Canvassers for the various counties within the city to officially tabulate the votes cast at the recent election, continued their work yesterday, but no material changes were shown from the unofficial figures given out election night.

Owing to an error in the compilation of figures on Wednesday, a gain of eighteen votes in the Thirteenth Assembly District of Manhattan was credited to F. H. La Guardia, Republican candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen. Mr. La Guardia gained but two votes in the district, and the gain of three votes yesterday by Robert L. Moran, the Democratic candidate, in the Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh Assembly Districts of Manhattan, has given the latter a net gain of eleven votes so far.

The Committee on Protest appointed on Wednesday by Alderman John F. McCourt, Chairman of the Manhattan Board of Canvassers, will take up today the tabulation of the vote cast in the Fourth Assembly District, Manhattan, which was badly tangled as the result of errors by election inspectors. The Board of Inspectors will be reconvened, and an effort made to get a complete canvass without resorting to an application for an order from the Supreme Court to open the ballot boxes and recount the votes.

ASSAILS TAX METHODS.

Tanzer Says Personal Property is Illegally Assessed.

Laurence A. Tanzer has made a report to the Merchants' Association in which he holds that the present procedure of the city authorities in assessing personal property is illegal. The report says:

"Individuals and estates subject to individual income tax are entitled to exemption from personal property tax on money, on deposit or at interest, bonds, notes, and choses in action and shares of stock in corporations other than banks and banking associations owned by them from which any income is derived.

"Individuals are entitled to the deduction of their just debts not contracted or incurred in the purchase of nontaxable property or securities, nor for or on account of any indirect liability, as surety, guarantor, or indorser or otherwise, nor for or on account of any debt or liability contracted or incurred for the purpose of evading taxation, irrespective of whether the debts to be deducted bear interest or not.

"Foreign corporations taxable under Article 9-A are exempt from personal property tax assessment.

"All persons aggrieved by illegal or erroneous assessments should make application for their correction on or before Nov. 30."

CHARGE CRAIG TRIED TO INTIMIDATE COURT

Charging that Controller Charles L. Craig had attempted to "intimidate the court in the exercise of its lawful functions," United States Attorney Francis G. Caffey filed in the Federal District Court yesterday an "information" charging the Controller with contempt of court. The investigation by Mr. Caffey was made in compliance with an order made more than a month ago by Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer, who, through receivers, is managing the affairs of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, the New York City Railways, and other traction corporations.

The date of the hearing at which Mr. Craig will be required to answer the information prepared by Assistant United States Attorney Ben A. Matthews will be arranged for after the Controller has had time to confer with his counsel.

The basis of the proceedings is a letter Controller Craig wrote on Oct. 6 to Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon. The contempt, according to the information, occurred when the Controller gave out for publication in the newspapers copies of his letter to Mr. Nixon. The letter, it was said, stated that the Federal Court was responsible for a policy of denying him and other member of the Board of Estimate access to original sources of information concerning the property and various affairs of the public utility corporations in the hands of receivers appointed by the court and holding franchises to operate in New York City.

It is denied in the document filed that the Federal Court adopted such a policy. On the contrary, it is affirmed that the court afforded the Controller and all members of the Board of Estimate access to original sources of information concerning the affairs of the companies and directed that the city officials should have access to such information.

"The said letter, as well as the publication thereof," the information continued, "tended and was calculated and intended by the defendant to influence the Federal Court in its consideration of the suits and proceedings pending when said letter was written, delivered and published, and still pending in this court; to intimidate the court in the exercise of its lawful functions; to force and compel the court to decide applications, questions and issues in such suits and proceedings in accordance with the views and wishes of the defendant; to threaten the court with and to incite to public ridicule, scorn and condemnation of it, if its decisions were contrary to or at variance with such views and wishes of the defendant; to misrepresent this court's actions and its reasons for acting as it had acted and was acting in said suits and proceedings; to obstruct the enforcement of this court's orders therein; to incite and cause public disregard of and resistance to such orders; to bring this court into public condemnation, obloquy, odium, scorn and contempt, and to obstruct and impede the administration of justice in said suits and proceedings, and in all other actions, suits and proceedings in this court against the peace of the United States and their dignity and contrary to the form of the statute of the United States in such cases made and provided and in contempt of this court."

In the letter, it was stated in the information, an order of the court stood between the public and the truth. Mr. Caffey said that no order that the Federal Court had made had or could have such effect, but that on the contrary every order in the traction suits was designed to place the public in possession of the truth and that prior to the writing of the letter the court expressly ordered and directed that every facility be afforded to public officials and to citizens' associations to satisfy themselves in respect of the financial and other conditions existing in relation to the traction corporations in charge of receivers.

The information asserted that these statements of the Controller's were "false and were known by the defendant to be false and were made in reckless disregard of the truth."

Musical Stars Delayed on Ocean.

Three musical stars who were to have appeared in New York next week have been delayed by difficulties of ocean transport, the new Russian pianist, Benno Moiseiwitsch, having been forced to cancel his American début with the Philharmonic a week hence. He will appear in recital when he does arrive. Mme. Tetrazzini cabled from England that, owing to the coal strike, the Mauretania's sailing had been postponed from Nov. 10 to 18, so that the Italian prima donna's first concert here cannot take place as announced on Nov. 23.

Guiomar Novaes, the Brazilian pianist, has just sailed from South America after waiting three weeks for a steamer and her reappearances have thus been put off until later in the season.

ORGANIZE RUSSIAN RELIEF.

American Central Committee Elects Charles W. Eliot President.

Organization of the American Central Committee for Russian Relief was effected at the meeting at the Buckingham Hotel yesterday with the election of Charles W. Eliot, President-Emeritus of Harvard University, as its first President. Its purpose is to co-ordinate the collection of funds and the shipping of food, clothing, and other necessities to the stricken people of Russia.

The Central Committee will superintend the workings of local committees to be formed in all parts of the country, it was announced. Chicago, Pittsburgh, and Boston already have one local committee each.

Elihu Root presided at the organization meeting yesterday. He declared that political and other circumstances which during the war prevented much assistance being given to the Russian people have been removed.

Mr. Root was elected a Vice President of the organization. Samuel Gompers, Dr. John R. Mott, and Silas H. McCormick of Chicago also were made Vice Presidents. Samuel McRoberts was elected Treasurer and Montgomery Schuyler, Secretary. Princess Julia Cantacuzene Speransky was given the chairmanship of the Board of Directors, which includes all civilian members of the Root mission to Russia, and prominent Russians in this country.

The incorporators and Directors are: Samuel Bertron, Miss Boulmistrow, Charles R. Crane, Charles Dawes, Henry De Bach, James Duncan, David R. Francis, Alexander J. Hemphill, Otto H. Kahn, Herman Kohlsaat, Cyrus McCormick, Samuel Gompers, Harold F. McCormick, Samuel McRoberts, Dr. John R. Mott, Honore Palmer, Potter Palmer, Harold I. Pratt, Mrs. T. J. Oakley Rhinelander, Mrs. William Rockhill, Elihu Root, Charles E. Russell, Charles H. Sabin, Montgomery Schuyler, James A. Stillman, Robert Winsor, and Elihu Root, Jr.

WARDEN BROPHY RESIGNS.

Asks Leave to Quit Sing Sing Post After Seven Months.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Nov. 13.—Edward V. Brophy, for the last seven months Agent and Warden of Sing Sing, sent his resignation today to Charles F. Rattigan, Superintendent of Prisons. In the letter the Warden said he found the position uncongenial and that he planned to serve the State in a more agreeable capacity.

Mr. Brophy denied that friends of convicts had complained that prisoners had been harshly treated by some of his subordinates. He said he had found the Warden's job a trying task and wearing on his nerves. He added that he did not like the idea of rearing his three young daughters amid prison surroundings.

Mr. Brophy's successor has not been determined upon.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ....5¼ per cent. for the best names.
Wednesday ....5¼ per cent. for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Motor Hose Proves Popular.

Motor hose, produced by a woolen manufacturer whose plant manufactures clothing and knit goods from wool he grows himself, has proved quite popular. It was introduced some months ago and was designed to take the place of overshoes or overgaiters. The hose has a half sole of rubber and a hole through which the heel of the slipper is slipped. Style is added to comfort by placing a seam over the instep. The hose comes in a number of heather shades and other colors.

Perhaps a Strike Record.

Five strikes in one week make what one woolen house represented in the local market thinks is a record. When the troubles were considered over for the week, the employes in one of the departments of the mill met on Sunday and decided on a further demand. This, it turned out, was to have an absent worker's pay shared by the other operatives in the department. In support of this demand the workers declared that it was necessary for them to take care of the absentee's machine.

Investigating Jobbers' Figures.

Agents from the Revenue Department of the Government are busy, it was learned yesterday, in checking up figures submitted by the woolen and dress goods jobbers in their income returns for last year. The checking is done by having the selling agents for the mills produce orders taken from the jobbers last year. The revenue officers stated in some cases that they have discovered mistakes which would indicate the jobbers had put too low a value on the stocks which they were carrying last December. This would have the effect, it was explained, of reducing profits.

Speaker for Woolen Banquet.

Mr. Dwight Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co. has consented to speak at the dinner of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers which takes place at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel on the evening of Dec. 4. The dinner will follow the annual meeting of the association on the afternoon of the same day. Frederick Nixon is Chairman of the Banquet Committee, which also includes Robert Francis, Richard Strong, and W. H. Duval. The Board of Directors of the association will meet on the evening of Dec. 3, to pass on reports, which will be presented at the general membership meeting the next day.

Ribbons Advance in Price.

The increased cost of raw silk has made it necessary for the ribbon manufacturers to advance their prices from 10 to 15 per cent. The new quotations will affect filling in orders for the present season and early Spring business that is now being taken. The loss of activity in the broad silk branch of the silk trade has not been reflected in the ribbon demand which, it was stated yesterday, continues to be very brisk. Manufacturers are cautious over operations too far into the future, and all orders except those calling for near delivery are received "at value." The demand is widely distributed over practically all goods.

The current bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America quotes a local buyer as authority for the assertion that there is a splendid opening in this city for a "real" resident buyer of millinery. This buyer, the bulletin says, suggested that some one ought to start in the business, carrying in his office samples from manufacturers, so that a buyer could see the best items of all lines at the same price. Not even the biggest local buyers know the market thoroughly, the man who makes the suggestion asserts, and what the buyer for one store sees the buyer for another one does not, and vice versa. A resident buyer of the type suggested, he says, would therefore be of real service to the stores that patronized him.

Gray Goods Sellers Steadier.

The partial recovery of the stock and cotton markets yesterday from the sharp breaks on Wednesday had the effect of steadying things considerably in the market for gray goods here. While some second hands rushed into the open with goods for sale at concessions, first hands largely "stood pat," and the business done for the day was not large. Printcloths got most of the attention, sheetings being stronger in tone than they. In the fine-yarn cloths and clothing styles hardly a ripple was raised by Wednesday's excitement, largely due to the scarcity of the goods for nearby delivery. In the business written yesterday, practically all of which was done on goods for delivery during this month and next, were sales by second hands of 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths at 18½ cents, 60-48s in that width at 15¾ cents, and 39-inch 68-72s at 22½ cents.

Deliveries Not Actually Late.

Lateness of deliveries of Fall lines of women's fine silk hose, it was said here yesterday, really consists less of inability to fill orders before the season actually closes than it does of being unable to fill them at the date—Nov. 15—which custom has made the final one for the shipment of Fall goods. One of the big producers of this merchandise, on the Nov. 15 delivery basis of calculation, is now from 12,000 to 15,000 dozen pairs behind, but by Dec. 15, unless something now unforseen comes up, all of them will have been shipped. It is understood that in the future certain manufacturers, in booking orders, are to make Dec. 31 and June 30 the final dates specified for Fall and Spring shipments, instead of Nov. 15 and May 15, as has been the case for many years. The new arrangement, it is said, will have several all-around advantages.

To Reduce Credit Frauds.

Considerable attention is being given these days in local wholesale circles to the checking of credits of individuals or firms placing their first orders. Not only is this due to the need of careful work in this direction to reduce the possibility of loss through failures resulting from any sudden breaks in merchandise prices, but also to cut down the losses sustained through selling merchandise to persons or concerns who order it with fraudulent intent. According to data in possession of the National Association of Credit Men, from 11 to 12 per cent. of the total losses now sustained from bad accounts arises from those opened for purposes of fraud. The association's records also show that one "merchant" successfully swindled wholesalers to the extent of about $40,000 a year for eight years, until finally caught. It is to prevent similar occurrences, as well as others that are less serious, that the "new business" credits are being carefully scrutinized.

Raw Silks Steady to Firmer.

The Yokohama raw silk market continues very firm, with prices held on the basis of 2,820 yen for Sinshiu No. 1. Transactions are small, but holders are not disposed to listen to any talk of concessions. They are strengthened in this attitude by the fact that the filatures will close for the Winter on Dec. 15, which will greatly curtail arrivals, while available stocks are hardly more than half of what they were at this time last year. The Canton market is advancing rapidly on large orders from the United States for new style reelings, the production of which is placed at about 5,000 bales for the season and the most of which has already been disposed of. Prices in that market are from 50 to 75 cents a pound higher than in this city, and an extraordinary advance in silver exchange points to still higher lay-down costs. Shanghai and Milan are also advancing under active buying, according to reports received here by H. L. Gwalter & Co. The local market, too, is active and advancing.

WON'T PAY FOR SHIPYARDS.

Shipping Board Rules Against Compensation for Wooden Vessel Plants.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—No compensation on account of the cost of plants set up to build wooden ships for the Government during the war will be allowed under a ruling by Chairman Payne of the Shipping Board. "There is no question," said Mr. Payne's ruling, "as to our right or obligation to pay the contract obligation and such damages as result from the cancellation of contracts for ships, but beyond this it does not seem we have the right to go."

Sixteen ships, totaling 92,673 deadweight tons, were delivered to the Shipping Board by the Emergency Fleet Corporation in the first ten days of November. Fourteen are of steel and two of wood. Construction for October was 113 ships, with a deadweight tonnage of 573,933, making the total construction to Nov. 10, 1,[illegible] vessels, aggregating 8,773,006 deadweight tons.

BUSINESS NOTES.

William C. Hoeltzer, representative of the Dry Goods Union, 424 Fourth Avenue, has added the accounts of Goddard Brothers of Lynn, Mass., and S. Lipinsky, Sons & Co. of Asheville and Wilmington, N. C. Mr. Hoeltzer has been succeeded as ready-to-wear buyer for the union by Gerard Bens.

The Hargood Ribbon Company is now located in its new building at 110 Lexington Avenue, between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth Streets.

An important meeting of the Vat Dye Committee of the National Association of Shirt Manufacturers, of which Ralph Hunter of E. & R. Hartwell & Co., is Chairman, will be held on Wednesday next at the offices of the association, 320 Broadway, at 2:30 P. M. The most important question to come up for discussion will be how to obtain adequate supplies of vat dyes at the earliest possible moment. It is expected that the Longworth bill, which provides for the licensing of imports of German dyes, will also be discussed in detail.

USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

EXPERTS are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much whether you should buy now, as it is that you use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a list of diversified investments, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to type and geographical location as closely as possible.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Decline of Call Money to 6 Per Cent. Brings Sharp Rally in Stocks.

High call money rates in the morning and a decline to a normal quotation in the afternoon worked to bring about yesterday sharply divergent price movements in stocks. After opening somewhat above the final levels of Wednesday, the industrial issues were pressed down under heavy selling after announcement that call loans were being renewed at 18 per cent., the maximum quotation of the year. A number of new low records were established for the movement before noon, and up to 2 o'clock the price tendency was not clearly defined. Thereafter the inflow of a tremendous aggregate of buying orders caused recoveries which struck an average of 4 to 6 points among the general run of industrial stocks and reached as far as 40 points in General Motors, the most spectacular performer in the preceding day's decline. The direct cause of this buying, which was largely in the way of short covering, was the quick decline of the call loan rate from 18 to 12, then to 10, and finally to 6 per cent. The stock market closed with the most boisterous stocks at or near their best quotations. The turnover was unusually heavy, exceeding 2,200,000 shares.

The fall of money rates to 6 per cent., compared with 30 per cent. at the same hour the day before, presented once more an amazing illustration of the erratic way the cost of temporary bank accommodation can leap about in periods of money stringency. In the morning the fairly scanty offerings seemed to come from local banks, and it was rumored that out-of-town institutions, although attracted by Wednesday's extraordinary interest quotations, were holding aloof until they got a line on what the appraisal of stocks used as collateral would be in yesterday's dealings. Such severe declines as those of Wednesday were of the sort to make lenders on securities study the market situation before taking a chance with their money. Offerings were relatively scarce until, it was estimated, more than 75 per cent. of the day's requirements had been filled. The expansion of offerings late in the stock market session seemed to come mainly from Stock Exchange firms which had large balances as the result of the recent liquidation of speculative accounts and moved to get the funds out at interest over night.

A rise of prices after the previous session's drastic decline was more or less expected in the morning. When the market becomes unsettled short sellers take advantage of the opportunity offered for profits by selling stocks they do not own with the purpose of covering these commitments later. The abrupt upturn after call money eased off was evidently the product in great part of short covering, and for that reason the day's business hardly afforded material for judging price developments in the next few days. In banking quarters the opinion still prevailed that money supplies would continue to be scant for some time to come. In direct events the day brought nothing new in respect to the credit outlook. The visit of Governor Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank in Washington was construed as bearing upon procedure to be followed by the Federal Reserve officials and bankers in meeting the present situation of low reserves at the Government institutions and of heavy loan accounts among the banks.

The Liberty bond market rallied along with stocks, after showing an unsteady front early in the day. Italian exchange recovered about half of the distance lost on Wednesday, and other exchanges were steady.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Brisk Recovery.

The last half hour of trading yesterday saw a rapid recovery in stock market prices. This was the second occasion to such a violent break as that of Wednesday, but the return was directly attributable to a 6 per cent. call money rate which was announced at 2:30. There had been some recovery before that, but under the stimulus of a money rate such as the Exchange has not known for several days the advance gathered speed, and before the close the gains amounted to from 2 to 40 points. The early morning saw a recovery in many stocks with the opening well above the previous close, but they declined sharply when the renewal rate on money came out at 18 per cent., the highest that has obtained this year. On Wednesday renewals were made at 14 per cent.

Shorts Hurry to Cover.

Covering by the shorts was largely responsible for the rapid upturn in prices, or at least that was what started the forward demonstration. A low money rate was decidedly disconcerting, and there was a rush to buy in stocks, which moved prices forward rapidly in view of the oversold position of the professionals. From this quarter had come a heavy volume of selling when the market crashed on Wednesday. Aside from the short covering, however, there was some good buying reported by the large speculators who had sold out well above the prevailing quotations.

Specialties Recover.

Many of the specialties profited by the upturn. These stocks were heavily hit in the smash of the preceding day by the fact that the market for some of them practically disappeared, and sales had to be negotiated as a big sacrifice. Yesterday with a quieter mood prevailing this class of stocks was in a better position and substantial gains were recorded. Kelsey Wheel, for example, sold up more than 14 points.

Saving Railroad Equipment.

While rumors have been circulated for some weeks that as soon as the railroads were returned to private operation large orders would be placed with the equipment companies, attention was called yesterday to the fact that such buying would probably be curtailed considerably because production costs are so high. A large part of the equipment owned by the roads is now on foreign lines and much of it is in poor condition. At first glance this would indicate that many cars would be scrapped in 1920, but conservative railroad men say it will cost less to repair rundown equipment than to buy new, and assert as well that when the bulk of the equipment is returned to home roads the repair costs will be materially decreased.

Rails Turn About, Too.

While the volume of business done in the rails yesterday was not so heavy in the more active issues as in the preceding session, most of the standard rails regained a fair share of their Wednesday losses, some issues even advancing above Tuesday's closing prices. In the case of one or two roads which run through districts far from New York, it was apparent that overnight selling orders sent into the wire houses contributed to bring about fractional declines. All through the demoralization in the market on Wednesday Pennsylvania held firm. Yesterday, on an increased turnover, the stock yielded fractionally, but attracted little attention as the range was no more than is usual.

Cheering the Turn.

When the market started to turn upward yesterday afternoon brokers on the floor gave evidence of their relief by bursts of cheering which went from post to post. In spite of the fact that the total sales ran well over the 2,000,000 mark and the volume of business was sufficient to keep all of the active floor members on the jump, few of them were too busy to snatch a moment to pass the good word about.

United States Steel Gains.

United States Steel, which was a tower of strength on Wednesday, closed yesterday at 106½, with a net gain of better than 2 points. The action of Steel has indicated the strong position in which this issue stands. It has been mentioned many times that Steel, even at present prices, has not enjoyed a gain of anywhere near the proportions in other stocks, which has naturally made it less vulnerable to attack. Furthermore, it is realized that the steel industry is facing big business as soon as production can be attuned to meet the demands. This has caused the passing of Steel stock into strong hands with only a small speculative following. Recent figures have shown that while the Steel stockholders have decreased this year, the brokerage holdings have also decreased, which tends to show that the stock has been under accumulation by large stockholders.

General Motors Rebounds.

Just as General Motors had led the decline on Wednesday so it was foremost in the advance yesterday, the gain amounting to 40 points. Below 300 General Motors looked cheap to many speculators, and there was a fair volume of buying all during the afternoon at advancing prices. When the money rate eased to 6 per cent. there was a rapid gain. Crucible was another strong issue among the high-priced stocks. This was one of the stocks which suffered little by comparison with the losses elsewhere during Wednesday. In the case of Baldwin Locomotive the turnover yesterday amounted to nearly one-half of the common capital stock outstanding. This issue also advanced substantially from its low for the day under the influence of short covering.

A Record Market.

With regard to the number of stocks traded in yesterday's market assumed record proportions. There were transactions in 334 issues, which compares with a previous high record of 329 made last Tuesday.

Today's Renewal Rate.

Undoubtedly one of the things which will be watched for most eagerly today will be the renewal rate for call money. Today, being Friday, there will be three days charges in the rate, for call money borrowed today will carry over until Monday. That in itself is a factor to make the rate interesting. Then, in addition, it was reported in the financial district last night that some of the interests intent upon curbing stock speculation were not at all pleased with the evidences of renewed speculative buying yesterday, especially in the last half hour. That is an influence which should make for a fairly stiff renewal rate today, and if it should happen that today's market, in the first hour and a half which it will consume before the call market opens, should show a continuance of the undesirable speculative activity on the long side, there will be added reason for expecting a stiff rate. Yesterday money renewed at 18 per cent. and then, after Hammond's Time, broke to 6 per cent. But there were very few in Wall Street last night who expected a renewal rate today anywhere near the 6 per cent. of yesterday's closing.

The Bank of England.

Of considerable interest to observers on this side of the Atlantic was the Bank of England's weekly display, cabled over yesterday. The advance in the minimum rate of discount last week apparently had some effect, for the loans of the joint stock banks showed a decrease of £6,870,000, even though Government loans were off £3,711,000. Ordinarily, these two accounts move in opposite directions. Then the "private deposits," which are the balances of the joint stock banks, were down £6,803,000, and Government deposits were up £2,330,000. What was considered of even more importance, however, was the fact that the bank rate, contrary to advices received here a day or so ago, was not altered.

Many Good Investments

During the past five months there have been a large number of exceptionally strong securities offered to the public. The difficulty has been not to select good investments, but to choose those that are the best from every point of view. Preferred stocks have been particularly popular and we would like to suggest consideration of two which yield an unusually liberal return, are amply protected, and have excellent markets.

Government Bonds

Investors may purchase foreign Government Bonds, principal and interest of which are payable in dollars in this country; or bonds whose principal and interest are payable in the currency of their respective countries. Due to present foreign exchange conditions, purchasers of the internal loans are offered considerable speculative possibilities. It is an opportunity that should be taken advantage of.

EXPECT RAILROADS' RETURN THIS YEAR

Railway Men to Discuss Car Accounting When Federal Control Ceases.

MEET TUESDAY IN CHICAGO

Executives and American Railway Association Representatives May Revise Present System.

It was learned in the financial district yesterday that a special committee of the Association of Railway Executives will confer with representatives of the American Railway Association in Chicago on Tuesday, regarding the question of car accounting, when Federal control ceases. While it is not expected that the conference will result in any immediate conclusions, the meeting is considered of considerable importance as a definite indication that corporate managers of the railroads believe that their properties will be turned back to them at the end of the year.

Among those who will attend the conference for the Association of Railway Executives are J. H. Hustis, temporary receiver of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company; Julius Kruttschnitt, President of the Southern Pacific Company; A. H. Smith, President of the New York Central; W. H. Finley, President of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company; C. H. Markham, President of the Illinois Central; E. N. Brown, Chairman and President of the Pere Marquette Railway Company, and W. W. Atterbury, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Under the terms of the contract between the Government and the railroads provision was made for a report at specified times by Federal managers regarding equipment. This has not been done in many instances and it is expected that the outcome of the meeting in Chicago will be the revision of the per diem car accounting rules as they existed when the carriers were taken over by the Administration at the close of 1917. It is presumed that the new car service rules which will have to be framed, will be based on the old system but on a different scale.

It is known that the percentage of equipment now on home roads throughout the country is far below normal, and it is expected that the Executive Committee will ask members of the American Railway Association for suggestions as to how the present situation may best be adjusted. It is most desirable, according to operators, that equipment be returned to home roads as soon as possible because of the fact that home shops can repair such cars at less cost than the same work can be done in foreign roads.

CRITICISES RAILROAD BILL.

Nathan L. Amster Says Senate Measure Endangers Rates.

Nathan L. Amster, head of the Citizens National Railroads League, who has just returned from Washington, said yesterday that he found in legislative circles an insistence that constructive railroad legislation shall be enacted at the earliest possible moment to definitely settle the railroad problem of the country, and that half-way legislation is not favored. He also took exception to Senate Bill 641, which amends Section 10 of the Federal Control act, which is now before the President for his approval.

"This bill," said Mr. Amster, "carries with it the element of empowering Commissioners of any State in the Union to upset any rate which the Interstate Commerce Commission may approve."

Continuing, he asserts that the bill restores to State Public Utility Commissioners the power to order such rates within their States as they may see fit, which would serve to upset the entire rate structure which might be set up by the Director General of Railroads or the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Stock Exchange Seats Transferred.

The following proposed transfers of memberships were announced yesterday at the New York Stock Exchange: W. R. J. E. Planten to Arthur D. Weekes, Jr., Robert F. Budell to Carstens and Henry E. Montgomery to Carroll V. Geran, at $110,000 each, and Herbert H. Dean to Robert P. G. Cregar, a partnership transfer. It was also announced that the following had been elected members of the Exchange: L. Monteflore Stein, Austin J. Feuchtwanger, and Harold M. Cone.

The Safety and Tax Exemption of Joint Stock Land Bank 5% Bonds

and the entering of these features to large investors

SAFETY: These bonds are issued under the Federal Farm Loan Act. They are declared to be instrumentalities of the United States Government, and are prepared and engraved by the Treasury Department.

The bonds are secured by Government approved first mortgages, or by United States Government Bonds or Certificates of Indebtedness.

The bonds are a legal investment for all fiduciary and trust funds under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government, and are acceptable as security for Postal Savings Deposits and for all deposits of Government funds.

The constitutionality of the act and the validity of the provisions exempting the bonds from taxation, have been approved by the Attorney General of the United States, as well as by some of the most eminent legal talent of the country, including Geo. W. Wickersham, Esq., and Wm. G. McAdoo, Esq.

The Federal District Court at Kansas City on Oct. 31, 1919, dismissed the suit attacking the constitutionality of the Federal Farm Loan Act and the Tax Exemption of the Bonds, thus in effect establishing the validity of the Act and all of its provisions. An appeal from this decision has been taken to the Supreme Court which has been asked by all parties to advance the case for early hearing.

TAX EXEMPTION: These bonds are exempt to the same degree as the Liberty Loan 3½'s—in other words, they are exempt from all taxes excepting only inheritance taxes. This includes exemption from Federal Income Tax and local personal property taxes.

The value of the exemption from Federal Income Taxes alone, to individuals of large incomes, is indicated in the following figures, which would be further increased if the exemption of the bonds from other taxes were considered:

Net Yield of Joint Stock Bonds

Taxable Income	6% (To Optional Date) Equivalent to	5% (Taxes to Ultimate Maturity) Equivalent to
$ 50,000	6.32%	7.15%
80,000	8.28	9.37
100,000	10.28	11.96
200,000	13.50	12.89
1,000,000	16.07	17.86

The top line represents the net rate realized from Joint Stock Land Bank Bonds, regardless of the income of the holder. The remaining figures represent the gross rate which must be realized at varying incomes from taxable securities to procure the net rate at the top of the column.

$5,000,000 Dated May 1, 1919. Optional May 1, 1924. Due May 1, 1939.
10,000,000 Dated Nov. 1, 1919. Optional Nov. 1, 1924. Due Nov. 1, 1939.

Redeemable at par and accrued interest on any interest date after five years from date of issue. Coupon Bonds fully registerable and interchangeable. Denomination, $1,000 and $500. Interest payable semi-annually, May 1st and November 1st. Principal and interest payable at the bank of issue or at The Equitable Trust Company of New York.

Due Serially December 1, 1930 to 1934
Interest payable June 1 and December 1
Denominations $1000, $500 and $100

The present net worth of W. R. Grace & Co. is over $50,000,000

The entire capital stock of the Grace Steamship Company (with the exception of directors' shares) is owned by W. R. Grace & Co. who will agree not to dispose of their present holdings without making prior provision for purchase or redemption of the Bonds, and to acquire amounts of any additional stock issued sufficient to maintain control.

These Bonds will be secured by direct First Mortgage on the thirteen vessels of the present fleet, all of modern construction and having a dead weight tonnage of 79,035 tons, and upon additional property acquired from the proceeds of this issue, including the vessels about to be purchased at a cost of approximately $7,000,000 and having a dead weight tonnage of about 23,000 tons. The total 102,000 tons, now owned and about to be acquired, is conservatively valued at $200 per ton against which this issue will be outstanding at a rate of less than $96 per ton, or allowing for a portion of the cash proceeds to be held by the Trustee, until expended in the acquisition of property, of less than $85 per ton.

These Bonds will be additionally secured by pledge under the Mortgage of a charter party, or parties, entered into by W. R. Grace & Co., covering the operation of the vessels for the life of these Bonds, and providing for the payment by W. R. Grace & Co. of a minimum charter hire sufficient to meet the serial maturities, interest and other fixed charges, annual depreciation at the rate of 5% on the cost of all vessels now or hereafter under the lien of the Mortgage, and such further amount as may be required to discharge any liens or claims which if unpaid might result in liens against the vessels.

W. R. Grace & Co. will also agree to pay annually as additional charter hire, an amount equal to one half of their net earnings from the operation of the chartered vessels. Grace Steamship Company will covenant to use such additional charter hire only in the acquisition of additional property, or in the purchase or redemption of Bonds of this issue.

For the year ended December 31, 1918, the consolidated net earnings of the Grace Steamship Company fleet amounted to over $3,000,000.

Insurance of an adequate and proper character will be carried in an amount equal to not less than 125% of the principal amount of the outstanding Bonds.

We offer these Bonds, if, as and when issued and subject to approval by counsel

To yield from 6% to 6½%

according to maturity.

It is expected that Temporary Bonds will be ready for delivery about December 1, 1919, against confirmed sales.

SPASMODIC SWINGS IN COTTON MARKET

Early Quotations Tumble, but Strong Tone in Afternoon Causes Upward Rush.

GAINS CONTINUE TO CLOSE

The cotton market went through a very unsettled day yesterday. At the start the great amount of long cotton which could not be disposed of on the preceding day, because of the operation of the 200-point fluctuation limit rule, was thrown on the market and forced prices down sharply. Initial quotations showed losses of 21 points in January and 40 to 66 points in other parts of the list. These declines were followed by further breaks which did not end until prices stood at levels 60 to 80 points under the closing offering prices of Wednesday. Then, just as suddenly, the market turned strong and shot upward with a great rush.

In the second hour and for some time thereafter the market was extremely feverish, with some very wide swings. These movements went nearly a full cent in one direction, only to turn a few minutes later for almost as much the other way. Trading was rather heavy and the whole tone of the market was irregular.

However, barring one bad downward reaction around midday, the general trend was upward, and by the middle of the afternoon the market had become pronouncedly strong. This strength continued right to the close, with a good burst of buying in the last half hour which took the whole list to the best prices of the day. December and January at this time were up 140 points, with December up the full allowable 200 points from the morning's low point, and the late months from March on were up about 100 points net. Most of these gains were held at the end of business.

Crop news was again very bad, with killing frosts reported in many places and generally unfavorable conditions throughout the belt. The Liverpool market, which started down 80 to 100 English points in sympathy with our bad break here on Wednesday, recovered a substantial part of the decline before that market closed.

Export clearances for the day amounted to 77,195 bales, well distributed over many ports and also well distributed as to ultimate destination. These big clearances brought the total for the week to date up to 121,657 bales, the largest total for any week in more than two months, and with today's clearance still to be heard from, the outlook is for an extremely favorable situation this week.

Vision in Industry

VISION IS A QUALITY OF SEEING. In industry or business it is a kind of second-sight which discerns in advance what obstacles and pitfalls to avoid in the pathway to success.

Leaders of industry are rapidly coming to realize, however, that vision without specialized knowledge is incomplete. It is like a man stumbling in the dark along a strange road; while retaining the ability to see, his vision is limited. Hence big business men are more and more coming to rely on specialized knowledge to eliminate uncertainty in new undertakings.

S-A-S-LABORATORIES, as a result of years of successful experience in solving the problems of industry, possesses this specialized knowledge in its highest degree. By applying to your new development, or contemplated investment in an industrial project, exact scientific methods of investigation, test and analyses, we can tell you before you risk a dollar its value as an investment, commercial worth and mechanical practicability.

May we not tell you how?

Short Talks to Investors I.

The Investor's Dilemma

SINCE 1914 the cost of living has risen about 100% for the average family, but wages have also risen and the average salaried man is now receiving better pay than he did then. Therefore, many men are today little worse off than they were five years ago.

BUT the average investor is far worse off. In 1914 an investor with $100,000 capital was perhaps enjoying an income of $5,000 per year. Today (with the same capital) he has but $5,000 per year. And in the meanwhile the purchasing power of this $5,000 has shrunk one half and war taxes have reduced it still further.

SOME investors, however, have been able to circumvent this calamity to a large extent by following a farseeing policy of investment protection, whereby they have been able to increase their incomes substantially without jeopardizing their principal. And in numerous cases they have been able to progressively increase their principal also.

HOW this has been accomplished and is still being done, is the message which we would like to give to every investor in America. Send today for our booklet entitled, "Forging a Revolution" and for other information regarding the service we are now rendering to thousands of American investors.

EGGS—9,213 cases. New laid eggs are becoming scarcer as the month advances and dealers are having difficulty in supplying their urgent needs. Any lots of fresh gathered that contain a large proportion of full, strong bodied, fresh production are promptly taken and prices show a further advance. Values, however, are extremely irregular, owing to the irregular proportion of new eggs contained in the offerings, and the inferior qualities remaining from previous accumulations are moving slowly at comparatively easy prices, although on some of these, where the quality is fairly useful, better figures have been realized than heretofore. High grades of storage eggs are meeting a fair demand and are held with rather more confidence. Medium and lower grades freely offered and meeting only a moderate demand. White eggs are sustained at higher prices under continued scarcity. EXPORT AND IMPORT

I am an OFFICER AND MANAGING DIRECTOR of a large Export and Import concern successfully conducting business throughout the world. Fresh and powerful interests representing several millions of dollars have just now acquired control, and as this may bring about undesirable friction of management, I would prefer to withdraw before such condition arises. I have a first-class successful record and know every phase of my business. My salary alone is over $10,000 per annum. If you have a suitable and legitimate proposition in Export and Import business, kindly reply as concisely as possible. D 713 Times Downtown.

Selling education in the form of The Book of Knowledge is to the right person a profitable and agreeable occupation; backed by the largest educational publishing house in the world, you are bound to make good if the seed of successful salesmanship is at all in you.

We are not looking for "agents" nor for "canvassers," but for a few men and women who are big enough for the proposition. The remuneration is on a commission basis. Book of Knowledge salesmen and saleswomen throughout the country find their work most congenial and most remunerative, simply because all parents are interested in the welfare of their children.

HYLAN ELIMINATED IN PIERMEN'S PARLEY

DATE ADVANCED TEN DAYS

Hearing Will Be Held Next Friday Instead of Dec. 1, as Originally Provided.

The question of what wage shall be paid the longshoremen at New York will be reopened by the National Adjustment Commission next Friday, meeting in the Produce Exchange, Professor William E. Ripley, Chairman of the commission, announced yesterday. Under the agreement existing when the last wage award was made the controversy was to be reopened Dec. 1.

Coincident with this statement came another eliminating Mayor Hylan and his unofficial committee from further connection with the controversy. In the strike just ended both strikers and employers said the entrance of the Mayor had prolonged the tieup of the port. One labor leader spoke of the Mayor's efforts as "butting in." Yesterday's order from Washington makes the Mayor only a bystander, with no voice in any decisions reached.

The exit of the Mayor and his committee was chronicled in this letter:

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR.
Office of the Assistant Secretary.
Washington, Nov. 10, 1919.

Hon. W. Z. Ripley, Chairman, National Adjustment Commission, New York, N. Y.

My dear Mr. Ripley—Upon looking into the file regarding the longshoremen's strike in New York harbor, about which we conferred this morning, I find that the authority of the Commissioners of Conciliation appointed in October at the instance of Mayor Hylan for the temporary purpose indicated by me at our conference ended on the 6th of November by termination of the strike and Mayor Hylan's report to that effect. This is in accordance with the regular procedure of the department in conciliation matters.

Very sincerely,
LOUIS F. POST,
Assistant Secretary.

Notice of the coming conference, as sent to T. V. O'Connor, President of the International Longshoremen's Association, was as follows:

The National Adjustment Commission, in its provisional award of Oct. 6, 1919, to deepsea longshoremen of the North Atlantic ports, expressly agreed to reopen the case as of Dec. 1, 1919, upon condition that no substantial reduction in the high cost of living had occurred before that time. No such material relief being as yet apparent, the commission hereby appoints, a public hearing at the New York Produce Exchange on Nov. 21, 1919, at 9 o'clock A. M.

At that time an opportunity will be afforded to all members or officers of the International Longshoremen's Association or steamship associations or companies, or other parties signatory to the agreement constituting the commission, to present new evidence as to the basic rate of wages. The commissioner having determined agreed to the rate of $1 an hour, upon working conditions and other matters, they will not be considered except as affected by changes in the basic rate.

WILLIAM S. RIPLEY,
Chairman National Adjustment Commission.

Copies of the communication were sent last night to all locals by Mr. O'Connor.

Ten longshoremen were arraigned before County Judge May in Brooklyn yesterday on charges of rioting and carrying dangerous weapons. They were arrested after a fight with five policemen, whom they are alleged to have attacked Oct. 27 in Second Avenue, between Forty-third and Forty-fourth Streets.

They were Antonio Castinino, Demetrio Falcone, Frank Petrezzi, Giacoma Mauresano, Salvatore Spinelli, Paul Francona, John Numo, Matteo Bianco, Michael Gorcia, and Francesco Cimiatti. They were held in $1,000 bail each on the riot charge and $1,000 for carrying dangerous weapons. All pleaded not guilty.

TO BAR 5TH AV. TO PARADES

Ordinance Soon to be Offered Turning Displays to Riverside Drive.

Police Commissioner Enright, discussing city traffic conditions at a luncheon of the Forty-second Street Property Owners and Merchants Association in the Hotel Commodore yesterday, said that Fifth Avenue should no longer be used as a thoroughfare for parades. He pointed out that more than $10,000,000 was lost to merchants and business men on the day of the 27th Division parade. The many parades which use Fifth Avenue in the course of a year seriously disturb business conditions, and he did not deem it fair to the merchants to allow the situation to continue. Commissioner Enright said an ordinance would be proposed soon designating Riverside Drive as the proper thoroughfare for parades.

A. E. Thorne, President of the association, presided, and the speakers included Henry H. Curran, President-elect of the Borough of Manhattan; Postmaster Thomas Patten and Deputy Public Service Commissioner John H. Delaney. All of the speakers pledged co-operation in the efforts to make Forty-second Street one of the greatest thoroughfares in the city.

Postmaster Patten said that extensive plans were being made for bettering the postal facilities of the Forty-second Street section. He said the average citizen had only a slight idea of the vast amount of mail handled by the local Post Office, and cited statistics by way of illustration. Approximately 16,000,000 pieces of mail were received every twenty-four hours, of which 365,000 pieces were misdirected, Mr. Patten said.

Discussing the need for relief of congestion on the shuttle between Grand Central and Times Square, Deputy Commissioner Delaney said he advocated the Steinway tunnel plan as opposed to the loop scheme, which he understood would cost $4,500,000. He said he was not in favor of any other new plan in view of the present state of the city's finances. Mr. Curran told the members of the association that when he took office he would endeavor to expedite improvements in the Forty-second Street section as well as other parts of the borough.

J. D. RYAN ANSWERS AIRCRAFT CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Denial of charges contained in a telegram sent to Secretary Baker by Representatives Frear of Wisconsin and Mason of New York, majority members of the House sub-committee investigating aircraft expenditures, was made today by John D. Ryan of New York, formerly Second Assistant Secretary of War, who had charge of aircraft production during the war.

In a statement presented to the committee Mr. Ryan said Epoch as interminglings of alleged facts is contained in the telegram that it is somewhat difficult to make specific answer to its contents. An examination of the magazine articles referred to does not show any evidence that I was guilty of the gravest charges, involving my personal integrity and official acts, are made."

The Frear-Mason telegram charged that a railroad had been built at a cost of $1,000,000 a mile in the State of Washington, and that the Government paid $1,500 a mile and furnished a total expenditure of $2,000,000.

"The expenditures referred to," the Ryan statement says, "involved not only the building of the thirty-six miles of main line railroad, but also all expenditures made in connection with terminal facilities, yards, sidetracks, and appurtenances of every kind, except rolling stock, which went into the construction of the railway and constituted a part thereof."

The telegram also charged that "further investigations may disclose conditions upon which a recovery can be had against John D. Ryan and others who are responsible for this wasteful expenditure of public funds."

Replying to this, Mr. Ryan stated "it is probably the first time in history that the majority of a committee vested with judicial authority, not only indulged in assertions which were unfounded, but endeavored to bolster public opinion to the impression that there had been a grave dereliction of duty by engaging in prophecy."

HAVRE BAKERS SHUT SHOPS

HAVRE, Nov. 12.—The bakers have decided to close their stores as a protest against the new prices officially fixed for the sale of bread.

The authorities maintain that inasmuch as the bakers accepted the new prices in writing, their action constitutes a misdemeanor and proceedings have been instituted against the President and other officers of the Master Bakers' Association. Arrangements have been made to supply the population with bread from army bakeries.

New customers are continually telling us that our assortments are wonderful, both for size and variety. Then they send us their friends.

Older customers are a little more reserved in their enthusiasm, because generous assortments of good all-wool Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes are an old story with them.

Probably they would talk more if we did not offer them so many fine suits and overcoats to choose from.

But old and new customers are agreed on one point, especially if they have shopped around a bit. They admit without reservation that it is truly remarkable how much style and quality a man can buy for his money here.

PROHIBITION LAW UPHELD BY THREE FEDERAL JUDGES

SAY CONGRESS HAS POWER

The War Over, Judge Hand Admits, but He Holds Legislation to be Valid.

RHODE ISLAND CASE CITED

Decisions Here Conflict with That Rendered by Judge Brown in Providence.

Handing down one decision to cover both of the prohibition cases before him, Federal Judge Learned Hand yesterday upheld the validity of the Volstead Enforcement act. He denied the injunctions asked to force the Government to release distilled spirits from bond; he refused to enjoin the officials from enforcing penalties under the national prohibition act, and declared that "the wartime prohibition act remains a valid exercise of the Congressional power."

Federal Judge John C. Knox concurred in the opinion of Judge Hand and dismissed two similar injunction suits, while Federal Judge John G. Rose of Maryland, sitting in New York, dismissed an application for injunction against the Internal Revenue Collector of Maryland for the purpose of releasing large quantities of whisky in bond.

The decision of Judge Hand will have exactly the opposite effect of that of Federal Judge Evans, who granted an injunction to two distillers in Louisville, Ky., by virtue of which they were permitted to dispose of their stocks, and to that of Federal Judge Arthur L. Brown, who issued an injunction in Providence, R. I., in favor of the Narragansett Brewing Company.

Concedes War Is Over.

While Judge Hand concedes that the war has come to an end, he holds that the power of Congress does not cease with the termination of actual hostilities, but that it includes "power to restore in certain respects any way the status quo ante bellum." Arguing that the policy of prohibition rests, "at any rate, may rest, upon the belief that the use of intoxicating drink will provoke discontent, disorder, economic waste and industrial friction and maladjustment among demobilized soldiers," and since they "permeate every corner of the land and mingle freely and indistinguishably with all citizens," they constitute no longer an "ascertainable class" and cannot be kept from access to intoxicants "unless the prohibition be general."

"Whether the result is worth the sacrifice," the decision continues, "whether it was in fact the reason for the decision of Congress, whether it was necessary to include all kinds of intoxicants, even in the milder beverages, may indeed be open to doubt, but those are matters which the Court may not consider."

The cases decided were those of Dryfoos, Blum & Co., wholesale liquor dealers of 42 West Broadway, in which an injunction was asked to restrain Internal Revenue Collector William H. Edwards from refusing to release from bond barrels of distilled spirits, and by Jacob Ruppert, a corporation engaged in the brewing of beer, to restrain United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey and Acting Collector of Internal Revenue Richard J. McElligott from enforcing the wartime and Volstead prohibition laws. At the same time Judge Knox filed a decision upholding the constitutionality of the national prohibition law in the case of the Italian Vineyards Company and Scatena, Lawson & Ferrelli, who sought injunctions against the Federal officials to prevent them from interfering with the sale of liquor. The case before Judge Rose was in the matter of an application by the Maryland Distillery Company of Baltimore for an injunction against Joshua W. Miles, Collector of Internal Revenue of Maryland, to compel him to release whisky in bond.

In the Ruppert case the motion was to enjoin the District Attorney and the Deputy Collector from enforcing the penalties against the plaintiff on title warrants under the national prohibition act because of its proposed sale of non-intoxicating beer containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. and not more than 2.75 per cent. of alcohol. With reference to the so-called non-intoxicating beer the decision says: "Though the sole justification of the wartime prohibition act be to prohibit the sale of intoxicants, it may be impossible effectively to accomplish that end without including all kinds of beer.

Holds Law Constitutional.

In answer to the plea of unconstitutionality the decision continues:

"Finally, the plaintiff in the second case says that even though I conclude, as I do, that the laws are constitutional, he should have a temporary injunction pending appeal.

"The Supreme Court is to hear arguments upon the constitutionality of the wartime prohibition act on Thursday next, and it is reasonable to suppose that an early decision will be reached. The damage done by an injunction, meanwhile, cannot be measured by

President on the Porch in a Wheeled Chair

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Dr. Hugh Hampton Young of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, will visit the White House tomorrow for another general consultation on President Wilson's illness. Dr. Francis X. Dercum, neurologist, also will attend the consultation. At the White House it was explained that the visit simply meant that they were coming to make their usual week-end study of the case so as to be able to check up on the President's progress.

The President continues to improve slowly but steadily. On Armistice Day he was able to be up for an hour in a roller chair for the first time since he was brought back to Washington from his Western trip.

Today he was able to go one step further, when he was again placed in a roller chair and taken to the rear porch of the White House, where he had the benefit of the sunshine and open air.

MRS. LLOYD GEORGE IN ASTOR CAMPAIGN

HECKLERS BECOME VIOLENT

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 14 (Associated Press).—The appearance today of Mrs. David Lloyd George, wife of the British Prime Minister, in the electoral campaign on the side of Lady Astor marked the climax of one of the most unusual political battles ever fought in Plymouth.

Although at the meeting which was addressed by Mrs. Lloyd George only women were present, it was the scene of the most determined attempt made by the Opposition throughout the entire campaign to silence speakers by the use of hecklers. Lady Astor was present and also spoke.

At one point, when a forced discontinuance of the meeting appeared to be threatening, Lady Astor took the floor and faced the hecklers with defiance.

"I have told you that I am not ashamed of my American birth," she said. "I am proud that there is not a drop of blood in my veins that is not Anglo-Saxon. I now want to tell you that that blood is fighting British blood. I am willing to meet the whole of the Independent Labor Party alone on Salisbury Plain, because they can't or won't fight."

The applause that greeted the candidate's words was deafening. The Guildhall, where the meeting was held, was crowded with 5,000 women an hour before the speaking began, while an equal number of women were outside clamoring for admittance.

Mrs. Lloyd George, who was introduced by the Chairwoman as "the first lady in England," said she had been delighted to come to Plymouth, "if only to get a bit of sunshine, which is lacking in London.

"You have all the sunshine here around Lady Astor's candidacy," she added.

The voice of Mrs. Lloyd George, which was low and hesitating and was heard only in the front of the hall, contrasted sharply with that of Lady Astor, the previous speaker, who talked with apparent ease, and whose clear enunciation was audible throughout the large room.

"I have always thought that women would make better politicians than men if given the chance," Mrs. Lloyd George continued, "and I hope that tomorrow you will use your vote in the proper way."

At this point interruptions in the rear of the hall drowned out the further utterances of the wife of the Prime Minister, and several minutes elapsed before the Chairwoman was able to restore order. When, however, quiet was obtained, Mrs. Lloyd George resumed.

"It looks well for the future of our country," she said, "that women are taking such keen interest in politics."

The speaker, warmly indorsing Lady Astor, cited two reasons why she should be returned the victor in the by-elections. First, because the election of a few women to Parliament nowadays would be most advisable, and, second, because she was convinced that nobody could discharge the duties of a member of Parliament more thoroughly than

ALLIES WILLING TO ACCEPT SENATE 'INTERPRETATIONS'

FRENCH AND BRITISH AGREE

RUSSIAN POLICY IS FIXED

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—La Presse de Paris published today a significant statement, apparently semi-official, making public the decisions reached at conferences in London between Premier Lloyd George and Foreign Minister Pichon of France. This statement says that the two diplomats discussed three questions: First, the situation created by the American Senate's action on the Versailles treaty; second, the Russian situation, and third, the Turkish problem.

The significance of this inspired statement lies in its declaration that if the United States Senate adopts reservations setting forth its interpretation of the treaty and stops there the Allies will not concern themselves with the matter, but will regard the treaty as duly and fully ratified. It goes on to say that if the Senate demands that the Allies also accept these reservations the Allies will find it difficult to do so.

"As for the ratification of the treaty at Washington," the statement says, "it appears that there is little doubt that in the end the two opposing parties will reach some agreement rather than discredit the work of the American negotiators.

"As for the reservations of the Republicans, they constitute in the eyes of the Allies a parliamentary manifestation of a domestic character. If they are interpretative—that is to say, if they constitute a guide for the Federal Government in the application of the treaty—the Allies have nothing to do with them. The text of the treaty signed, once ratified, engages the United States, and votes of the Senate construing this treaty have no international weight.

"But if, as now seems probable, the American Government asks the Allies to agree to the reservations as conditions of American ratification, they will find it difficult to accept this procedure, inasmuch as they have refused to small nations the right to adopt a similar procedure. But this eventuality may not arise after all."

Turning to the much-mooted Russian situation, the statement says:

"As for Russia, the policy of the Allies remains unchanged. The Russian Governments which are carrying on the fight against the Bolsheviki have been supplied with money as well as munitions for several months. Neither France nor England will make new sacrifices, but neither of these Allies will take any steps or institute any negotiations of a character which would strengthen the Bolsheviki."

The evidently significant passage in this statement is that France joins with England in deciding to sink no more in the Russian whirlpool.

The statement concludes by saying that on all questions which were studied "a happy unity of views has been established."

Americans Called Unfair.

The excitement of the week before election has not diverted French attention from Washington and the Senate debate on the Versailles Treaty. In La Presse de Paris, the combination journal published during the printers' strike, a large proportion of the space is devoted to a discussion of the Republican Senators' tactics. The burden of these discussions is that the Americans are grossly unfair.

It must be borne in mind that the average Frenchman knows little or nothing about the intricacies of American politics. All he knows is that the American President came to Paris, helped frame a treaty in which France made many concessions to American demands, and now the American Senate does not approve of what he did. Few of the complaints are directed specifically against the Republicans. It is always "the American Senate" which is "behaving unfairly."

SALEM, Mass., Nov. 14.—An injunction to prevent Goodyear shoe workers in three factories in Lynn from slowing down their work and curtailing production is sought in three bills in equity filed today in the Supreme Court. The petitioners are the Lynn Shoe Manufacturers' Association, Inc., the F. J. Harney Shoe Company, and Hanscomb, Maxwell & Hennessey.

The Goodyear operatives and manufacturers have been working under an agreement running from last June to next September, one provision of which is that there shall be no strikes. Recently, it is held, the operatives presented a demand for a 35 per cent. increase in wages and refused to submit the case to the State Board of Arbitration under the agreement.

The petitioners allege that since Oct. 28 the operatives have adopted a policy of cutting down the amount of their production, with the result that all departments are affected and production is reduced one-half.

FIND RUSSIAN REDS' WORK VIA MEXICO

CONSUL HERE UNDER FIRE

In Letter He Shows Interest in Radical Movements Looking to "Nationalization."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14, (Associated Press).—Disclosure of large orders for arms and ammunition placed by Mexico in Europe was followed today by revelations tending to show that the Reds' underground line from Soviet Russia to the United States runs by way of Mexico.

It became known that the immigration service and the Department of Justice both are concerned at the influx of Russian radicals and other alien Red tendencies over the Mexican border. Furthermore, Government agents have traced much Red propaganda over the Mexican line.

Government investigators have reported that radicals seemed to have been first attracted to Mexico by certain so-called "ultra-modern" provisions of the new Constitution.

Government agents have gathered evidence showing distribution of Red propaganda in the United States through Mexican sources, and this is expected to be shown publicly soon.

Secretary Lansing explained today that a diplomatic inquiry had been made at Brussels respecting the placing of munition orders by Mexico in Belgium. The Government adopted that course rather than that of a protest, and is now satisfied that no shipments are to be made. The extensive orders placed by Mexico in Spain, Secretary Lansing refused to discuss, although it is known that the Government has full knowledge of them, and it is expected that a satisfactory means will be found to prevent others.

The international arms convention, in violation of which the recent shipments have been made, is as yet an unpublished document. It is understood here that it was signed in Paris on Sept. 14 by the signatories to the League of Nations covenant, and provides that no nation which intends to become a member of the League may permit shipments of arms while the world is passing through the transition period from war to peace.

Protest Consul's Letter on Reds.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—A letter written by R. P. de Negri, the Mexican Consul General in New York, to Senator Flavio Borques of the Mexican Senate and published on Nov. 6 by Excelsior, one of the leading daily newspapers of the Mexican capital, has been brought to the attention of the State Department and already two Senators, one a Democrat and the other a Republican, are understood to have addressed letters to the Secretary of State suggesting the cancellation of de Negri's exequatur. The complaint is that the letter shows that Consul de Negri has interested himself in the propaganda of extreme radicals in this country who seek "nationalization" of private property.

The text of the letter follows:

"Consulate General of Mexico,
"New York, Oct. 23, 1919.

"My Esteemed Friend—I have your kind letter of the 13th instant, in which you acknowledge receipt of my telegram of 9th. I had already learned with pleasure, through the press, that you were one of the defenders of Article 27. It is an honor to those of us who come from Sonora, and a satisfaction to those of us who call ourselves your friends, to know that our representative is doing his duty; we are convinced that with this representation our revolutionary principles are guaranteed. I repeat that it would not only be sad, but even criminal, that we should abdicate our nationalistic policy through the threats of Wall Street capitalists. I believe this is an ideal time in which to agitate Mexican petroleum upon for all.

NATION-WIDE LEGION MOVE

Former Soldiers in Several Towns Pledge Their Aid to Combat All Revolutionists.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 14.—Members of the American Legion here were being sworn in as special policemen this evening to meet what was declared to be an invasion of 1,000 to 3,000 members of the Industrial Workers of the World due to arrive here tonight from Montana and other parts of the Northwest.

Arrangements are in progress with officers at Fort George Wright here for arms and ammunition for the American Legion Deputy Sheriffs, who are to be held in readiness for immediate action.

Orders for the mobilization of the two companies of the National Guardsmen were issued tonight by Major Thomas G. Aston.

All I. W. W. suspects are to be arrested, according to an agreement reached at a conference here late today between Commissioner Tilsley of the Department of Public Safety, Chief of Police Weir, Sheriff Reid, and other officers and representatives of the American Legion.

Officers of the American Legion told the officials they had received what they considered authentic reports that I. W. W. were en route here. All incoming trains, they said, were loaded with members of the organization and reports had been received from lumber camps in this region that I. W. W. were leaving their jobs to go to Spokane.

The city jail is filled, but Sheriff Reid said he could care for 150 additional prisoners in the county jail. All arrested men would be held, it was declared.

Eight local members of the Legion were threatened with the fate of former soldiers killed at Centralia Tuesday in a letter received at Legion headquarters today through the mail.

The letter, purporting to be signed by an official of the Industrial Workers of the World, was typewritten and the letterhead had been torn off. It was mailed here yesterday.

Fifty-two alleged Industrial Workers of the World arrested in raids here yesterday were convicted in Police Court this afternoon on city charges of criminal syndicalism. Each was sentenced to thirty days in jail and fined $100. They appeared without attorneys and conducted a "silent defense."

Police officers today seized a quantity of radical literature said to amount to nearly a ton.

It included a new booklet by James Rowan, former National Secretary of the I. W. W. Timber Workers' Union, who is at liberty on bond, following his conviction in the Chicago I. W. W. case.

What the police believe was the beginning of a German Soviet was discovered, they declared, in the arrest of C. K. Quast. Quast is being held for further investigation.

Orders forbidding "workers' meetings" called for Saturday and Sunday evenings at Turner Hall were sent to the Directors of the German Turnverein today by Commissioner J. H. Tilsley of the Department of Public Safety, who warned them that criminal actions would be brought unless meetings of I. W. W. and kindred organizations were barred from the hall.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 14.—Industrial Workers of the World headquarters at Germania Hall was raided by uniformed ex-service men armed with clubs tonight and the place wrecked after a melee in which several supposed members of the radical organization were injured. Two men were taken to the Receiving Hospital.

GARY, Ind., Nov. 14.—Aroused by the murder of four members of the American Legion during the Armistice Day parade in Centralia, Wash., Gary's legionaries at a meeting tonight laid plans for an active part in the fight against radicals and the I. W. W. A call was issued for a meeting of all former soldiers of the city Sunday afternoon for the purpose of discussing plans for forming the military organization which Major Gen. Wood has asked be organized among the former soldiers of Gary, which sent 6,000 men to the world war.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 14.—Governor Campbell today joined Mesa Post of the American Legion in a declaration of war against the I. W. W. and "other radicals who seek to undermine the constituted authority of the nation." The Governor pledged co-operation to the limit "with the police in an effort to exterminate the radical and criminal element, which threatens the law and order of this state and nation."

BALTIMORE, Nov. 14 (Associated Press).—Loyal employes of the Baltimore Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Company took a hand at a little "boring from within" on the Reds in their ranks today, with the result that leaders of the workmen feel sure that any so-called radical leader will be absent after tomorrow—which is pay day.

After a Red circular urging the workers to rise and take possession of the plant for themselves had been found there, the plant superintendents at the noon hour today called the workmen together and laid the situation before them. The men pledged themselves to rid the plant of Reds without outside aid, and in the next few hours the vigilantes had rounded up all the Red propaganda literature which had been circulated among their fellows.

The circular, headed "Your Shop," bore this inscription:

"This is propaganda leaflet No. 3 issued by the Communist Party of America, 1319 Blue Avenue, Chicago."

Quantities of the inflammatory document were turned in to company headquarters and destroyed, and heads of the workmen's committees informed the management that they would undertake to have their ranks cleared of Reds when the whistles blow for tomorrow's closing.

REDS STIR MINERS TO WALK OUT AGAIN

NATIONAL TIEUP CONTINUES

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 14.—The coal [illegible] in West Virginia was in a state of "orderly chaos" today, according to reports received last night at the headquarters of the Kanawha Coal Operators' Association.

While mines were reported to have resumed operations in some districts, in others, where men were at work yesterday, walkouts occurred again today. Five "unauthorized" strikes were in progress in the Kanawha fields, preventing the resumption of operations in thirteen mines.

Reports to the association showed that less than 50 per cent. of the Kanawha mines were operating and these had only small working forces. At several mines where the normal working force numbers several hundred, less than fifty men reported for work.

Two large mines at Leevale, in the Big Coal River district, which were operating yesterday were forced to shut down today when the several hundred miners voted to walk out. Attempts of union leaders to put the men back to work failed.

The situation at Blair, in the Little Coal River district, was reported to be serious. Six mines were closed in this section by an "unauthorized" strike of more than 800 miners. They were reported to be "in open rebellion" and preventing other men from entering the mines.

At Sharlow, in the Coal River district, 500 miners voted to remain on strike, and preventing three mines from resuming. The miners are reported to have told the operators that the union officers had their strike, now they would have one of their own.

Miners at Milburn and Ramage are also reported to have voted not to obey the union order to return to work. The men at Milburn demand "more money" before they will go to work, it was said.

Radicals at Ramage are said to control the situation and are preventing resumption of operations.

Federal Agents Start Round Up.

The first step toward a round-up of radical agitators in the Northern West Virginia coal fields was taken today when Department of Justice agents, assisted by State authorities, invaded the districts in which, according to State officials, Industrial Workers of the World, Prussian and Austrian agitators, have been spreading lawless propaganda. As a result of activity of radicals, authorities say, many coal miners have failed to return to work, and while United Mine Workers' officials have announced they were "able to control the situation," State executives and coal operators said they feared trouble unless the propaganda was turbed at once.

C. F. Keeney, President of District 17, United Mine Workers, declared today that the miners in all parts of the State that the miners in all parts of the State "will be back to work Monday." He said he had reports that a few men were urging miners not to return to work in the northern mines, but added that union leaders "had promptly taken steps to overcome this movement."

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14.—The mine of the Republic Coal Company at Walkers mills is the only union mine in the Pittsburgh district working today. BAR STRIKE CURB IN RAILROAD BILL

PROVIDES NEW BOARDS

Measure Practically Continues Present Method Without Means of Enforcement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The House today adopted the demands of the railway unions, including three of the [illegible] which it accepted by a decisive vote the adjustment plan for wage disputes urged by the unions and avoided a direct vote on a proposal to make railroad strikes illegal. This action recalls that of two years ago when the House followed the suggestions of the same unions and enacted the Adamson eight-hour law.

By a vote of 161 to 108 the so-called Anderson amendment to the section of the Railroad Regulation bill dealing with the settlement of labor disputes was adopted by the House. In effect this continues in slightly enlarged form the conciliatory plan established by the railroad managers and the unions before Federal control, now in force. Responsible House leaders on both sides ignored an opportunity to write a more progressive plan for adjusting railroad labor differences and seemed afraid to take a position which would mark them as standing for compulsory arbitration as against the mediation machinery urged by the brotherhoods.

There were three plans before the House. One was the radical Webster amendment declaring railroad strikes illegal; another the committee's plan written in the bill assessing damages on the railroads for enforcing a lockout and upon the unions for nonperformance of a contract. The brotherhoods opposed the committee plan in a long statement issued Wednesday and were most active in influencing votes against it up to the hour of taking the vote today. The plan adopted provides no means for enforcing the decisions of the adjustment boards and leaves railroad employes free to strike as at present.

Under the operation of complicated rules other plans to control labor troubles, such as the Canadian adjustment law, could not be submitted to the House. This situation, which also prevented a direct vote on the Webster anti-strike clause, arose through the way the amendments were presented last night. Representative Webster offered his amendment to the committee's plan, and the Anderson proposal came as a substitute. The House adopted the Webster amendment as amended by Mr. Anderson, and then accepted the Anderson amendment by the vote recorded. Two latter's amendment eliminated all of the original motion's drastic features.

The adoption of the Anderson amendment precluded further amendments and ruled out the amendment submitted by Representative Steele of Pennsylvania, to make strikes illegal until fifteen days after a decision by an adjustment board, the plan which has been in successful operation in Canada for many years.

The Anderson amendment adds to the machinery now in use by the Government for the settlement of wage and other disputes three Boards of Appeal, which take the place of the Railroad Administrator, who is now acting as a court of last resort. By its terms railroad employes are divided into three classes. Each have a board composed of the respective union representatives and the employers. In case wage and other disputes are not adjusted by the boards of original jurisdiction, appeals are taken to the three commissioners on labor disputes, the representatives of which are selected by the carriers and the chief executives of the employes. There is no provision for the enforcement of

SECRETARY WILSON IS FIRM

Also Warns Operators They Must Drop Standpat Policy.

FAVORS TEMPORARY RELIEF

Points to Crisis and Says Public Will Have to Bear Burden of Any Increase in Coal Prices.

SETTLEMENT SEEMS LIKELY

Both Factions After Session Indicate Readiness to Compromise to Reach Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—A peaceful settlement of the bituminous coal strike within the next week appears probable tonight.

The conference between the operators and the miners, which was called by Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson, held its opening session here today, and, while it was apparent that all of the old differences had not been ironed out, it was equally apparent that both sides to the controversy were satisfied that an agreement must be reached, that radical demands must be dropped and the public interest taken into consideration.

No other impression, at least, could be obtained tonight after operater and miner had met face to face. The miners, as represented by John L. Lewis, Acting President of the United Mine Workers at Indianapolis, practically admitted that they would not stand for demands which would not meet with popular approval, and the same attitude was adopted by T. T. Brewster, who speaks for the operators of the central competitive field.

"Neither side can afford to leave without a settlement being effected," was the way Mr. Lewis put it.

"We are for an agreement which will bring about the quickest settlement of the differences involved," said Mr. Brewster.

Both of these men, when seen by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, indicated that while they would fight for concessions which would be favorable to their interests, in the end they would give ground to reach a compromise. They talked of the weight of public opinion; of the duty of miner and operator to the country; but mostly of the necessity for a speedy settlement of the strike.

Secretary of Labor Wilson went far toward bringing about this situation in an address which he delivered today at the opening of the conference.

Tells Miners Demands Are Impossible.

He said flatly that the demands made by the miners for a six-hour day and five-day week, and for a 60 per cent. increase in wages was impossible.

Secretary Wilson recommended as the best way to bring about a complete settlement that schedules be arranged which would end unrest in all fields, not alone in the central competitive district. In the past, the schedule has been made by the big central competitive field and the outlying districts have arranged their schedules accordingly.

Whether this recommendation will be adopted is in doubt. The miners would like to see the scope of the agreements extended even to reach the fields which are not closely unionized, but the operators are opposed to such a course. It is understood, however, that while the representative of the mine workers will favor the extension of the program when the conference reconvenes tomorrow morning, they will not press such a demand.

The operators, Mr. Brewster said tonight, were in favor of a course which would bring about the quickest agreement and resumption of work. This is taken to mean that the operators are opposed to the extension of the basic agreement to fields other than the Central Competitive field.

Secretary Wilson laid strong emphasis on the statement that in any agreement reached the public must not be expected to bear a heavy burden. He quoted figures to show the advance which had been made in the wages of miners as compared with the increases in living costs, and suggested that a balance be struck which would give the miners a fair increase, and delay more drastic demands until the affairs of the world had become more settled. He said also that miners must not complain to call the operators "profiteers" and throw other verbal brickbats, and that charges that the miners were directed by Bolshevist tendencies must be dropped by the operators.

The conference ended today with the request of both the operators and the miners that they be given an opportunity to confer privately before returning their answer to Secretary Wilson's proposition that a wage and working conditions agreement be reached which would extend to all fields, and reports will be made tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. It is predicted that the old system of fixing the schedule for PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 14.—A flag of the "Irish Republic" was removed here today from the automobile of Eamonn de Valera, leader of the Irish Independence Party, by request of a party of former service men headed by Ensign A. T. Kurts.

Kurts and twenty-five former service men, who were on duty at the Temple, asked the man in charge of the car to remove the flag, in view of the fact that the United States Government did not recognize the Irish Republic. The flag was removed.

Mayor George L. Baker issued a statement saying that the use of the flag was objectionable and would not be permitted publicly during the remainder of de Valera's stay here.

A majority of the Censorship Board was said to favor complete rejection of the picture after reading 3 several "reels." A conference will be held tomorrow to decide whether the use of official scissors can save the film.

the Central Competitive field alone, and having the other fields which are not so closely unionized work out their conditions and wages later, will be determined upon.

Secretary Wilson's Address.

The speech of Secretary Wilson was as follows:

"Gentlemen, I have asked you to come here into conference in connection with the mining situation not simply because there is a labor dispute in the mining fields, but because the world is still passing through a great crisis. We are still in a period where we need the benefit of cool, common counsel rather than of conflict.

"There is no set of men anywhere that is in a position to bring to the consideration of the subject matter of mining a more comprehensive, technical knowledge than the operators and miners themselves.

"Last September a convention of the United Mine Workers of America, representing the union mine workers throughout the United States, adopted a scale of wages which was presented in the form of demands upon the operators of the Central Competitive Coal Field. It is to be presumed that those demands represented the desires of the union miners throughout the country as a basis for the negotiations of a new wage scale.

"They were presented to the operators of the Central Competitive Coal Field and to those operators only for their consideration. If, as a result, a mutual agreement had been reached in the Central Competitive Coal Field, the probabilities are that no strike would have taken place either in that field or in the so-called outlying fields. The wage agreement arrived at in the Central Competitive Coal Field would undoubtedly have been taken as the basis for negotiating agreements in the other fields during the continuance of work. Unfortunately, a basis of agreement was not arrived at between the miners and operators of the Central Competitive Coal Field. As a result of that failure strikes occurred, not only in the central field but in the other fields, where no demands had been made upon the operators and where no rejection of demands had taken place.

No Demands in Outlying Fields.

"I do not want to imply by that statement that the miners were at fault in not having presented demands to the operators of the outlying fields at the same time that they were presenting demands to the Central Competitive Coal Field, because it is well known to both operators and miners that from the very beginning of the joint conference movement the miners have been willing that all of the districts had been represented in the making of the basic wage scale, and whatever objection has occurred has come from the operators. Nevertheless, the operators in the outlying districts were confronted with a stoppage of work in their plants without any demands having been made upon them or their having rejected such demands.

"We therefore find ourselves in a situation where the operators and miners of all of these fields are each equally interested in the settlement that is effected, and, above all, we are confronted with the fact that the great mass of the people dependent upon their everyday life for the continuation of supplies of fuel are interested not only in a settlement in the Central Competitive Coal Field, but in a settlement in all of the coal fields that have been affected.

"It is for that reason that I have asked that the operators and miners of all the affected fields meet me in conference here.

"There are three ways by which a mutual agreement may be arrived at.

"The first is the selection of a wage scale committee by operators and miners representing each of the coal fields which would agree upon the basic rates in their respective districts, allowing the matter of detail to be worked out by the districts themselves.

"The second method would be by each of the districts going into concurrent conference with equal powers to arrive at adjustments.

"The third would be to follow the old procedure of having the Central Competitive Coal Field work out its adjustment and take that as a basis upon which the other fields would proceed.

"To have a concurrent system of adjustment would mean that in each of those conferences the operators and miners, not knowing what the other districts were going to do, would have difficulty in arriving at conclusions.

"By the old method the adjustment in the central competitive coal field would not, under the existing circumstances, carry an adjustment in the outlying fields and the same spirit of unrest would continue in those fields after the central field had adjusted its difficulties and until they themselves had arrived at an understanding.

Wants All Fields Represented.

"Consequently, I desire to recommend to this conference that wage scale committees, representative of all of the fields, proceed to negotiate an adjustment, and in doing that, I want to make some further remarks in connection with the situation that, it seems to me, are essential to prompt action on the part of the conference, and prompt action is necessary. I want to impress that upon you.

"As long as your troubles are local in character, as long as your disputes only affect a small part of the community, there would be no general disposition to hurry you in the consideration of the question involved. But when your dispute takes on the magnitude that affects the very social and industrial life of the entire country, then the people at large are justified, as a matter of self-protection and self-preservation, in insisting that you shall come to a speedy determination of the difficulties that you have had.

"The conference or convention of the United Mine Workers demanded a thirty-hour week, a 60 per cent. increase and a number of other things. It is but fair to you to say now, in the beginning of this conference, that a thirty-hour week, in the present industrial condition of the country and of the world, is impossible. I realize the fact that the miners seldom have the opportunity of working an average of thirty hours a week throughout the year. In the present year their opportunities have been less than thirty hours a week—between twenty-nine and thirty. The opportunity to work between twenty-nine and thirty hours a week has come to them on a maximum of forty-eight hours per week. If you make a maximum of thirty hours a week, then it means, in the circumstances surrounding the mining industry, very much less than thirty hours per week.

"There are three principal reasons for the large amount of broken time that miners have. One of these is the breakdowns, the accidents, that occur in mining operations. No matter how much you may cut the maximum working time, unless you eliminate it entirely, you will still have broken time from breakdowns, from mine accidents. A second cause is the seasonal demands for coal. In some portions of the country that is not very pronounced. Throughout the great Appalachian chain, the Alleghany Mountain region, there is little or no seasonal demand for coal. It is principally used for manufacturing and transportation purposes. In Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and parts of West Virginia, there is an extra demand for coal during the period of lake shipments; but when the lake shipments are not on, there is less demand for work at the mines. In the great western country, very large quantities of coal are used for domestic purposes. That makes a seasonal demand.

"We have not yet developed a method in bituminous mining by which we can overcome that seasonal demand for coal, because the coal of the Middle West does not lend itself readily to storage purposes during the Summer months. The coal of the mountain region can be stored with little deterioration, but the competition in normal times is so keen that the corporation that undertook to store, to go to the expense of storing its coal during the slack period, would be at a disadvantage with the corporation that did not go to the expense of storing its coal during that period. And so we are not in a position as yet to overcome the seasonal demand for coal.

Sees Transportation to Blame.

"The third reason is the matter of transportation, and to my mind it is the greatest of all of them. With the tremendous growth of our industries and our commerce during the last sixty or seventy years, our transportation systems, even with their phenomenal growth, have not been able to keep pace in equipment with the demands on them for transportation. We have never had a sufficient amount of motive power and rolling stock to take care of our transportation business at the peak of the load, as a consequence of which there has had to be developed a method of allotting cars to the different shipping interests, and in connection with the allotment of cars to mining operations the method that has been developed has been one of allotting the cars in proportion to the daily capacity of the mines.

"One can readily see where that leads to. Every operator of a mine is placed in the position where he must hire the largest number of men possible, to maintain the largest daily capacity that he can, in order to get a sufficient allotment of cars to meet the demands of his contracts, and results in continually employing more men in the mines than are needed for the production of the supply of coal for the use of the country.

"There is no way in which we can overcome those things at this time. No method has been developed by which we can overcome them, and if you reduce the hours of labor to six per day, there would still be the incentive on the part of the employer to employ more men than were needed to fill his contracts, because it would be necessary in order that he get an allotment of cars equal to the amount of contracts he has to fill.

"In addition to that, no one knows what the reduction would be in the producing capacity of the individual or mine by introducing a six-hour work day, and in these times, when we have not yet recovered from the destruction of war, we cannot afford to undertake the experiment of determining just what the loss of efficiency would be by reducing the number of hours to six per day or thirty per week. And so I say to you in the beginning that a thirty-hour week is impossible and in the interest of speed, in the interest of getting together, it ought to be eliminated.

Says 60 Per Cent. Demand Is Impossible.

"Another demand is for a 60 per cent. increase. I want to say to you very frankly also that a 60 per cent. increase is an impossibility. A 60 per cent. increase will put the miners out of line with the other workers of the country. The miners have had to face an increase in the cost of living. They have faced it manfully during the period of the war, but the miners are not the only ones who have had to face an increase in the cost of living—and coal goes into the cost of living from a thousand different angles, and if you increase the cost of coal out of proportion to the increase in the cost of living, then you make the balance of the people—wage workers and others—pay an extra amount in their increased cost of living, for the advantage of the miners.

"And so a 60 per cent. increase, in my judgment, is an impossibility.

"But I want to say to you also that the standpat position taken by the operators heretofore is also an impossibility. Recognizing that the war is still in existence, that legally there is still a continuance of the war, that legally the contract you have made with the miners is still in existence, I still assert that the standpat position of the operators is an impossibility.

"The contract was entered into; the contract exists. If any great change is made in that contract toward increasing the cost of coal, the people of the United States, as a whole, are the ones who will have to pay, and I want to say to you that the people of the United States are not Shylocks. They are not insisting upon the collection of the technical provisions of the bond when the conditions under which the bond was made have been materially changed. I do not know what the ultimate figures will develop. So far as the figures in my possession are concerned, they reveal this:

"That the cost of living on a weighted family budget has increased somewhere between 73 and 79 per cent.; that the wages of miners, during the same period—1914—have increased somewhere from 34 to 50 per cent., with the exception of certain classes of day labor that have been increased 76 or 78 per cent. Notwithstanding the terms of the bond, the increase in the cost of living is an existing fact, and relief ought to be given to these miners on a basis of the justice of the situation.

Wants Coal Price Held Down.

"The United States Government, as a means of protecting its people against profiteering, has imposed a selling price of coal. It has no desire to retain that maximum price at the figures set, if retaining that maximum price at those figures does an injustice to the miners or to anybody else, but it will not consent to an increase of the selling price of coal to a point that would do an injustice to the consuming public.

"I feel that these are matters that you should have in your minds when you proceed to the consideration of the questions before you. I presume that, under the existing circumstances, each of you, or at least some of each of you, will be prepared to hurl rocks at the other.

"My judgment is that it would be well for the benefit of the record to take it for granted that some of the operators are prepared to call some of the miners Bolsheviki, I. W. W.'s, Reds, and under the control of these elements. I think we may just as well, for the sake of the record, take it for granted that some of the miners are ready to accuse some of the operators of being coal barons, profiteers, and taskmasters, and having assumed that for the sake of the record, further assume that your rock quarries have been exhausted, and get down to the real question of determining what is just and fair to the operators, what is just and fair to the miners, and what is just and fair to the public as a whole, and to do that I renew my suggestion that a committee be created of operators and miners, representative of each of the fields, to determine the basic wage rates in the respective districts.

"I shall be glad to hear from you on the subject."

There was a big representation of both miners and operators at the opening session of the conference today and the spirit exhibited was remarkably peaceful in view of the situation which has developed. This tendency, in fact, was accepted as one of the more important indications of what might be expected.

Lewis Questions Secretary Wilson.

John L. Lewis, who occupied a seat in the front row in the hall during the proceedings, spoke for the miners. He sparred in an effort to get Secretary Wilson on record as favoring an extension of the agreements to the fields outside the Central Competitive field, even to include the nonunion fields, but obtained no direct statement from Mr. Wilson. He then said that the miners were not prepared to make an immediate answer but would do so tomorrow morning.

It was agreed here tonight that the program set forth by Secretary Wilson, the extension of a formal agreement program to the nonunion fields, would represent a victory for the United Mine Workers of America and be a step toward what is known as the "closed shop" in the other mine fields. The operators, it was held, would oppose this and it is not thought that there will be insistence on that point by the mine workers in view of the unusual situation involved. However, the decision will be reached tomorrow and it is possible that some compromise will be reached, especially if the miners agree to drop the demand for the 60 per cent. increase, the six-hour day and the five-day week.

CHICAGO IS SHORT OF COAL.

Regional Committee Cancels Former Excepted Classes.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—T. W. Proctor, Chairman of the Regional Coal Committee, issued the following statement today:

"In view of the fact that the miners have not shown a disposition to resume work in the mines, it has been decided to request applications for coal in all classes in order that the supply on hand may be so regulated that there can be no possibility of distress by the overconsumption of the former excepted classes.

"Formerly the coal requirements of the following priority classes were previously filled by the railroads without applications being made direct to this office:

"1. Railroads.

"2. Army and navy, together with other departments of the Federal Government.

"3. State and county departments and institutions.

"4. Public utilities.

"Dealers have been requested to so regulate their distribution that there can be no preferred customer's list."

CENTRALIA'S MAYOR TO ELIMINATE I. W. W.

All Possible Means Will Be Utilized for That Purpose, He Wires to The Times.

GIVES CAUSES OF OUTBREAK

Mayor T. C. Rogers of Centralia, Wash., in response to a request from THE NEW YORK TIMES for information concerning the situation there, sent the following dispatch:

Centralia, Wash., Nov. 14.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Associated Press dispatches, so far as I have seen, state the incidents of the I. W. W. outbreak here on Armistice Day with substantial correctness. The situation here is now well in hand. There was never any wild mob at the worst time. The people were quiet. The city is guarded by militia, a small detail. Order prevails. The city and surrounding country are being systematically scoured for I. W. W.

The State has taken charge of certain I. W. W. prisoners for prosecution, and the Federal Government is taking charge of others. The city government's policy is to eliminate the I. W. W. absolutely, and all means possible will be utilized to that end. No pains will be spared. The community is overwhelmed with grief but determined to rid itself of this menace. The American Legion epitomizes all that is best in America.

As to the causes of the outbreak, they are, in my opinion, as follows:

"Hatred of the American Legion by the I. W. W., an attempted carrying out of their well-known policy and purpose of revolution and overthrowing the Government; laxness of the Federal Government in dealing with seditionists, Socialists, slackers, and the riffraff of the race; favoritism of the Federal Government toward the radical labor element; the patting on the back of socialism, which is the anteroom to Bolshevism, by the country generally for the past twenty years; the sapping of the judiciary, independence, poor laws, the unrestrained assault on the country's institutions for the past twenty years, and the use of the mails by the Red press, such as The Appeal to Reason, and The Seattle Union Record.

T. C. ROGERS, Mayor.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Nov. 14.—Testimony offered at the Coroner's inquest here Thursday, which it was said had sufficient influence on the jury to prevent it from finding a verdict placing on the I. W. W. blame for the tragedy here last Tuesday, when four former service men were killed by alleged I. W. W.'s, will not affect the prosecution's case, it was said here today by Assistant County Attorney C. D. Cunningham.

Testimony offered by Dr. Frank J. Bickford, a participant in the Armistice Day parade, was to the effect that no shots were fired from the I. W. W. hall, or the Avalon Hotel opposite, until marchers broke ranks and started for the hall. Dr. Bickford said the first shower of bullets came as the paraders reached the door of the I. W. W. hall. Describing the manner in which the affray started, Dr. Bickford said some one suggested raiding the hall.

"I spoke up and said I would lead if enough would follow," he testified, "but before I could take the lead there were many ahead of me. Some one placed his foot against the door and forced it open, after which a shower of bullets poured through the opening and about us."

Dr. Bickford then told how he stooped to avoid being shot, and then gave professional aid to McElfresh, the first ex-service man to die. He also testified to hearing shots fired from the direction of the Avalon Hotel across the street.

"The shooting and the movement of men were as near simultaneous as any human act could be," according to Dr. Herbert Y. Bell, another ex-service man, who was participating in the parade, who spoke of seeing men in front of him break ranks.

According to the testimony of A. P. Cormiere, another ex-service man, who acted as Adjutant of the procession, the first shots came from the Avalon Hotel. Bullets from the hotel were whistling all around him, he testified, one of which caused the death of Lieutenant Warren O. Grimm. Cormiere was on horseback half a block from the hotel when the shooting started.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Nov. 14, (Associated Press.)—Arrangements were made, today, to file murder charges against eleven men, ten of whom have been arrested following the attack of alleged members of the Industrial Workers of the World on the Armistice Day parade which resulted in the deaths of four former service men. Public memorial services for the four victims were held today under the auspices of the American Legion.

Search was continued in nearby towns for sixteen alleged Industrial Workers of the World who were reported en route to Centralia bearing arms.

The failure of the Coroner's Jury to fix responsibility for the deaths of the four former soldiers, C. D. Cunningham, Assistant County Attorney, declared, would not affect the cases of the I. W. W. held in jail. He said the prosecution had witnesses who were in the front ranks of the parade and who insist shots were fired from the I. W. W. hall before any of the marchers started toward the building.

Dr. Frank J. Bickford testified at the Coroner's inquest that one of the marchers had put his foot against the door of the I. W. W. hall before a shot had been fired. Cunningham was of the opinion that Dr. Bickford failed to hear the first shots and saw only the crowd of marchers moving toward the hall.

Bert Bland, an alleged member of the I. W. W., who, according to Cunningham, will be charged with murder in connection with the shooting, is being sought in nearby towns. He is the only one not in jail of the eleven to be charged with murder. Bland, it has been charged, fired the shots that killed Warren Grimm, Commander of the Local Legion Post. A description of the fugitive has been sent to police authorities throughout the country.

Captain Lloyd Dysart, a prominent member of the American Legion here, said today that the former service men in his organization had obtained a sworn confession from one of the arrested men proving that a plot existed to attack the Armistice Day parade.

C. A. Godfrey, who described himself as a millworker, was shot in the shoulder this morning as he was driving through Chehalis in an automobile. A former service man, acting as a guard, fired the shot after Godfrey had disregarded commands to halt.

TROOPS GUARD STATE HOUSE.

Colorado's Governor Takes Precautions Against Reds.

DENVER, Nov. 14.—As a measure of precaution during the present period of unrest, a detail of National Guardsmen, armed with rifles and bayonets, was placed on guard at Colorado's State House today. Fifteen men, under Major Marshall, were assigned to the duty. The request for the guard came from Governor Shoup's office.

"While there is no evidence of any definite plot," Major Marshall said, "the administration feels that it would be neglecting its duty if it did not provide adequate protection at this time. The guard will be on duty continuously, with outside sentries posted at night, and will be maintained indefinitely."

ATTACK ARMY AND A. F. OF L.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Virulent attacks upon the soldiers of the United States Army and bitter tirades against the American Federation of Labor were found in revolutionary literature taken from several foreigners arrested in Gary, Ind., today by the military authorities.

The literature is of a highly inflammatory nature and apparently is the work of a leader of the I. W. W. One sample of the leaflet found on one prisoner follows:

"They, the soldiers, are recruited from the underworld of the great cities. They are rat-faced individuals with cunning, vicious faces, the kind that have lost all sense of decency and shame."

Another piece of literature contains the declaration that "free America is surcharged with the virulent spirit of blackest Russia under the regime of Czar Nicholas before the coming of the revolution that is now offering comfort and cheer to the workers of the world."

BUSINESS MEN TO FIGHT REDS.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 14.—Declaring that the Centralia (Wash.) slaughter was the direct result of "treacherous un-American meetings, such as have been held in Rockford recently," local members of the Rotary Club have demanded that city authorities prevent radical assemblies here.

One hundred and thirty-five representative business men of the city pledged themselves to aid in expelling from Rockford any "Red" agitators, I. W. W. leaders of "Flaming Shirt" radicals who appear in public halls.

This action was precipitated by the importation this week by a foreign society of a Chicago I. W. W. speaker, who urged the overthrow of the American Government.

LARKIN AND GITLOW FACE INDICTMENT

BAIL FIXED AT $15,000

Chief City Magistrate McAdoo held James Larkin and ex-Assemblyman Benjamin Gitlow in $15,000 bail for the Grand Jury yesterday, holding that a clear case of violating the criminal anarchy statute had been made out against them, and stating incidentally that every member of the Communist Party in this State, numbering 7,500 or more, was guilty of criminal anarchy in becoming a member of the party.

Larkin and Gitlow have not obtained bail and are still in the Tombs.

Magistrate McAdoo said that the editorials and articles in The Revolutionary Age, published by Larkin, Gitlow, and others, clearly urged the destruction of the Government by violence, although the phraseology used in the paper sometimes indicated that the authors had the statute against criminal anarchy in mind and were seeking to bring their propaganda within the letter of the law. Such occasional displays of caution, the Magistrate asserted, did not rob the work of the pair of its criminality.

Neither Gitlow nor Larkin is a member of the Communist Party, although the charge against them was based largely on their circulation of the outgivings of that organization, which was formed in September of this year in Chicago for the purpose of bringing all direct-action, revolutionary radicals into one organization. Magistrate McAdoo said that the manifesto of that party, pledging its members to seek the destruction of this Government and the substitution of a proletariat dictatorship, was proof in itself of the criminal character of the organization, and that a man who joined it committed an overt act against the laws of the State.

Strength of Communist Party.

Regarding the Communist Party, Magistrate McAdoo said:

"A few years back, if any one had said that in this year of grace, 1919, there would be, in the City of New York, known to the authorities, between seventy and eighty official headquarters of a criminal organization like this, well equipped with money and the rooms bulging with literature, more dangerous to civilization than microbes of disease are to the human body, he would have been laughed at. Nearly eighty recruiting barracks of this Red army are in the City of New York, with thousands of members and apparently unlimited money from at home or abroad. If this is not, in the language of the statute, an attempt to overthrow and destroy the organized State, what is? To fail to enforce this law, therefore, under the circumstances would be, on the part of public officers, judicial and otherwise, a species of treason against the State itself."

"The bitter intolerance which this paper exhibits towards any possible difference of opinion might well be called to the attention of dilettante parlor Socialists and pseudo anarchists who are looking for nervous excitement and notoriety and easy-going gentlemen in and out of juries and civic forums who are condemning the zeal of the officers of the law in the pursuit of this and kindred organizations, and here to remind them that in this projected revolution, as in those hitherto enacted, the Jacobins are to swallow and destroy the Girondists."

The Class Revolution.

"The manifesto starts out with a bitter arraignment and condemnation of what it calls the moderate Socialist Party and the American Federation of Labor, and organized skilled artisans generally. It accuses the Socialist Party of having betrayed socialism, especially in aiding and abetting the military operations of the different countries during the recent war. The existing political state and all the social and economic conditions which exist under it are condemned without measure. It is declared to be beyond redemption and must be utterly and thoroughly destroyed root and branch. To this end, all reformatory measures intended to beget better social and economic conditions are denounced, and the Communist Party is pledged to refrain from aiding parliamentary action. Voting by ballot and participating in government is to thwart the coming of the revolution. Everything is to be done to make social and economic conditions worse and not better, so as to produce universal unrest and discontent, later on to be goaded into desperation. The Socialist Party and the labor unions, in so far as they take part in parliamentary or government action, are utterly condemned and held up as public enemies. If one man is desperately discontented he must be a disease carrier to others, until the whole body is infected.

Hatred of the Middle Class.

"The common enemy, against which all organized revolutionary effort is to be directed, is the bourgeoisie or middle class of people—from the owner of the department store to the keeper of the small shop, from the great steel works to the little smithy on the village street, from the President of a college to the bookkeeper in the office, and always to include what they denominated as the main props of the 'capitalistic' State, the pulpit, the army, and the police. These forces are to be utterly beaten down and destroyed. The State is to be owned and controlled by the proletariat. This proletariat is to consist in bulk of hitherto unorganized manual laborers, but does not include farmers, who in the nature of things as owners of property would be dominated as bourgeoisie and looked upon as enemies.

"Having overthrown organized government, the State is therefore to be in the possession of a class. It is noticeable that throughout this paper it is always the proletariat that is to rule and not the majority of the whole people. It is class rights that must be dominant. Under cries of liberty the voice of the majority is to be stifled by force."

Archibald E. Stevenson, special counsel to the Lusk Committee, said yesterday that he believed that the State had a perfect case against Larkin and Gitlow and would bring them to trial at the earliest possible date.

Senator Clayton R. Lusk, Chairman of the legislative committee which is investigating Bolshevism and radicalism, sailed for Europe yesterday on the Rotterdam, expecting to be gone four weeks. He is making the trip primarily on legal business in the interests of a client, it was said, but would put in as much time as possible studying the radical movement abroad.

An iron hand seal with the words "Executive Committee of the First United Russian Convention in America" was found yesterday by Patrick Pettit, a foreman in the Park Department, near Indian Lake, Crotona Park, the Bronx. It was sent to Sergeant J. J. Gegan of the Anarchist Squad at police headquarters, who said that it had probably been thrown away by radicals frightened by the raids of last week. Circulars of the Russian convention, calling for the overthrow of this Government and the establishment of Soviets, have been found by the Federal authorities in Baltimore and by the Lusk Committee in this city.

SEIZES NORTH DAKOTA MINES

Governor Sends Troops to Take Over Collieries—One Open.

Special to The New York Times.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 14.—Governor Lynn J. Frazier, under his proclamation of martial law, has completed the seizure by military force of North Dakota's thirty-four organized lignite mines, and he is now in control of 70 per cent. of the coal output of North Dakota.

The first mine to resume operation under State control was the Washburn lignite property at Wilton, which employs 300 union miners, who returned to work this morning after a week's idleness.

State militiamen dispatched to other fields to seize the mines were expected to be in possession by nightfall, and it was believed that a majority of the mines would be in operation tomorrow morning.

Governor Frazier hopes that the present mine managements will remain at their posts and operate the mines under his direction. The men whom Governor Frazier mustered into the State militia and placed in charge of the mines are not experienced in mining or, for the most part, in any executive capacity.

The usual avenues of distribution are to be used, the Governor announces. Maximum retail prices will be fixed and any dealer who asks more will be given no coal. Adjutant General Fraser, de facto mine manager for the State, has been instructed by the Governor to pay the operators a royalty of from 10 cents to 25 cents per ton, as compared with an ordinary profit of 40 cents, which has been the State average. Nothing has been said as to the disposition of the balance, which presumably will accrue to the State. The Governor has fixed the price of coal at $2.90 per ton at the mouth of the mine and it retails about $5.

LEGION AND GUARD TO REPEL I. W. W.

Legion here has decided to organize itself into a body of vigilantes to assist the city and county police in case of an emergency in this locality. A committee has been appointed to investigate the status of aliens who are known to have been under surveillance during the war.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 14.—The formation of Vigilance Committees by all Missouri posts of the American Legion, to combat "Red" activities and make prompt report of any such activities to proper authorities, was urged today by Sid Houston, State Commander, in a bulletin sent to all posts under his command. Mr. Houston announced that the Centralia, Wash., tragedy had resulted in large numbers of former service men enrolling in the legion.

SEATTLE PAPER SEIZED AGAIN.

Sixty-six Prisoners in Tacoma to be Prosecuted as Criminals.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 14 (Associated Press).—Renewed activity by both factions today marked the fight in the Northwest of Government agents against the I. W. W. organization.

The establishment of the Seattle Union Record was seized for the second time in twenty-four hours by John M. Boyle, United States Marshal, and publication stopped.

"My office," said Boyle, "received instructions to seize the entire plant and keep possession of it indefinitely."

E. B. Ault, editor of the Record, and two members of the paper's board of Directors are at liberty under bonds on charges of violating the Espionage act.

Prosecuting Attorney Askren, of Tacoma announced late today that he intended proceeding immediately against sixty-six alleged members of the I. W. W. held there on charges of criminal syndicalism.

Advices received at Aberdeen, Wash., said I. W. W. were responsible for the riddling with bullets of a large community flag flying on a hill above Chehalis today.

Raid on San Francisco Reds.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Nine men were arrested and a quantity of alleged "Red" literature was seized late today in two raids on radical headquarters. Police Captain John O'Meara, who conducted the raids, declared all members of the Industrial Workers of the World must leave town or go to jail.

WOULD WIDEN STEEL STRIKE

Organizers Call Out All Union Workers in the Mills.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14.—The National Committee in charge of the steel strike decided today that every man now working in a steel mill where a strike is in progress is a "scab," regardless of his trade or previous agreement with the employer. Company officials interviewed tonight say the union's decision will bring complications that they will not be able to solve, as many members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers are working in many mills where a strike has been called.

Chairman John Fitzpatrick before leaving today for his home in Chicago said:

"The mill owners are making a lot of remarks about the foreigners doing all the striking, while the Americans are working. They know better now, for they have been informed that the foreigners they brought here to take the places of the Americans have become Americanized themselves, and are striking for what they cannot get in the old country—justice and equity of labor production.

"The steel magnates will soon be facing a shortage in finished steel products which will bring disaster to them unless they make peace with the men and get the plants back to producing conditions. Belching out smoke from the stacks is not winning the strike. It is production that tells, and we have the right 'dope' on that. We are still positive of winning the strike."

STATE CLUB WOMEN ELECT.

Federation Names Directors and Chairmen—Ends Elmira Convention

Special to The New York Times.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Nov. 14.—The twenty-fifth annual convention of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs ended here this morning with the announcement of Directors and District Chairmen elected for the coming year. Other executives still have another year to serve.

The five new Directors are: Fifth District—Mrs. Sidney J. Kelly of Syracuse; Sixth District—Mrs. Thomas B. Kattell of Binghamton; Seventh District—Mrs. Sherman Clarke of Rochester; Eighth District—Mrs. William H. Robbins of Le Roy; Ninth District—Miss Lucie F. Vance of Yonkers.

ELKUS FOR BUDGET SYSTEM.

Former Ambassador Addresses Real Estate Owners' Association.

Abram I. Elkus, former Ambassador to Turkey and Chairman of the State Reconstruction Commission, was the principal speaker at a meeting of the Real Estate Owners' Association last night, at New York Turn Hall, Lexington Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street.

In this State, Mr. Elkus said, very few people troubled themselves or took any interest in finding out where the money for taxes went during the past year. With the advent of prohibition, he said, the excise tax has been eliminated, and in order to raise this money each year the people of the State will be taxed on the amount of their income just as they are taxed by the Government.

Instead of several officials controlling the State Government, Mr. Elkus said he believed it would be a wise plan for the people of the State to elect three officials, namely, the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and Controller, and in this way, he said, narrow the responsibility. He declared that New York State should have a budget system. Under the present system, he said, the amount of money spent by the State is not tabulated until the end of the year, and appropriation is then made for the expenditures. A budget system, he insisted, would prove very economical to the State.

THOMAS A. HAMILTON DIES.

Thomas A. Hamilton, editor of The New York Herald, died at his home here last night after an illness of several months. He was connected with the Herald for more than a quarter of a century, serving for many years as financial editor.

Until six months ago, when his health failed, he was the chief editorial writer. He also was The Herald's representative at London and Paris for a number of years. Mr. Hamilton was 68 years old.

BRITISH LABOR HAILS JOINT RAIL CONTROL

Union Is Said to Have Accepted Government's Plan to Prevent Strikes in the Future.

LONDON, Saturday, Nov. 15.—It is understood that the executive of the National Union of Railwaymen has virtually agreed to accept the Government's proposal that railwaymen accept membership in committee management of the railways and that joint control of the railroads is a certainty of the immediate future.

The executive discussed the proposal privately yesterday, but will withhold a statement until tomorrow when Secretary Thomas will make a full declaration in a speech at Bristol.

Meanwhile, the Daily Mail's labor correspondent ascribes to C. T. Cramp, President of the National Union of Railwaymen, the receipt of a personal statement which convinces him that the railway workers have secured very momentous concessions which justifies him in believing that peace in the railroad industry is definitely in sight. The correspondent adds that there is still some small difference regarding a basis for the new standard wages which, however, is easily adjustable.

The future management of the railways, according to the writer, will be in the hands of a Joint Managing Committee under the new Ministry of Transport, to which the railway unions will appoint two representatives. It is further proposed to establish a railway labor board, consisting of four representatives of the railway managers, four union appointees, and four "railway users." One of the latter four is to be selected by the Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress, and another by co-operative societies. As a result, the representatives of the workers virtually will number six.

The board, according to President Cramp, is not to be an arbitration board, but will discuss questions concerning working conditions, the union reserving the right to refuse any settlement the board may reach and to retain the possible ultimate argument of a strike.

LADY WARWICK FOR STRIKE.

She Denounces Men Who Refuse to Leave Railroad Jobs.

BISHOP STORTFORD, England, Oct. 24, (Associated Press).—Twelve railway men employed at the station here, who remained at their posts during the recent strike, have been presented with a sum of money and an address of appreciation by the townspeople. The Countess of Warwick, who has a residence here and uses the station when living in town, was invited to contribute to the fund. She sent this response:

"Lady Warwick is amazed at the communication sent her, which she returns herewith. It is incredible that any thoughtful person should commend disloyalty to a union for momentary reward.

"The railway men who stood aside reap the benefits of the great victory achieved by their fellows, as did the occupants of snug and safe berths during the war, while others fought for them.

"Lady Warwick will have nothing to do with blacklegs."

the decisions of the commissions, nothing to prevent a deadlock in the commission and the last resort is the weapon now in the hands of railroad employees—the strike.

Adjustment Board 1 is empowered to deal with the troubles growing out of disputes connected with the four big brotherhoods. It shall consist of eight members, four to be selected and compensated by the carriers, and four by the officers of the brotherhoods.

Esch Pleads for Strike Curb.

Adjustment Board No. 2 under the amendment will deal with the problems connected with the International Association of Machinists, the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers of America, the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' International Alliance, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

It is to have a membership of twelve, half of whom are to be selected by the unions and the other half by the railroad executives.

The third Adjustment Board is to deal with the disputes of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, Switchmen's Union of North America, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, and the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railroad Shop Laborers. It is to have eight members, selected as are the other boards.

The Commissions on Labor Disputes, of which there shall be three, are constituted in the same way, and have the same number of members as the boards of original jurisdiction.

Representative John J. Esch, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, in charge of the bill, and other members of the committee urged the House to accept the committee provision. Mr. Esch said that without some way to prevent strikes the country would find industry paralyzed some day by a nation-wide strike. He insisted that the provision assessing damages on railroads in case of lockouts and upon unions for a breach of contracts, represented the necessary step in progressive labor legislation.

Representative Sweet of Iowa, author of the amendment presented by Mr. Anderson, explained that its central thought was equal representation by the parties in interest so that they might sit down elbow to elbow and adjust their differences.

"But the trouble with your method and the committee provision is that it permits of a deadlock, while the public is interested in seeing a method employed which will give a solution and end the inconvenience due to strikes," insisted Mr. Newton of Minnesota.

"I would not go so far as to make individual members of unions subject to damages, but without that I think the amendment should be agreed to," said Representative Snell of New York. "This amendment does something, while the committee amendment gets nowhere, and is so complicated that it cannot be easily understood or interpreted. The railroad employes should not have the right to strike pending a settlement of a dispute. It is time to put some positive and definite proposal before the country, and we should prevent either strikes or lockouts pending a decision on labor disputes."

"Labor's best friend is not the man who does exactly what they ask," he said, "and the best friend of the railways is not the man who does exactly what the railroads want. The best friend to the interests of both labor and employer is the one who considers the interests of both and does what is best for the country. The Anderson amendment is supported by those representing districts where railroad union labor and the brotherhoods are strong.

"As to the Webster plan, which makes individuals liable for damages for strikes, I cannot bring myself to believe that it is right to punish those who strike and am not in favor of making the property of an individual liable for the damage caused by some one else who strikes. The committee amendment takes one safer, saner, middle ground that will be effective and yet not unjust to any one."

Ex-Speaker Cannon favored the Webster amendment while ex-Speaker Clark opposed it and Representative Frank W. Mondell, Republican floor leader, favored the committee amendment.

"Pending conciliation of labor disputes, strikes should be made unlawful," said Mr. Cannon. "That is the whole meat in the cocoanut. Let us have mediation and have the decision made by a court."

"I am dead against the Webster amendment," declared Mr. Clark. "If it is put into this bill, I will vote against it. I will never agree that the little home of a laboring man in Missouri shall be seized and his wife and children turned out to grass because of the offense of a man in another State. The Webster amendment is inhuman, nonsensical and unconstitutional, and any court in the land which has any knowledge of law or any self-respect should so declare it."

since it means nothing less than our greatest wealth, so coveted by foreign interests.

"You are probably familiar with the statements made by George Creel to our good friend Manuel Carpio on President Wilson's views with regard to the nationalization of petroleum in Mexico.

"Steps are at present being taken in the United States by the working classes, radical Socialists, honest intellectuals, &c., with a view not only to nationalizing natural resources but to socializing industries in general.

"For your satisfaction and that of the members of the Constitutional Assembly, I must say that you set the example. I can testify to this for I have been on the scene of action since 1914. In 1917 I was in Washington in charge of our embassy when you took the transcendental step of nationalization. From that moment I made up my mind to engage in propaganda favorable to us by having our constitution printed in English. I have talked with prominent Socialists of the United States, England, and Russia, and they have all informed me that our constitution is read with enthusiasm in these countries, especially those portions dealing with labor and with Article 27; only Russia, by nationalizing lands, has gone further than we have. This is what we lack to assure our economic independence, the basis of the sovereignty of all peoples.

"You will also have seen in the press that England has nationalized its coal mines and that similar steps are being taken in France.

"The social movement in the United States is of such importance at the present time that from one moment to another there may be a change in the general order of things. There is a terrible dislocation between capital and labor. The conciliation conference between industrials and working men have failed. Throughout the United States there is a clamor for the socialization of industries. It would be bad if we, who initiated the movement, should abandon it through a weakening of principles or through unfounded fears. I believe you should uphold the principle of nationalization against wind and weather, not permitting, on any ground whatever, the present owners of oil wells to fail to recognize the sovereignty of our nation to the subsoil in general, including their properties.

"I am following closely the movement in this country on petroleum, and as the majority of those who have started it are friends of mine, I am in a position to advise you on the subject. They have two tendencies: Either to nationalize petroleum, or to have petroleum pass into the hands of the Government so that it may develop it, with the privilege of leasing the lands, but never to aliens, through the fear that England may corner the whole petroleum of the world. If you so wish I shall keep you advised as to these events, so that you may govern your action in the Senate accordingly.

"I felicitate you most warmly on your attitude and beg you to extend these felicitations to our good friend and colleague Carlos Plank. I did not include him in my cablegraphic message, because I was not aware that he was in the Senate.

"With warm regards, I am, etc.

"R. P. DE NEGRI."

That Mexico is now conducting a well-organized propaganda in this country is known to certain departments of the Government. It was recently stated that $500,000 had been set aside for the financing of the propaganda and that in addition to Mexicans there were some Americans identified with the work. Some of these Mexican propagandists are said to be out and out sympathizers with the I. W. W., the Bolshevist and other radical movements in this country.

REDS STIR MINERS TO WALK OUT AGAIN

are of middle age, and they decided to obey the letter of the strike cancellation order. The mine employs about eighty men.

"Not a mine of the 137 properties owned by the members of the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' Association is working today," was the announcement made by S. W. Gardner, Commissioner of the organization. The Bessette Coal Company is not affiliated with the association.

Refuse to Return to Mines.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 14.—Local unions of the coal miners have begun adopting resolutions announcing the determination of the men not to return to work until a settlement has been made.

"This shows that there will be no work at the Kansas mines until an agreement has been reached," August Dorchy, District Vice President of the miners in Pittsburgh, Kans., said today.

So far as it could be learned today no Kansas mines were working, although the mines were ready and whistles late yesterday announced the fact to the men.

JOLIET, Ill., Nov. 14.—Miners in the Wilmington coal district at meetings last night voted to ignore the strike recall, and will remain idle until settlement is made on the demands on the operators. They also refused to allow maintenance men in the mines to stay on duty.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 14.—Unionized coal mines in Iowa remained idle today, but there were reports that both miners and operators expected to see the men return to work Monday.

McALESTER, Okla., Nov. 14.—Not a union mine in Oklahoma is working today, according to reports received by J. B. Wilson, Commissioner for the Oklahoma Coal Operators' Association. Union officials received an order from Indianapolis canceling the strike, but declare it is not authoritative, because it is not stamped with the United Mine Workers of America international seal. Neither is it signed by John L. Lewis, Acting President, and the signature of W. M. Green is typewritten, it is pointed out. Furthermore, the order merely cancels the strike call for Nov. 1, they say, and does not say anything about returning to work.

Ohio Situation Is Unchanged.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 14.—Without notable exception the coal mining situation in Ohio today remained unchanged with most of the 40,000 Ohio coal miners remaining out, according to available reports to operators and United Mine Workers' headquarters. That the majority of the miners prefer continuing on strike pending results of the conference between the operators and miners' officials at Washington was the opinion of both operators and union headquarters in this city.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 14.—Conditions in the Illinois soft coal fields where 90,000 miners are on strike were static today. Early indications bore out the assertion of miners in various sections of the State that the return of the mine workers to work would await the outcome of the joint scale conference.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 14.—Seven thousand coal miners in Wyoming are to return to work at once following a satisfactory settlement of the controversy between union leaders and the operators here late today. The terms of settlement provide the men are to return to work on the wage scale adopted later for use in the central competitive field.

GERMAN PROTOCOL MISSION COMING

NEW DELAY IS IN SIGHT

PARIS, Nov. 14.—The German delegation, which was invited by the Supreme Council to be at Paris on Nov. 19 to sign the protocol to the Peace Treaty, will arrive on Nov. 17, according to an announcement made tonight. The Germans will therefore be one week late. But the Allies will have their revenge. The Germans will learn that more than one side can play at the game of delay, for while the Allies were ready last Monday at the time set to discuss the protocol they will not be ready next Monday.

The most important part of the protocol providing for Germany's fulfillment of armistice terms was the clause stipulating that Germany must hand over some 400,000 tons of floating docks and other maritime equipment to pay for the surrendered German warships sunk by their crews in Scapa Flow last Summer. Last Monday the question of the division of this tonnage among the Allies was held in abeyance; but when the Germans failed to put in an appearance the Council took up the question of dividing the tonnage, with the result that the Americans asked for time to submit the proposition to Washington. No reply has been received, and none is expected between now and Monday. And so the Germans' action in keeping the Allies waiting a week will be repaid in kind.

There seems to be little hurry about the protocol, anyway. When the Council invited the Germans to be present on Nov. 10 the ratification of the Peace Treaty by the American Senate was thought to be near, and therefore it was held unprofitable to let the protocol be signed quickly. But now, that American ratification does not seem to be near, things are different. For England, France, and Italy have not yet decided to give up waiting for America, despite all discouragement, and to put into effect without the United States. Germany intends to contest the legality of the allied commissions which will have no American members. The Allies dread this, for unquestionably the speed and efficacy of the treaty enforcement machinery depends somewhat on German co-operation, which the Germans threaten not to give unless America is represented on the reparation and other treaty commissions.

The Inland Navigation Commission consists of Herr von Simson, Director of the Office of Foreign Affairs in Berlin; Herr Gauss, Counselor of Legation; Herr Loehrs, Captain von Gayern, Major Michaelis and Herr von Boeticher. Baron Lucius von Ballhausen, representative in Paris, will sit with the commission. The Germans are expected to advance fervid arguments that the Berlin Government was not responsible for the sinking of the warships and therefore should not have to make good their loss to the Allies.

The Council devoted an hour today to discussing the ownership of eight tank steamers which were operated before the war by a German subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company. The seizure of the imperator by the United States Shipping Board is considered in certain quarters here as having been a step taken because of the wish of the American Government to prevent the Allies from getting these eight tankers.

The American delegation appears desirous of giving former American owners of these ships a chance to prove their title to [illegible] Commission, and urges that in the meanwhile they be operated by American or German crews.

The question of these tankers is extremely complicated and is made so by the action of the Shipping Board in seizing the Imperator without consulting the American peace delegation as to the effect of that action on the negotiations in Paris.

Germany was called on to surrender these ships with others in compliance with the armistice terms. The German representatives here before the allied representatives the dire need of the German industries for oil, and it was agreed by the Supreme Council that Germany might use the tankers to bring oil from America. German agents thereupon made contracts in America for oil to be taken to Germany in these tankers and nine others.

Two months ago the Reparation Commission of the Conference on which America is not represented, ordered these tankers sent to the Firth of Forth to be divided among the Allies. The Americans then called attention to the promise the Council had made to the Germans, and it was agreed that, although the ships must be surrendered to the Allies, they would be allowed to make two trips to America to take oil to Germany.

At this stage the Standard Oil Company asked the American Government to look out for its interests, pointing out that the Government had declared that it would hold the sale of these ships to the Germans, and that if they were not sold to the Germans, and if, as was the case, the German Government had not seized them during the war, they must remain the property of their former American owners.

The Council took no action on the matter. It is predicted that so long as the American Shipping Board retains the Imperator somebody else will keep the tankers. That is not putting the situation diplomatically, but it is putting it truthfully.

PARIS, Nov. 14, (Associated Press.)—The Council discussed a new method of partition of the coal of Upper Silesia and named a commission to supervise the plebiscite in the Teschen district. The date of the plebiscite was postponed by the Council to permit the members of the commission to establish themselves in the district.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Imagine New York without newspapers, with Congressional elections due next week, and you have the situation of Paris today. Following the example of the Nationalist daily papers yesterday, the Bolshevist and Socialist newspapers succeeded this morning in bringing out a combination journal entitled La Feuille Commune to present the extremists' cause to the electors.

The Socialist paper is certainly more readable—more "vivant," as French critics say—than the rival Nationalist organ, although it contains even less news than the latter. One feature of the new paper is a manifesto of the printers' strike committee, asserting that the strike is due to the action of the newspaper owners, who promised six months ago, when the printers made demands for an increase in pay, to start a comprehensive campaign against the high cost of living but failed to keep their word.

The only constructive suggestion in either paper this morning is put forward by a Socialist group, which suggests that newspaper workers organize a co-operative association, which would reduce the cost of living 25 per cent. for members, and that Sunday issues of newspapers be provisionally discontinued in order to enable the proprietors to pay higher [illegible] for the abolition of all but their own journals during the first week of the electoral period. The Matin and Petit Parisien and the rest of the big dailies have their own printing plants, whereas some of the non-Socialist journals has. The latter figured on provoking a strike and stopping the Nationalist papers and being able to bring out their own. What happened was exactly contrary to their expectations. The non-Socialist proprietors, who had already arranged a combination to meet such an emergency, had no difficulty in persuading the owners of the various private printing plants that their interests were directly opposed to those of the Socialists. The master printers consequently refused to print Socialist papers, and the extremists' journal Cherchez le Loup with Lair'own petard.

La Presse de Paris, the Nationalist journal, is being printed on the presses of the Petit Parisien, which is owned by Jean Dupuy, President of the Paris Newspaper Owners Association. Yesterday's printing order was the over 3,000,000 copies.

The general labor situation here is undoubtedly delicate. The strike in the great department stores is slowly but surely extending. It is stated today that the strike against the big Potin grocery firm, which acts as a kind of regulator for the prices of foodstuffs, is likely to extend to other concerns in the same trade.

The newspaper proprietors are fully decided to put up strong resistance to the strikers' demands for increases, and it is considered very probable that the strike leaders may call a strike throughout the whole printing trade, whereas at present only newspapers are involved.

The concerns and the quantity of whisky they expressed a desire to sell were I. W. Bernheim Distilling Company, 14,257 gallons; Hilmer Ehrmann Distilling Company, 2,500 gallons; J. Schuh & Sons, 2,000 gallons. This was a total of 18,757 gallons.

BOLSHEVISM ISSUE OF FRENCH ELECTION

Prediction Is for Victory of Bloc National and Law and Order.

SOCIALISTS LOSE GROUND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—The Parliamentary elections in France on Sunday promise a clear-cut victory for the forces of law and order, according to observers here. The only issue that amounts to anything is the "Bolshevik or anti-Bolshevik" issue. In this issue the Bolshevik elements in the political life of the republic seem on the eve of a crushing defeat. This, in turn, means defeat for the Socialists, because the Socialists have incorporated in their political army the Bolshevist faction.

It is seldom that France has had an election such as this. There are in France no stable, defined, great political parties as there are in America. There are a dozen or more parties at all times, and often parties are formed for the purposes of one election. The issues are generally overlapping and far from definite in outline. But the Bolshevist issue has clarified things this time. All parties constituting what is called the Centre in French politics are united under the name of Bloc National.

On the other hand, all parties of the Left, which means all the Socialists, united on common tickets. The Right, which consisted of Royalists and Clericals, also formed an election party called Action Francaise and put out their ticket. But the Bloc National and the Socialists are fighting it out.

The Bloc National battle cry is "Down with Bolshevism in France." The Socialist platform is put forward with the cry of "Down with capitalistic domination of Government." But the Socialists have allowed the friends of Soviet Russia to join with them and that is where they appear to have made a fatal tactical error. Last May the Socialists appeared to be growing in strength in France. It looked then as if the next election would greatly increase their participation in the Paris Government.

But today how different are their prospects. There is discontent in France, deep discontent. The high cost of living causes much criticism of the Government and there has been much dissatisfaction with the Peace Treaty with Germany. But the Socialists have failed to put themselves in a position to take advantage of this discontent. This because they have made two mistakes—first, the labor unions, which the Socialists always back up, have overplayed the strike game, and secondly, the Socialist leaders have leaned too far toward Bolshevism.

The effect of too many strikes has been to exasperate the average man. Paris is sick of strikes and France is sick of strikes. Mention strike to a Frenchman and you put him in a fighting mood. The Socialists, of course, would blame all strikes on the employers and the Government, but your average citizen who finds his subway not running, finds his gas and light stove closed and finds his newspaper unpublished has now reached the stage where he blames the strikers for his troubles in these directions, and therefore blames the Socialists.

As for other tactics of the Socialists, they allowed Longuet to do the leading and make keynote speeches. The Frenchmen of the towns and villages and countryside—and the Socialists' own re-

PROVIDENCE POLICE PERMIT BEER SALE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 14.—The Police Commission today decided to act under the preliminary injunction granted by Federal Judge Arthur Brown against enforcement of the wartime prohibition act, and to allow the saloons to sell malt beverages containing not more than 4 per cent. alcohol without interference. This attitude was taken upon advice of the City Solicitor.

CALL 'PUSSYFOOT' A 'GOOD SPORT'

STUDENTS TO HONOR HIM

Injury to Eye So Serious That He Goes to Hospital—Methodists Denounce Mob.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—As a consequence of yesterday's "rag" "Pussyfoot" Johnson is now in bed with a ruptured eyeball, caused by a missile thrown by some one in the crowd. The police surgeon who examined the injury says there is a hemorrhage and that unless Johnson remains quiet he may lose the sight of his eye.

Johnson, in an interview, said that apart from the injury to his eye he thoroughly enjoyed the "rag" and bore no ill-will towards the students. He is satisfied none of them threw the missile and that they were not to blame. He laughed heartily while recounting his adventure and declared it would not, of course, stop his going on with his campaign.

The students who ragged "Pussyfoot" are now in a repentant mood and much concerned at the injury to his eye. At London University today the students carried the following resolution:

"The students of London University regret the accident to Mr. Pussyfoot's eye and wish to state that it was not done by any of the students of the university. They all hope he will soon recover. Orders were issued that there should be no 'rough housing' and that no sticks should be carried. It was purely a demonstration of the students' feeling against prohibition and was not intended as a personal matter."

Not content with this, they determined to carry their regrets to Johnson in person. A deputation was formed and the journey made to the house where the prohibition advocate was staying. Crossing the threshold, they by the manner of turning the patient in marked contrast to their noisy progress of the night before, they knocked quietly at the door, but were informed in the most intense disappointment that Johnson had been removed to a nursing home in the West End half an hour before on the advice of an ophthalmic specialist who had been called in to examine his eye.

Much concerned, they withdrew and decided to make another attempt to see him on Saturday.

A newspaper reporter who discovered Johnson today found him smiling. Asked if he thought he had been treated badly by the students, he replied:

"Not at all. From the boys there is no ill will on my side—not a grain. Tell them, too, not to make me out a hero. I am not a hero, but as soon as I knew what the boys were after, I played the game with them, and I want to assure them that in my opinion they played their game fair, too. They played cricket."

"I never asked for an invitation to speak anywhere, and never shall, but if I were invited to address the boys I would be very happy to do so, either as one of the colleges or anywhere.

Dr. Henry, one of the American speakers associated with Johnson, said that his colleague was suffering from a rupture of the right eyeball and a dislocation of the lens. The injury was regarded as serious and Johnson had gone to a nursing home in order that a specialist might pay him more frequent visits and keep him in quiet surroundings. Dr. Henry added that Johnson was pleased with the way in which the press had treated his part in the "rag."

"The very first question he put to me this morning," Dr. Henry said, "was, 'Did the newspaper boys roast me?' When I assured him that, if he had not done so he was very much pleased."

F. J. Anderson, Chairman of the Wine and Spirit Trade Defense Fund, has written to Johnson as follows:

"Permit me to offer my sincere regret at the treatment accorded you yesterday at Kesser Hall. Your campaign to secure prohibition in Great Britain will be strenuously opposed by British methods, but any sentiment deprecates anything which is not fair play."

LONDON, Nov. 14, (Associated Press.)—William H. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, the American prohibitionist, whose campaign in England was rudely interrupted Thursday by a band of students as a result of his attitude toward the adventure, is one of the most talked of of popular figures of the day. He commanded the biggest headlines in today's newspapers, and the general verdict of the writers was that he is "a good sport."

The opposition to the Anti-Saloon League organizer in London, it is said, has been based on the feeling that it was impertinent for an American prohibitionist to come to England to lecture the English on what they should do.

Baron Birkenhead, the Lord Chancellor, speaking at a peace celebration dinner here tonight, referred to the Johnson incident and said it was profoundly to be regretted that a visitor of the United States should be subjected to such an outrage.

"Mr. Johnson," he said, "was invited here by an association of English people who share his views. It was an association entitled to express his opinion as the Lord Chancellor would be in the United States, if invited there by an American association.

"Assailed by overwhelming odds, Mr. Johnson did all a man could do to defend himself, and, overwhelmed by numbers which should not be employed against a man of his age, he behaved as a sportsman, a gentleman, and a brave citizen of the United States."

"Hereafter," added the Lord Chancellor, "however unpopular his views might be, Johnson need never fear but that he will obtain a fair hearing here."

William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, yesterday notified the newspapers that he had sent a letter to William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson in London, the substance of which is embraced in the following extract:

"In the opinion of the New York office of the Anti-Saloon League you are a Christian gentleman and a game sport. It did us all good to read that when you were interviewed after you had been manhandled by the mob you were 'cheerful and chuckling' and said you had had 'quite a good time and thoroughly enjoyed it.'"

PROHIBITION LAW UPHELD IN COURTS

money, as in the case of Cotting against the Kansas City Stock Yards.

"Here is a question of national public policy, of allowing the sale of what the constituted authorities apparently regard as injurious to the public or to so much of it as they have a right to consider. To annul their will, if only for a season, is to do an injury which is, to say the least, as irreparable, if the laws be valid, as to prevent the plaintiffs from selling intoxicants for the same period if they are not.

"In all the books we are told that to declare a law unconstitutional we must be assured beyond question that it is such.

"A temporary stay now is a declaration for a time that it is unconstitutional—it is to dispense with statutes till the case is finally decided. Assuming that I may do so there seems to be no proper reason for exercising the power.

The motion for preliminary injunctions is denied and the bills dismissed." In handing down his decision in the Maryland Distillery Company case, Judge Rose dismissed the petition with the statement:

"It is not within the province of the judiciary to state when the war is at an end. That power is a legislative one. Personally I have no doubt that we are still technically at war, but I think that the President, when exercising his veto thought toward Congress something like this: 'Gentlemen, if you enact this bill, you are going over my personal actions since last Spring have so changed that beer and light wines should be permitted.'"

In discussing the powers of Congress, Judge Hand said:

"The real question is of the limits after the cessation of hostilities, of the powers of Congress to unravel the results which war has caused. That it has some such powers, as I have said, cannot be denied. The forces must be demobilized, the unnecessary accumulation of supplies must be sold, the railroads must be returned, our economy rebuilt after the shock of war; when the ships built and building must be disposed of, contracts must be canceled, and the immense organization of workmen and of factories and of machinery must be restored to the general industrial life of the nation.

"So much at least is within the powers of Congress, and in the execution of its powers it is not limited narrowly. I cannot see why it should be unlawful to provide a temporary ban against intoxicants, if in the opinion of Congress to deliver its soldiers and workmen to the places whence they came, and yet be held totally beyond its ken to inquire into the conditions which they must meet upon their arrival."

Commenting upon the contrary decision of Judge Brown in the Providence case Judge Hand says:

"Judge Brown, in the case of Narragansett Brewing Company vs. Baker and O'Shaughnessy, decided Nov. 12, 1919, has held that the year granted by the Eighteenth Amendment positively accords that period during which no prohibition legislation can be enacted.

"It would follow, of course, that had active hostilities continued through the year 1919, Congress would have been able to prevent any sale of intoxicants at all. I should suppose that consistently the argument would apply to districts in the neighborhood of cantonments, though that would perhaps have been too strong a position to assert. With deference it appears to me that the Eighteenth Amendment, giving only a year's grace, did not intrude upon the existing powers of Congress, whatever they were, any more than it intruded upon the powers of the States to regulate traffic in intoxicants domestically."

Revenue Agents Oldenthal and Driscoll arraigned four men whom they had arrested in Staten Island Thursday night before United States Commissioner Louis R. Bick in Brooklyn yesterday. They were Harry Kappey, bartender, and Henry Bugot, proprietor, of a saloon at 34 Richmond Terrace; Max Harris, bartender, and Mendel Fischbein, proprietor, of a saloon at 20 Richmond Turnpike. The Commissioner held each of them in $300 bail for examination later.

Two cases in which the constitutionality of the wartime prohibition law was questioned were brought before Judge E. L. Garvin in the Federal courts in Brooklyn yesterday. Demurrers to the indictment were argued in the cases which were those of John Hoffman, bartender, and Henry Migvewro, manager of the Fountain Inn at Lynbrook, L. I., and of William J. De Palos, bartender of the saloon of Samuel Wachtel at 336 Bateman Street, Brooklyn. It was argued that the indictments are insufficient, because not stating facts adequate to constitute a crime. It was further argued that the wartime prohibition law of Nov. 21, 1918, is no longer in force, and further that on Oct. 27 last the President of the United States declared that the demobilization of the army and navy had been accomplished, and that the purpose of the law was satisfied. Other technicalities were raised, and Judge Garvin reserved decision, requesting that briefs be submitted within ten days.

Lady Astor. She added that the presence of women in Parliament was also needed because there was so much current legislation which vitally concerned the home.

"I have always maintained that the right kind of woman candidate should be a wife, mother and politician," Mrs. Lloyd George said. "In Lady Astor all three of these are combined. I want to appeal to you very earnestly and sincerely to vote for Lady Astor. Work for her so that she may help fight our battles in the House of Commons."

The Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton, speaking at the same meeting, said that the American Senators might alter their antagonism to the League of Nations when they saw an American woman sitting in the British Parliament.

Lady Astor today received numerous letters wishing her success. Rear Admiral Harry P. Knapp, commander of the United States naval forces in European waters, wrote:

"I hope you will allow me to offer good wishes on your election, and that you may be returned, and that the first woman member of Parliament actively taking part in its deliberations may have come originally from God's country."

Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson of New York, sister of Lady Astor; Sir Cyril Maude, the actor-manager, and other persons well known in the United States and England sent similar messages.

Mrs. Lyttelton denounced as idiotic the criticism of Lady Astor on account of her American birth. She said it was nothing strange that in the city from which sailed the Pilgrim Fathers one of their descendants should stand as the candidate of the people.

"Plymouth having sent her forbears to America, send one of their descendants to the House of Commons—the mother of parliaments—where she may speak for the mothers of England," Mrs. Lyttelton said.

Interruptions coming in the midst of Mrs. Lyttelton's speech, Lady Astor branded the disturbers as "imported women in the pay of the independent laborites."

"Many of my ancestors," Lady Astor continued, "came from Cornwall. The people of my country know me and won't hurl such insults at me. But I bear no animosity toward the viragoes who have been seeking to break up our meetings."

In her main speech Lady Astor reaffirmed her confidence in being elected. She insisted that she was not a sex candidate, but was going to Parliament conscious of her responsibilities, with an honest purpose and high ideals.

Lady Astor had a triumphal passage through the normally quiet streets of Plymouth tonight after a tumultuous meeting which concluded the city's most whopping Parliamentary campaign in years. Lady Astor took her leave of her last audience in the Guildhall.

"My victory," she said in her speech, "will be another historic occasion for Plymouth. Plymouth sent out Drake to fight for freedom. It is now sending out a woman to a great place called Parliament.

"Because of my trust in you I am prepared to sail the unknown sea, praying help and guidance, but above all, determined to be a credit to the people of Plymouth and to emulate the virtues of her great past."

As she concluded Lady Astor pointed to the tablets on the walls of Guildhall bearing the names of Sir Walter Raleigh, Drake and others of England's famous men. As she ponted, a black cat stalked leisurely across the front of the platform, and there was a great outburst of applause and a shout from the back of the hall, "You are certain to win now."

Carrying in her hand a large bouquet which was presented to her when she began her speech, Lady Astor started for her carriage after the meeting, but her way was obstructed by hundreds of cheering admirers. Finally the police forced a passage, and Lady Astor, escorted by Mrs. David Lloyd George, wife of the British Prime Minister, entered the carriage. Lady Cynthia Curzon, Mrs. Brand, and Mrs. Phipps also finally reached the vehicle. Viscount Astor was lost in the surge of humanity, but eventually succeeded in hopping up to a seat beside the coachman.

The cheering which had signalled Lady Astor's first appearance then began anew, and hundreds of persons trailed behind the moving carriage, shouting, "Will we win?" "Yes," was the ringing answer. "Sure!" was thundered forth.

Standing on the back seat of the carriage Lady Astor joined in the singing of "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here, and "Pack Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag," which was greeted by the soldiers, and thus a procession, unparalleled in the city's history, continued on through the heart of the otherwise deserted business section to the Astor home.

To this the people roared a thunderous "Yes!" and the demonstration ended in three rousing cheers as the woman candidate disappeared inside the door of her home.

Lady Astor began the evening by visiting the naval barracks, where she addressed the men of the lower deck who acclaimed her as "a sure winner."

Lady Astor announced tonight that she would vote at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The days are void of sunshine,
The sky no longer blue.

WILLING TO ACCEPT INTERPRETATIONS

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

This point of view is well illustrated by an article contributed by the editor of the Journal des Débats in La Presse de Paris. He says:

"It is not the time now for us to look for causes; we must look at facts. The Peace Treaty before the American Senate appears today completely deadlocked. We and the rest of the world have too much at stake on American ratification not to address a last appeal to our American friends before the final vote.

"The question as it was placed before the Senate was this: 'Does the treaty of Versailles offer such guarantees of fairness and permanence that America, which entered the war for the liberty of the world, can accept her responsibility?' As a matter of fact, by the play of international politics, the question has become today for the American Senate: 'President Wilson, the chief of the Democratic Party, appears to have exceeded his constitutional powers during the debates at Paris and Versailles; are we not to take this occasion and show that never again can any President commit such an abuse?'

"The Senate says: 'The task of liberation for which we entered this war is finished. America has infinite resources, and possesses most of the fortune of the world. Her immediate interest is to resume and maintain her doctrine of isolation. Let us, then, avoid all treaties, all alliances with Europe.'

"This being the situation, have we not a right to say to our American friends:

"'France and Europe have had confidence that America would accept in the hour of peace her responsibilities growing out of the war. We never distinguished between American political parties. We regarded the President of the United States as the messenger of America, and as the holder of a mandate until he had been recalled; he remained before all the diplomats of the world as the true representative of his country. The treaty, be it good or bad, was constructed always in concert with—often under direction of—the representative of the United States; hence the moral responsibility of America.'

"France today is astonished that no voice has been raised in the American Senate to declare that America, having been associated with the Allies to win the war, cannot, without abandoning the most important part of her task, separate herself from them before peace has been achieved, before the treaty has been put into effect * * * A treaty without America means that the peace of the world is put in peril or destroyed in the manner already planned by Germany. This is such a peace as America has declared before the world the peace must be! Today before the world and before her own conscience it is for America to choose."

A Sarcastic French Diplomat.

I met in the Place de la Concorde today a diplomat of the French Foreign Office.

"Mr. Correspondent," said he, "do us a favor. Tell Senator Lodge that when he gets through changing the Versailles treaty to please America we would like to hire him to do a job for France. We would like to have our border line moved to the Rhine; we would like to have the German indemnity doubled; we would like to have title to Syria; we would accept Constantinople, and we would like to have Marshal Foch made commander of the League of Nations army. If this program is more than Senator Lodge can carry out for us we will accept any part, and he can name his own price."

"Monsieur, you speak sarcastically," said I.

"I do," said he.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—"The American Senate is busy emasculating the League of Nations covenant," says The Daily News, adding: "The covenant promises to be a singularly public affair before the Senate is done with it." It continues: "President Wilson's illness is a profound misfortune. In the full tide of his activity he would never have stood by and watched the Senate enacting the repudiation of the implied pledges he had given himself, with his country solidly acclaiming him, in months when the ideal of a League of Nations first was being laid before the world. If America prefers to take up membership in the League without the formal obligations of membership, she will still be a valued associate, but her attitude is a grave blow to those who looked across the Atlantic for full and unselfish leadership in the task of reordering the world.

"The attitude of the Senate, if it cannot command our admiration, need not provoke our reproaches since it is actuated not so much by hostility to Europe as to President Wilson, but whilst we may understand some of the causes which are holding up the Peace Treaty, it does not in any way relieve Europe from serious and possibly tragic embarrassments, for which the American obstruction is responsible."

SEE LEAGUE "DISLOCATED."

French Press Commentators Fear a Return to Old Alliance System.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The French press believes that the Senate reservations to the Versailles treaty will dislocate the League of Nations, according to cable dispatches received from Rome and Paris today.

The Roma dispatch says that, according to a Paris dispatch to the Italia, the reservations are considered as a check to the entire policy of President Wilson, and will force Europe to resume the old scheme of alliance, both sides maintaining cordial relations with the United States.

The Tempo publishes a dispatch from its Paris correspondent saying that the reservation program of the American Senate has caused the gravest situation yet experienced by the Peace Conference, and that the revision of concessions adopted at Paris and London may be necessary in the event of American defection over the Peace Treaty.

A Paris telegram to the Corriere d'Italia declares that the Senate reservations are a blow to the Wilsonian principles included in the Versailles treaty.

The Paris cable dispatch says that the French press had voiced the hope that the Senate would "honor the President's signature of the peace agreement" and that some of the papers criticised the French Government because it did not put the treaty into force at once without awaiting American developments. The friends of France in the United States are called upon by the Echo de Paris to realise that on the decision of the American Senate depends "the fate of the Old World."

The Action Francaise says:

"Will the European Governments already bound by the treaty attempt to withdraw or further bind themselves by depositing ratifications? After imposing the League as a condition of peace and having constructed the latter to suit it and not the victors, Mr. Wilson is leaving us only its aroma. He has aggravated the wrong already done us by consenting to dupery in order to save the façade of the organization with which the whole treaty is interwoven."

The Paris Midi says:

"The tug of war between the two great parties has begun, but there is no reason to be alarmed. Both sides are equal, and the simplest solution will be to negotiate. The passing of the treaty, however, will not solve the problem of curing American public opinion of its insularity."

"Whether the Senate be right or wrong in its desire to obtain for this country (America) special privileges in its relations with the League of Nations unasked for by the associated powers, it is certain that a long and bitter fight has prevented the Senate lifting a finger to meet any of the problems created by the war. Such vital questions as the extension of foreign credits, the settlement of railway and marine transportation, labor, and other problems concerning the country's future industrial and commercial welfare have been crowded out in the all-absorbing game of national politics, in which the Republican Senators are doing all they can to prevent President Wilson fulfilling his pledges given to the Peace Conference at Paris."

The London Times publishes a dispatch from its Washington correspondent attempting to interpret the motives of the Republicans. It says in part:

"The Republicans have, it is understood, two motives: First, to redress the balance between the functions of the Executive and the Legislature which the President so rudely upset; secondly, to enforce American foreign policy from an adventurous or series of adventures for which the country is not ready. Upon this first point there is no use to comment. With regard to the second point, there is much justice. There can be no doubt, especially since the failure of his tour, that the President was in his Paris policies far ahead of American political and popular instinct about participation in old world affairs. It took us many adventures in European affairs to be cured of our peaceful chant for glorious isolation. It would especially in view of her history and political training, be too much to expect America to change her ways of thought and life after one such adventure."

BELIEVE WILSON WON'T YIELD ON ARTICLE X.

Some Washington Observers Say He Will Refuse to Submit Emasculated Treaty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The success of the League of Nations has been put in jeopardy by the adoption of Senator Lodge's reservation qualifying American participation in the League. The Versailles treaty itself is in danger as a consequence of the Senate's action. There is now grave doubt whether the United States will become a member of the League; but beyond that the Government faces the discouraging prospect of being obliged to negotiate a separate peace with Germany.

In the opinion of supporters of the League, the Lodge reservation has taken the very life out of the League covenant. All Europe has looked to the United States to make the League a success; but it is now apparent that the course of the Senate will weaken the great world organization to such an extent that it may become what President Wilson said it would if the covenant were emasculated by Senate restrictions—a mere debating society. Whether the covenant, with the Lodge reservation attached, will be able to command the necessary two-thirds majority of the Senate is a debated question, but more interest is felt in the attitude which President Wilson will adopt if the treaty, with that reservation included, is presented to him to communicate to the other signatory nations.

The best information obtainable today is that the President's attitude toward the effort to weaken Article X. is unchanged. While there is no detailed interpretation of this understanding from any authoritative source, its meaning is clear. The President has said that the Lodge reservation was a knife thrust at the heart of the treaty, and in addresses which he made on his recent transcontinental tour, he explained his opposition to this and other proposals to minimize American participation in the league in a way to encourage the belief that he would let the treaty lapse rather than submit it to the other signatories in its vitiated form.

It is significant that most of those who have some knowledge of the President's temper in the matter, are of the opinion that he will refuse to submit the treaty to the other nations if it contains in its ratified form the Lodge reservation to Article X., and the preamble as amended by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. The amended preamble provides for the acceptance of the Senate changes by others of the great powers, and it is believed by friends of the President that he will regard it as a humiliation to ask these powers to accept the changes upon which the Senate has so far insisted.

In some quarters the contention is advanced that the President cannot afford to reject the Senate's reservation and permit the treaty and the League covenant to go by the board. Senator Johnson of California, one of the bitterest opponents of the Versailles convention, expressed this view today in a prepared statement. He predicted also that the Democratic supporters of the treaty in the Senate would not reject the treaty when the final vote was taken. But Senator Johnson and those who side with him are not supported in their expressed belief by men who are in a better position to know what is in the President's mind. At the same time, it is evident that nobody has a clear idea of what the President's ultimate course will be, and there is much discussion as to his probable action.

Whether the Democratic supporters of the League and the treaty will vote in sufficient numbers to cause the rejection of the Versailles convention is something that nobody is in a position to say. A recent suggestion of Senator Hitchcock, the treaty leader of the forces in the Senate, that his side would vote against ratification if the committee's reservation to Article X. were retained, was not supported by a considerable number of Democratic Senators. It is said, however, that at least fifteen Democrats will vote for rejection, and that, with their opposition supported by the group of Republican irreconcilables, enough votes will be mustered to cause rejection. While reservations may be adopted by a bare majority, it will require a two-thirds vote of the Senate to ratify the treaty as modified by the Republicans.

That the United States will fare badly if it enters into separate negotiations with the German Government for the conclusion of a new treaty is generally admitted. But this view has not seemed to affect the determination of the majority Senators, who appear bent on making the League of Nations an impotent body, no matter what the general consequences may be to the United States and the rest of the world. In the new negotiations Germany would not be confronted by the danger of collective punitive action by the great powers of the world, as she was when the allied peace plenipotentiaries at Paris presented their demands in the form of the first draft of the Versailles convention. She would in this instance be dealing with the United States alone, and in present conditions there would be no fear in the German mind that this Government would resort to force to compel acceptance of conditions approximating those contained in the pending omnibus treaty. In the circumstances the United States would have no real part in the settlement of the great war, and the position of this Government in future world affairs would be materially weakened.

The Senate was not in session today on account of the absence of nearly all its members at the funeral of Senator Martin at Charlottesville, Va. When it meets tomorrow it will be with the expectation of witnessing a notable spectacle, for it will then vote on the motion to invoke closure to end debate on the Versailles treaty.

Each side was confident tonight, but there was great doubt whether the necessary two-thirds vote could be obtained to apply the closure rule. Should closure be adopted, limitation of debate on the Peace Treaty would become effective at once, each Senator thereafter having only one hour in which to speak on the treaty.

Aside from this limitation of debate, the adoption of a closure rule would have little effect on the Senate's procedure, except to prevent additional reservations or amendments being offered. Only those pending when the closure rule becomes effective can be voted upon.

Administration forces were apprehensive, however, that the practical effect of the closure would be to deprive Democratic Senators of sufficient time in which to formulate compromises if the Lodge resolution of ratification was rejected.

The application of closure, it is generally believed, would have no bearing on the big question as to the status of the treaty in the event of Mr. Lodge's resolution of ratification be defeated. Democratic Senators contend that the resolution only, not the treaty, would be rejected, while Senator Lodge holds the contrary view.

A majority of the Senate must ultimately decide this question, no matter how the chair rules. The unknown factor in the situation is the attitude that will be taken by Republicans of the mild reservationist group. They hold the balance of power, and it is not known whether their loyalty to Senator Lodge or their desire to have the treaty ratified will prevail.

SLIPPERING THE MODE

Footwear, of course, isn't merely a matter of leather. Rather does it involve a deft combination of delicate lines, carefully chosen materials, and subtle adherence to the unwritten laws of good taste.

Cinderella's followers shimmer through the fancy tip-toes of the dance shod in slippers of silver brocade. Our evening models in this fabric, slender and arched, give a fairy touch and twinkle to any frock of festive tulle. Exquisite for all evening wear, these are priced at $9.89.

Foibles in Afternoon Footwear

For tea time and soft rustle of silken skirts there is a model in suede, chocolate brown, shaped to fit the foot with glove-like slenderness, and tied with a pert brown bow. It, too, is priced at $9.89.

Pointed things in Dinner Pumps

Patent leather is the popular footnote to the smart dinner hour. For dress wear one needs a plain model, slenderly poised on high French heels. These are excellent, too, with spats for winter fashions. In our assortment of patent leather pumps we have models ranging from $5.49 to $9.89.

Slippers—every sort

All types of footwear, plain or fancy, may be found in our department of women's shoes. Fastidious taste is richly combined with materials which are as smart as they are excellent of quality.

ANGLO-FRENCH JEALOUSIES

Growing Differences on Baltic and Other Questions in Way of Solution of Russian Problem.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 14.—"Never ask a Finlander if he is a Finn or a Finn if he is a Finlander; they won't like it," was the advice given me before leaving Stockholm by an American who spent a long time in Finland. The distinction between the two parties is a simple one, but it provides the key to a majority of the apparent complexities of Finland's situation.

Finlanders are citizens of Finland of Scandinavian, mostly Swedish, stock. Many of their families have been established here for several generations and from their ranks are drawn the greater part of the upper classes—intelligentia as they call them—and the leaders of business, finance, politics, culture, and last but not least of the army. Finns on the other hand are indigenous and for the most part on a lower intellectual level, though they include a number of rich farmers who, together with the small farmers and landowners, form the powerful Agrarian Party.

The Finlanders as bourgeoisie naturally took a prominent part, under Mannerheim, in the suppression of the Red revolution and form the greater proportion of officers of the "White Guard" volunteers, about 100,000 strong, who act as a sort of local home defense against Bolshevism throughout the country. The remainder and the rank and file of the White Guard are mostly Agrarians and their dependants, who, like the farming class everywhere, have little use for Bolshevism. The Finns, of course, greatly outnumber the Finlanders, and, since Mannerheim's retirement, govern the country.

Differ on Country's Policy.

Both parties are thoroughly loyal to Finland and equally desirous of its entire independence, but they don't quite agree as to how the country's policy should be directed. With few exceptions the Finlanders are strongly anti-Bolshevist, as is only to be expected, and were eager to cooperate in the Russian drive against Petrograd. The Socialist element, however, is strong in the present Government, and however ready the Agrarians might be to defend their own property against Bolshevism at home, they showed nothing like the same enthusiasm for military adventure abroad. But it was another factor which militated far more considerably against intervention.

Whatever may have been said to the contrary, Finland to date has received no satisfactory guarantees from the White Russian coalition that the latter, in the event of success against the Bolsheviki, will recognize Finland's entire independence, including certain territories, compensations, and will assume responsibility for the expenses that Finland may incur in military co-operation.

A great many people here, certainly nine out of ten Finlanders, felt certain that the White Russians would see the reasonableness of their position and accede to all or nearly all of their demands. They knew how desperate was Yudenitch's attempt unaided. That it met such success as it did was due solely to the utter demoralization of the Red troops, and when the Bolsheviki brought up three good divisions, the bubble of victory was instantly exploded.

Incidentally, I may add that as for the reported capture of Kronstadt by the British I was informed today on the best possible authority that the fortress is amply protected by extensive mine fields and by submarines, which latter are by no means inactive.

So Finland expected Russian acceptance with confidence, and when it was not forthcoming was no less piqued than disappointed. The wind was effectually taken out of the interventionists' sails, and it was easy for the Finnish section to stand back.

That is the state of affairs at present, and it looks as if it may remain so unless one or two factors alter the situation. First is the possibility of another Bolshevist attempt to get control. The regular army, now numbering some 30,000 men, which could be immediately increased by a mobilization order, is said not to be any too sure for opposing Bolshevist action.

As elsewhere the Reds are tirelessly active and here particularly so, because they regard Finland as a splendid jumping off place for Scandinavia. They are furthermore encouraged by the recent victory over Yudenitch and by the lukewarm—one might say pinkish—attitude of Finland's present Government. But the general opinion seems to be that at present at any rate, the White Guards are competent to handle the situation, although doubts are freely expressed as to what may happen later in the Winter.

Allies Could Bring About Change.

The other factor that may bring about a change is a decision of the Allies, or at least France and England, to give Finland requisite guarantees themselves both as regards independence and money. The latter they would no doubt have to furnish, but it would have to go down in their bill to White Russia should the latter agree to be responsible. In view of the important nature of the allied assistance to the Whites, let alone their moral and material force, it seems unquestionable that their guarantee would be adequate.

With but a tithe of the assistance Denikin has received from the British, 50,000 men could attack Russia from Finland with almost the positive certainty of at any rate relieving Petrograd and rescuing its unhappy inhabitants from the horrors of starvation and death that seem to be their destined fate. Only—and this is the crux of the whole matter—the question is whether France and England will assume the required responsibilities toward Finland, or even whether one of them will do it alone.

The answer to that question depends on a factor which perhaps more than any other has retarded a satisfactory solution of the Russian problem this Autumn. That factor is a divergence of view—to say no more—which now exists between the French and British policies. To any one who has been in Paris during the last six months this divergence is obvious, and what is worse, appears to be increasing. It began perhaps in a feeling on the part of the French that the British were overready to support American humanitarianism and views regarding Germany in general and the Rhine in particular rather than the French desire to put a repetition of the German invasion beyond the bounds of possibility.

This divergence became worse as the result of the Syrian imbroglio and grew till more marked as France seemed to turn toward Italy, with whom, during the early months of the year she had been on less friendly terms. The uncompromising nature of France's attitude toward Germany seemed to clash with the desire she attributed to England to permit, or even in a measure to assist, Germany to recover. Then off top of all this the French got the impression that England was playing a selfish game in the Baltic—supporting the "comic opera" Baltic States—as prominent French officials scornfully describe them—in order to control Russia's western outlets.

Advantages of Co-operation.

The ill effects of such divergence can be emphasized by pointing out the advantages both France and England could obtain by co-operation. For instance, Denikin, whom England has helped most expensively, is paralyzed by the opposition of the Ukraine. Again it is the question of interests. England and France together could easily so dispose matters that Ukraine should be able not only to guarantee that satisfactorily, but actually obtain Ukraine's assistance. The same applies to Finland, though in this case there is no hostility against the White Russians.

As for the Baltic States, there is little to be done. Their weakness is already quite noticeable, and, as it is pointed out here and in Stockholm, Lettonia and Esthonia, who already intending to negotiate at Dorpat with the Soviets in October and were only deterred by Yudenitch's first successes.

Although new significance has been attached to the Dorpat conference by Lloyd George's speech, its importance can easily be overestimated, as in reality it represents nothing more than the carrying out of a long-planned resolve by two small powers who are neither able nor willing to fight any longer. Its most interesting feature consists in the fact of declarations that the Bolshevik are almost sure to make of readiness to agree to the independence of all States concerned, whether, like Lithuania or Poland, they are fighting the Soviet or, like Ukraine and Finland, are neutral.

Should England and France fail to find their differences in a common policy there remains the possibility that France will do what is needed for Finland alone. It might even be thought that French influence thus to be gained here would be more than needed to counterbalance the British action in the Baltic.

As far as Russia is concerned, it would probably be sufficient, regrettable though the effects might be in fact, or loosening of the bonds of alliance which this time a year ago seemed to be rivated indissolubly.

FIND MRS. STEANE SUICIDE.

Coroner Only Touches on Her Claim to be Daughter of Hapsburg.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The Coroner at the inquest on Mrs. Alma V. Steane, the young society woman who was found dying on Wednesday, deliberately declined today to go into her family history. The only reference to rumors that she was a daughter of the Archduke Rudolf of Austria came in his question to her husband: "Had she some sort of obsession about her parentage?" Captain Steane admitted it, but asked if it was necessary to discuss it. The Coroner replied he only wanted to know anything bearing on the state of Mrs. Steane's mind.

The husband said both her parents had committed suicide, and she said she felt her mother was calling her.

"Do you know whether her parents did commit suicide?" asked the Coroner.

"Of course I don't. All I know of her past was what she told me. She showed me many photographs," replied the Captain.

It also came out that Mrs. Steane had been very unhappy in her first marriage and was afraid her former husband might see her son. She was very hysterical and in frequent attacks of hysteria had talked of wanting to die. Eighteen months or two years ago she had had an unfortunate love affair and when her engagement had been broken off had taken poison. This had occurred in an apartment into which she and Captain Steane had just moved, and this seemed to weigh on her mind.

Her husband, a faultlessly dressed, well setup young man, earnestly denied there had been any quarrel between them and was much distressed as he described how on their return from a Victory Ball his wife welcomed him to her apartment. "I'm so happy to be back here," she said, "and so glad because you are here. I don't feel any sort of effects of that awful time and occurrence that happened here."

This, the Captain thought, was reference to her attempted suicide, which he said was due not only to the love affair, but to the "hard life she had led all her life and terrible things for her that had happened in it." Then he told how a hysterical attack came on and he soothed her. She left him "perfectly happy," but called suddenly from her bedroom. He reached it just in time to see her drink something.

The other evidence was merely medical and formal, and the Coroner returned a verdict of suicide while out of her mind.

GIRL SEEMED DEAD; STRANGELY RECOVERS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—The German medical profession is deeply interested in an extraordinary case of catalepsy or asphyxia which the greatest authorities, after a careful examination, can only explain as a relapse into hibernation, based upon the theory that, like the wild beast, prehistoric man would pass the Winter months in a continuous, deathlike sleep, and that the case in question must be regarded as sudden atavism, brought on by peculiar circumstances.

About a week ago an auto party driving through the Tiergarten discovered the lifeless body of a young woman, dressed as a sick nurse, which they conveyed to the nearest hospital, where, after the usual tests, she was pronounced dead, and, with her clothes soaked in rain, placed in a coffin. Fourteen hours later some police officials called at the morgue to search for any articles by which to identify the body and notify the relatives. To their great surprise and mortification, they found the inmate still breathing.

They had the living corpse transferred to a hospital, where the young woman, under proper treatment, soon revived, and after a few days, when the danger of pneumonia had passed, she returned to her parents.

The highest medical authorities investigated the charges against the hospital physician who had signed the death certificate that he had only superficially examined the body and that it was pronounced dead from the [illegible] physician performed the investigation as absolutely correctly, in the presence of several colleagues, all of whom agreed that life was extinguished. There were indications that the young woman had taken a strong dose of morphium. She had, as it developed afterward, tried to commit suicide on account of unrequited love.

After having taken the poison, the young woman wandered about the Tiergarten in the pouring cold rain until she fainted, and was picked up several hours afterward.

As Professor Dr. Ernst Rautenberg, who presided over the investigation, explained, the effect of the cold and rain created the condition of reducing respiration and circulation to an infinitesimal state, while the concurring catalepsy caused by the cold and rain made the body insensible to the otherwise deadly dose of morphium and protected her against pneumonia, which under normal conditions the girl could never have escaped. The morphium was removed from the girl's stomach in an unassimilated condition, and after a few days of careful observation she returned to her parents healthy and sadder, but much wiser.

Dr. Rautenberg believes Indian fakirs undergo very much the same process before they permit themselves to be buried under ground for many weeks.

MILAN, Nov. 14.—One man was killed, eight persons were seriously wounded and many others less seriously injured in an election disturbance at Lodi today. KEEP HINDENBURG FROM TESTIFYING

CHEER HIM AND EX-KAISER

BERLIN, Nov. 14 (Associated Press.)—Pan-German students today refused to permit Field Marshal von Hindenburg to enter the Reichstag Building to testify before the subcommittee which is investigating war responsibilities, and forced the Field Marshal's chauffeur to return with the former Commander in Chief to his home.

The demonstration occurred this morning. As the Field Marshal's automobile was being driven toward the Reichstag Building the students surrounded it and declared their unwillingness to allow him to be questioned by the subcommittee.

Von Hindenburg begged the students, who clung to the running board of the machine, to allow the automobile to pass, as he was due at the Reichstag. The students, however, replied by ordering the street closed, declaring that they were unwilling to allow the subcommittee to interrogate him. Again von Hindenburg protested, but he was unable to quell the demonstration.

It was a nationalist demonstration for both von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff, and for a time it assumed serious proportions. The crowd which gathered consisted mostly of students of both sexes, who carried a flag of the empire.

Sing "Deutschland Ueber Alles."

When von Hindenburg's automobile was waylaid, the crowd cheered him and Ludendorff, and shouted "Down with the Jewish Government!" after von Hindenburg's protest that he be allowed to proceed were denied. Nevertheless, the automobile slowly began to pierce its way through the crowd toward the Reichstag Building. Thousands of persons followed it, singing "Die Wacht am Rhein" and "Deutschland Ueber Alles."

There were also shouts of "Brothers, we will not allow such a disgrace!" "For us there is only one Kaiser and empire!" and, "We will not endure that our glorious Kaiser be besmirched!" Coming in their march to a statue of the former Emperor, the name on which was hidden under canvas, the students tore off the covering with cries of "Hoch!" for William II. and the empire.

As the Reichstag Building was reached a student again sprang on the running board of von Hindenburg's machine and delivered an impassioned speech, dealing with the Field Marshal's services to the Fatherland and demanding of the mob that it should do its utmost to prevent his appearing before the "stupid youths" of the sub-committee.

Finally von Hindenburg, seeing the futility of endeavoring to calm the mob, permitted the chauffeur to drive homeward. First, however, he thanked the crowd for the respect to him implied by the demonstration.

In official quarters today it was announced that the students had violated the conditions imposed by martial law, and that troops would be ordered to suppress any similar demonstrations in future.

Hindenburg was the centre of another demonstration last night when he inspected the guards and cadets at Lichterfelde. Ludendorff accompanied him on his inspection. A torchlight parade was organized and a band played patriotic airs, while the students cheered the Field Marshal.

Dr. David's Charges Recounted.

At the sitting today of the subcommittee of the National Assembly which is investigating war responsibilities, there was a bitter exchange of personalities arising from the speech made by Dr. Eduard David, Minister without portfolio, last Sunday, Dr. Karl Helfferich, former Vice Chancellor, protesting warmly against Dr. David's accusation that the German people had been deceived with regard to Germany's submarine warfare and President Wilson's peace mediation.

Dr. David reiterated his charges that the nation had been blindly led into war with the United States, and that its behavior toward President Wilson was the result of disloyal diplomacy, which alone had provoked the war.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, former Imperial Chancellor, appealed to the chair to prevent Ministers making serious charges against former Ministers and threatened that if this method of procedure continued he and Helfferich would leave the inquiry.

Dr. David then explained that he did not consider Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg disloyal; but he maintained his charge of disloyalty against Alfred Zimmermann, former Foreign Secretary.

After further protests the committee withdrew to consider the matter, and on the resumption of the sitting the Chairman announced that the committee would be unable to control opinions expressed or to forestall the final verdict.

Count von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador to the United States, and now Ambassador to Turkey, commenting yesterday on the testimony given by Dr. Helfferich on Wednesday, laughed at Dr. Helfferich's expressed animosity toward the United States and President Wilson.

He said that Dr. Helfferich was openly electioneering for a Pan-German seat in the Reichstag, and that he even aspired to the Presidency of Germany. The investigation, the Count added, had developed into a political squabble between the reactionary element and the present government.

D'ALBERT FLED HIS OPERA.

Composer Writes He Could Not Endure Berlin Presentation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—The Berliner Zeitung am Mittag prints the following extraordinary letter by the composer Eugen D'Albert, whose opera "The Bull of Olivera" was produced at the State Opera in Berlin for the first time last night:

"Sir: After the first act of my opera I fled from the house. I could not possibly countenance such an awful misrepresentation of my work. Please publish these lines."

Professor Max von Schilling, Director of the State Opera, is exasperated at D'Albert's action because the latter after the first act expressed to him his sincerest thanks for the splendid performance, only criticising mildly Herr Bohnen's representation of the principal part, the bull.

Bohnen, who is regarded as a man of great talent, explained to THE TIMES correspondent, first, that he was somewhat hoarse, but besides he regarded the music D'Albert wrote for the bull, otherwise General Guillaume, who kills his runaway wife in a fit of jealousy, too ladylike, and that was why he pronounced rather than sang the wrathful words with which he accompanied the execution.

YAMBURG OCCUPIED BY THE BOLSHEVIKI

FINNS TO AID YUDENITCH

50,000 Volunteers to Join in Fight for Petrograd—Baltic Peace Plans Off.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The Bolsheviki captured Yamburg, sixty-eight miles southwest of Petrograd, this afternoon, according to a wireless dispatch received here this evening from Moscow. (The evacuation of Yamburg by troops of Yudenitch's army was announced a few days ago.)

The Bolsheviki have been overthrown in Brest-Litovsk, a Soviet wireless dispatch from Moscow today admits. After fighting the insurgents there for eight days, the dispatch says, the Bolsheviki withdrew "underground." (This expression is commonly used in Russia to indicate the temporary abandonment of an attempt to control, the defeated elements scattering and abandoning open, organized effort for the time being.)

The communiqué asserts that the Bolshevist army in Siberia has captured 90,000 tons of grain.

Another announcement in the message is that 90,000 tons of oil were burned in a fire at Groznyi, in the Northern Caucasus.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 13. (Associated Press.)—The Baltic States conference at Dorpat has been advised that Finland has decided to aid General Yudenitch with 50,000 volunteers in a new attempt to take Petrograd within the next few weeks.

This development, late today, may seriously interfere with and perhaps speedily bring to an end the efforts of the Baltic States delegates here to reach an agreement with the Russian Bolshevist.

A delegate to the conference intimated to the correspondent that such great pressure had been suddenly brought upon the conferees that it would be impossible to attempt to negotiate a peace with the Bolsheviki. Reports here are that the pressure came from England and France.

An important statement explaining the changed position of the conference is expected to be made tomorrow evening by M. Pilp, the Esthonian Foreign Minister, and Carl Pauluk and Dr. Schlupas, the leaders, respectively, of the Letvian and Lithuanian delegations.

"It is possible that tomorrow will be the last day of the conference," said the informant of The Associated Press correspondent with regard to the changed situation.

Asked as to the nature of the pressure which was alleged to have been brought to bear upon the conference, the delegate said:

"Pressure can be exercised by other means than a blockade, which would be rather crude. There are a hundred ways, including financial and economic methods."

The delegate emphasized the assertion that there were 200,000 German troops in East Prussia, saying:

"They would be glad to join in the fight against the Bolsheviki if they were permitted to occupy the Baltic States."

A great change was apparent in the demeanor of the delegates when they emerged from this evening's conference, which was a prolonged one. They appeared to be depressed and dejected. Several of them will return to their respective capitals tomorrow to discuss the new situation with their Governments.

No change has been made in the plan to receive the Bolshevist representatives on Monday, as it is considered necessary to discuss with them questions wholly independent of the subject of peace.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The State Department today received advices regarding the situation in Russia which stated that there was not very much real enthusiasm in Moscow over the recent forward movements of the Bolshevist forces.

The department has also been advised that Trotsky recently made it known that a battalion in the rear of the Red army had orders to fire upon any Red soldiers attempting to fall back.

The Bolshevist reserves in Central Russia, according to the latest State Department advices, now comprise 200,000 men engaged on the various fronts.

LLOYD GEORGE ASSAILED BY NORTHCLIFFE PAPERS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The Daily Mail makes an attack on Lloyd George in connection with what it calls his "recantation" of his Russian policy. It says:

"It is pretty well known now that Lloyd George sticks at very little, but even those who have most accurately taken his measure in this respect will perhaps be surprised at his performance in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon when he surpassed all his latest and best records in trickery."

After reiterating that the Prime Minister's suggestion that Bullitt should be sent to Moscow amounted to nothing less than an invitation "to shake hands with murder," the Daily Mail continues:

"If he had known more of the spirit of the British people and of the loathing they feel for the foulness of Bolshevism, he would never have made such a suggestion. He knows better now, and with his characteristic and redeeming sensitiveness to the cold draft of public opinion the flag dropped the idea like a hot brick.

"In the course of a speech in the Commons yesterday Lloyd George said:

"'I have never agreed with what I may call the Northcliffe policy, explained by its author earlier this year, that the world powers should sink their pride for the moment and get into communication with the Bolsheviki and that we should employ an avowed English Bolshevist sympathiser for the purpose. In my judgment that certainly is not the method by which peace can be secured in Russia.'

"Commenting upon this The Daily Mail says:

"'Being obliged to withdraw from a discreditable position the Prime Minister attempts to cover his retreat by making an outrageous imputation upon one of his most active critics.'

"It goes on to declare that there never has been such a Northcliffe policy, and that Lloyd George was apparently alluding to an interview with Northcliffe which appeared in a number of newspapers last January.

"'If so,' said The Daily Mail, 'we can only say that Lloyd George is guilty of gross and impudent misrepresentation. In that interview Lord Northcliffe made no proposal to open negotiations with the Bolsheviki. What he suggested was that steps should be taken with the purpose of sending an allied commission to find out what really was going on there.'

The Daily Mail concludes:

"We are content to believe that it will be a long time before the Premier again proposes to shake hands with murder, but we advise the public to watch him closely."

The Times says that the Prime Minister's declaration yesterday means he was entirely unaware of the Bullitt mission to Moscow, and that his political secretary, Philip Kerr, kept him in total ignorance of what was going on, that Lloyd George was unaware that Kerr had discussed with Bullitt the question of impending offensive, and had communicated by written to Bullitt [illegible] authenticity of which has never been questioned.

"The public will await some further explanation on this point," says The Times. "If not from Lloyd George at least from Kerr."

Bullitt for his part has placed a very circumstantial report on these matters before the United States Senate Committee. If its statements tally with what long has been known in quarters acquainted with the secret doings of the Prime Minister and of his confidential advisers in Paris, it seems to follow that if Lloyd George spoke the truth yesterday in the House of Commons Philip Kerr took most important action, involving the good name of the British Empire, entirely on his own initiative and aggravated this grave and unauthorized indiscretion by withholding all knowledge of it from his chief. Qui trompe-t-on ici?"

Discussing editorially its announcement that the Lloyd George-Russian policy is a part of the allied policy and that in sending supplies to Denikin this country was acting with the full approval of [illegible] with the Allies, The Chronicle says:

"If this fact is kept steadily before us the question of British intervention in Russia assumes an aspect which it is folly to ignore. We ourselves never doubted the desirability of supplying material to the only armed authority in Russia which seemed capable of resisting the tyranny of the Soviet Government, but the question may well arise upon whom is the onus of rendering this assistance to fall, save France and America to take a share of this responsibility, or is the whole charge of such support to fall upon this country alone. It never seemed to us that Denikin had [illegible] impending offensive, and had communicated by written to Bullitt [illegible] authenticity of which has never been questioned.

"The public will await some further explanation on this point," says The Times. "If not from Lloyd George at least from Kerr."

Bullitt for his part has placed a very circumstantial report on these matters before the United States Senate Committee. If its statements tally with what long has been known in quarters acquainted with the secret doings of the Prime Minister and of his confidential advisers in Paris, it seems to follow that if Lloyd George spoke the truth yesterday in the House of Commons Philip Kerr took most important action, involving the good name of the British Empire, entirely on his

TO AMEND THEATRE LAW.

Alderman Will Try to Limit Speculators' Profits to 50 Cents.

At the meeting of the Aldermen on Tuesday the District Attorney will ask for the adoption of an amendment to the ordinance which he caused to be enacted several months ago with the intent of limiting speculative profit on theatre tickets to 50 cents each in excess of the regular box-office prices. The enforcement of the ordinance thus far has failed adequately to protect the public and to curb some flagrant cases of profiteering in theatre tickets by speculators.

Assistant District Attorney Edwin P. Kilroe said yesterday that Alderman William T. Collins, Chairman of the General Welfare Committee of the Aldermen, would introduce the amendment, which has been approved by a committee of the theatre managers, and provides that a license of a speculator may be revoked by the Commissioner of Licenses, the Mayor, or any city magistrate, and requires that all agencies, whether operated by one company or individual, shall be separately licensed.

"That will put teeth in the ordinance and bring about efficient enforcement," predicted Mr. Kilroe. "By the terms of the ordinance revocation of licenses may be attempted only by application to the Supreme Court."

GERMAN SPY FACES TRIAL HERE FOR LIFE

MILITARY COURT ORDERED

Indicted Soon After America Entered the War for Conspiracy to Commit Treason.

Hermann Wetzel, a Lieutenant of the German Navy, who lived in this city during the war, is a prisoner in the Tombs, awaiting trial before a military commission on the charge of espionage, and if convicted may be sentenced to death. Some of the papers in the case have been received at the office of Judge Advocate Major R. E. Adams, U. S. M. C., in the New York Navy Yard.

The charge against him is that while apparently obeying wartime regulations he was connected with the German secret service and doing all in his power to transmit news concerning military and naval activity of the United States.

Major Adams said last night that he did not believe the Government wanted Lieutenant Wetzel's arrest made public, and that he had no idea as to how the news became known. He said he had not received the full specifications of the charge, and that the commission which would conduct the trial has not yet been appointed.

Wetzel, also known as Karl Roediger and under various other aliases, was arrested as the head and front of the German spy system in this country. He was seized in May, 1917, as the result of a special investigation carried out by Charles W. De Woody, Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, who acted upon information supplied by a confessed spy confined at the time in a Federal penitentiary.

Instead of being interned as were most suspected Germans, Wetzel was confined in the Tombs after being taken before a United States Commissioner on a technical charge of having plotted in this country to carry out a military enterprise against Great Britain. This particular work he was accused of having carried on through the agency of Maria K. Victorica.

After Wetzel had been confined for two months he was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury as one of the first two persons to be charged with espionage, after that security entered the war with Germany. The indictment charged him having come to this country in 1913 and with having been since the first day of this country's participation a secret agent and spy for the Imperial German Government. Numerous persons in this country and others in neutral countries were named as having been his aids in the exchange of information with his own Government. He was charged further with sending persons in this country who might assist Germany in hampering the military and naval operations of the United States and with having collected information as to ways of introducing secretly into the United States explosives and ingredients of explosives to be used as he saw fit.

The indictment alleged that Wetzel had received large sums of money from various other German spies and had disbursed them in a number of ways and that he had made false statements to agents of the Department of Justice.

Wetzel never made any statement during his long confinement in the Tombs and this Government's intention to try him before a military instead of a civil tribunal was not publicly disclosed.

CAMP MILLS, Mineola, L. I., Nov. 14.—It was announced today that Lieut. Col. Charles E. Schwartz, who had been in command of Camp Mills for several months, had been relieved. Captain R. H. DIVORCE SUIT TO BE REHEARD

New Referee Ordered in Case of Mrs. Claudius A. Hand.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court today reversed the decision of Supreme Court Justice Tierney refusing to continue the findings of a referee dismissing a suit for divorce by Mrs. Marguerite A. Hand against Claudius A. Hand, a lawyer. The court directs that the case be heard by another referee.

The testimony showed that while Mr. Hand testified that he lived at 406 West Twentieth Street, he said he occupied sleeping room at 10 West Fifteenth Street for a studio with Millard Palmer, an alleged broker, with whom he had arranged to purchase art objects and antiques. Witnesses for Mrs. Hand told of finding the lawyer there with another woman.

On cross-examination Mr. Hand testified that he knew something about art, having studied "the old masters" from books, although he didn't remember the names of any books. He said he rented the studio under the name of Mr. Palmer, because he didn't want to have his interest in art become known in such a way that it would interfere with his law practice. He never told his wife about the studio, he said.

COHEN MAY ESCAPE DEATH.

Judge Will Recommend Changing Sentence to Life Imprisonment.

Judge McIntyre, in General Sessions, announced yesterday that he would recommend to Governor Smith that the death sentence of Joseph Cohen, convicted of the murder of Barnet Daff, the West Washington Market poultry dealer, be commuted to life imprisonment.

Judge McIntyre and the District Attorney have been conducting a joint investigation to determine if perjury was committed at the trial of Cohen. This inquiry will conclude next week. Testimony has indicated a conflict of evidence concerning Cohen, and the witness had admitted he had perjured himself.

PROFITEERS, GUILTY, FACE JAIL SENTENCE

Two Brothers Convicted of Selling at 22½ Cents Sugar Which Cost Them 9¾.

TRIED IN FEDERAL COURT

Judge Knox Intimates That He Will Send Them to Prison—Food Administrator Pleased.

The first conviction in this federal district for profiteering under the amendment to the Lever act was obtained by the Government yesterday when Julius and Charles Roth, brothers, who are commission merchants of 217 First Avenue, were found guilty by a jury in the United States District Court.

According to the evidence presented by Assistant District Attorney Ben A. Matthews, on Oct. 22 last, two days after the amendment to the food and fuel control law was signed by the President, the Roths negotiated with Max Parness, a restaurateur of 26 Clinton Street, a sale of 20,000 pounds of sugar at 22½ cents a pound. This sugar was part of a consignment of which the Roths purchased from Harry Glatter at 9¾ cents a pound.

When the conviction was announced, Judge John C. Knox intimated that he would send the convicted men to jail. He said that if the law was to have any salutary effect at all it could only be accomplished by the imprisonment of the persons convicted of profiteering in the necessaries of life, especially those operating among the poorer classes on the east side.

Pending the preparation of papers for an appeal, Judge Knox paroled the Roth brothers until Monday, when they must furnish bonds of $1,000 each.

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams yesterday expressed his gratification at the findings of the jury, asserting that it would have a most potent effect on would-be gougers in this city and throughout the whole country.

"I think New York City is to be congratulated on the honesty and patriotism of its dealers in foodstuffs as a class," said Mr. Williams. "I know that when Hoover was head of the Food Administration he was accustomed to rely on this city to lead the way for the country in obeying every request from the Government. Of course, there are a certain number of merchants who have taken advantage of the fact that there has not been until recently any law that could reach them and have gouged the public without conscience. It is on this class of citizens that this conviction will have a potent and a wholesome effect."

Mr. Williams said that with the settlement of the labor disputes sugar was moving more freely in the harbor and that the situation was becoming a little better. He warned against any letup, however, in economy in handling the sugar, declaring that it was the duty of every patriotic American to help out in the crisis.

Commissioner of Markets Jonathan C. Day announced yesterday that the first consignment of navy foodstuffs recently contracted for had arrived in the city and would be placed on sale at once at the various stations in the different boroughs. Consumers may buy one can or one pound of any of the foods or they may buy in case lots or larger quantities. On case lots a discount of 5 per cent. will be allowed. There is no limit to the quantity of foods which a consumer may buy, where he buys it for his own consumption.

REICHSTAG HONORS HAASE.

Many Speakers Eulogize Him in Chamber Draped in Mourning.

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—Black-draped red flags decorated the Reichstag Chamber today in honor of Hugo Haase, leader of the Independent Socialists, whose ashes were deposited in the Lichterveide Cemetery. More than a dozen speakers eulogized the dead leader.

William Dittmann, speaking for the Independents, characterized him as the "brains of the revolution," saying that Herr Haase was responsible for the final adoption of the socialistic program as the Government policy. Other speakers included Herr Haase as the greatest German pacifist.

DISCUSS RAILROAD TIME.

Brotherhoods and Directors Hope to Reach Settlement Today.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Conferees, representing the Railroad Administration and heads of the four great railroad brotherhoods, on the latter's demands for revision of employes' working conditions, appeared confident tonight that they could complete their work tomorrow.

Today's session, the fifth, was said to have developed no difficulties of importance further than the question of time and a half for overtime of trainmen in road service, which still remains unsettled.

Minor differences, railroad administration officials said, have been practically disposed of, and tentative conclusions have been reached on most of the more important issues. These same officials, however, admitted that not infrequently in such conferences, smooth running machinery suddenly has gone awry, but they hastened to explain that they anticipated nothing of the sort in the present sessions.

GEN. THOMAS'S HEIRS SUE.

Edward R. Thomas and his sister, Mrs. Eleanor T. Beeckman of Newport, R. I., filed an application in the Surrogate's Court yesterday for the payment of a balance of $14,909, remaining from trust funds established by their father, General Samuel Thomas, who died in 1903. General Thomas set aside securities worth $2,250,000, from the income of which $180,000 is paid to his widow, Mrs. Adhe Augusta Thomas, and the income from $100,000 is paid to his son, Harold E. Thomas.

The remaining income and the principal go to E. R. Thomas and to Mrs. Beeckman. They make the application to determine whether the trustees have power to deduct from the residuary income a "sinking fund." The proceeding is friendly, the trustees having requested that it be brought to give judicial sanction to the sinking fund deduction.

MORAN'S GAINS NULLIFIED.

La Guardia's and Opponent's Standing That of Election Night.

After officially counting the vote cast at the recent election in eighteen of the twenty-three Assembly districts in Manhattan, the County Board of Canvassers, sitting in the City Hall, yesterday found that the count between F. H. La Guardia and Robert L. Moran, Republican and Democratic candidates, respectively, for the Presidency of the Aldermanic Board, stood exactly where it was in the official returns compiled on election night. The votes gained by Mr. Moran earlier in the week were wiped out by errors in tabulation found in districts canvassed yesterday.

The special committee named to straighten out the tangle on the tabulated returns in the Fourth Assembly District examined the tally sheets and decided to call next Wednesday several of the Election Inspectors in the district. The Board of Canvassers adjourned until Monday. Reports from other boroughs showed no change in the official count, as compared with the tabulation on election night.

MORAN AT BOARD MEETING.

Makes His First Public Appearance Since Recent Illness.

After an absence of six weeks due to illness, Robert L. Moran, President of the Board of Aldermen, attended yesterday's session of the Board of Estimate. Mr. Moran was operated on for appendicitis on Oct. 3, and yesterday was his first public appearance since then. He was greeted by the other members of the board and returned to his home when the business of the meeting was concluded.

The board concurred in the action of the Aldermen in authorizing $470,000 in special revenue bonds for increases in salaries for the balance of the year. Of this amount, $420,000 is provided for the Street Cleaning Department. A communication was received from Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, stating that several accidents had been caused by motor buses operated under the authorization of the board and suggesting that in order to properly place liability the bus owners be bonded in a reasonable amount to offset injuries to persons or damage to property.

LOSE ON GERMAN COLONIES.

British Expect an Annual Deficit of £300,000 in Administration.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Official figures, published today, of the cost of administering the territory in Asia and Africa held by Great Britain since the end of the war show a considerable loss, due to the taking over of the former German colonies.

The future administration of these colonies, it is estimated from these figures, will involve a loss of £300,000 yearly.

Practice Putting on WEED TIRE CHAINS in the Garage

It only takes a few moments to attach them when you know how. No jack required. Study the directions. Practice makes perfect. No danger of injury to tires.

THE careful driver regularly gives his car "the once over" every few days before he takes it out of the garage. He gives a turn or two to the grease cups—tests out the brakes, sees that there is a sufficient supply of oil, water and gasoline and that the batteries are in good condition, etc. By so doing he is assured, barring accidents, that he will have no trouble on the road. But—

HOW few there are that pay the slightest attention to the proper method of attaching Weed Tire Chains

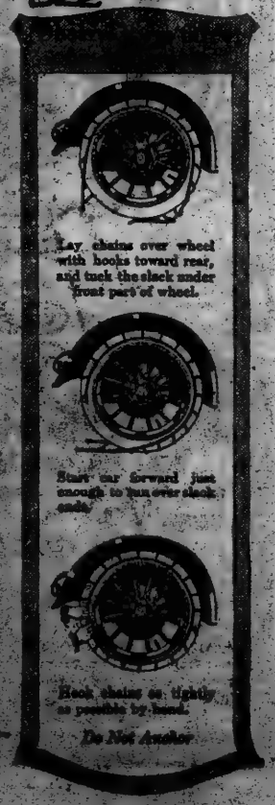
Rain comes on, the road and pavements suddenly become slippery and treacherous—the car slips or skids—the Weed Chains, carried in nearly every tool box, are hauled out and a hundred to one the driver has only a hazy idea how to attach them. He fumbles around, gets hot under the collar and falsely accuses them of being a nuisance.

Women drivers are very numerous nowadays. They are driving out into the country over all sorts of roads—they surely need protection against the dangerous skid. How many of them know how to put on Weed Chains? Have you ever instructed your wife, your sister or your daughter?

The directions for attaching Weed Chains are simple yet most important. Avoid annoyances on the road—learn how easy it is to put them on correctly—practice in the garage and give the women instruction. It will amply repay you in security, satisfaction and comfort.

Printed instructions for attaching Weed Chains are packed in every bag—If you desire a copy write us and we will gladly mail it to you.

Weed Chains are also made to meet the demand for an efficient traction and anti-skid device for trucks equipped with single and dual solid tires or with the very large pneumatic tires. They are so constructed that they satisfactorily meet the requirements of heavy truck service in mud, sand or snow.



Lay chains over wheel with hooks toward rear, and tuck the slack under front part of wheel.

Hook chains as tightly as possible by hand.

BROPHY RESIGNATION LAID TO REFORMERS

KIRCHWEY MAY BE NAMED

Brophy's Friends Say He Was Forced Out to Make Room for a "Sentimental" Reformer.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Warden Edward V. Brophy of Sing Sing, whose resignation Thursday was a surprise to his associates, quit the office, according to trustworthy prison reformers, because his Albany superiors so interfered with the management of the prison that Brophy's position became untenable.

Friends of the Warden declared that while he resigned of his own free will he was being embarrassed so he would step out and clear the way for a "sentimental" prison reformer. Warden Brophy declines to discuss these reports.

There was a rumor today that Superintendent of Prisons Charles F. Rattigan has for some time favored the appointment of Thomas Mott Osborne or George W. Kirchwey, who is an Osborne follower. In fact, prison officials said unless there is a change in the political program they expect Dean Kirchwey's appointment.

When Dr. Kirchwey, the former Warden, was asked if he would accept the post if proffered, he replied: "That would depend upon circumstances."

The impression about Sing Sing is that Mr. Osborne is not anxious to be Warden again, but that he would like to see one of his friends named. That he has again interested himself in New York's prisons was shown recently when he participated, with Mr. Rattigan, in a celebration in Auburn prison. Only a few days ago Mr. Rattigan instructed Warden Brophy that he had given Mr. Osborne a permit, without restrictions, to go through Sing Sing. Mr. Osborne, after notifying Warden Brophy through Spencer Miller, a former prison clerk, that he was coming, later changed his mind.

Warden Brophy is slated to receive another job in the State service. For this reason, prison attendants say, his lips are sealed, for he does not wish to be in the position of fomenting a party row.

Those in the Warden's confidence charge that several unruly convicts, including "O. K." Bill Myers, old-time burglar, who were ousted from Sing Sing by either Mr. Brophy or Mr. Moyer for misconduct or laziness, have been sent back to Sing Sing by Albany authorities. The other day Warden Brophy sent away thirty-five convicts to an up-state prison to relieve crowding, and the day he resigned back came thirty-two from Auburn, including some second, third, and fourth offenders.

The other half of the residuary estate is left to the widow, in trust, and this includes the Oak Ridge estate. On her death it becomes the property of the son. The son is named in the document as executor of the estate. No value is named in the papers which were filed here today in the office of the Surrogate.

ACCUSED BY POLICEWOMAN.

Oscar F. Pflug Arrested After Neighbors Had Complained.

Oscar M. Pflug, 32 years old, said to be connected with one of the largest steel corporations in Manhattan, and living at the Georgian Apartments, 277 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, is at liberty under $1,000 bail for examination next Wednesday. He was arraigned in the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, before Magistrate Folwell on complaint of Mrs. Kathryn Schneider, a police woman attached to the staff of Deputy Commissioner Ellen O'Grady.

Mrs. Schneider alleges that on Oct. 29, after she had received numerous complaints from residents, she stationed herself on the corner in front of the apartment and that her attention was attracted by a tapping sound on a window of a lower apartment. She alleged she turned around and saw a man she later identified as Pflug standing inside the window. Afterwards, she said, the man motioned to her.

Pflug refused to say a word when arraigned in court.

Replogle Gets Belgian Decoration.

J. Leonard Replogle, former Steel Director of the War Industries Board, was decorated with the Belgian Order of the Crown at the order of King Albert in recognition of his work in Washington during the war, which entailed the allotment of steel supplies to foreign Governments. The decoration was delivered by a Belgian Vice Consul for Baron de Cartier, the Belgian Ambassador.

MAY INDICT "CUPID" SMITH

Grand Jury Will Investigate Alleged Mental Cruelty.

Assistant District Attorney Hilton announced yesterday that Mr. would ask the Grand Jury for Indictment against Cupid Smith, the notorious Tenderloin character, in connection with the case of "Cupid's Triangle," brought to the New Hope Realties, which investigated Manhattan Avenue, where rents were increased unreasonably prior to their switch for lease, providing certain fees were paid. Hilton said the society conducted the "Matrimonial Page" and "Cupid's Advertiser."

Witnesses Mr. Hilton said he had subpoenaed included Mrs. Mary Foster and Mrs. Ida C. Halliday, merchants, and Frank Wright, alleged to be concerned in one of the publications. According to the Assistant District Attorney the men also required Arthur J. Bloom, an electrical engineer, who lives at the Twenty-third Street branch of the Y. M. C. A., to tell his experience with the society. Bloom said Miss Hunt, he had paid $25, and who listed in the "millionaire class," and that on Oct. 8-1919 he had married a member of the society. Two weeks later the woman, finding that her wealth did not square with her ideas, informed him that they had better separate.

Mrs. Mary Sullivan, a detective of the staff of Deputy Police Commissioner Ellen O'Grady, and Miss prepared to join the party to police, after which they seized the books and papers in the rooms. Mrs. Sullivan said the "millionaire" list contained fictitious names and addresses. Chief Inspector John Daly has ordered the police to keep the place closed.

THE TWO TREATIES.

The word "compromise" is ill-chosen by Senator McCUMBER as he uses it to describe the process by which agreement was reached in the Senate in respect to "the proposed "Lodge reservations from No. 2 to "No. 62." This was not a compromise between the firm friends of the Treaty and its enemies. It was not a compromise between the Republicans and Democrats. It was a compromise between the determined enemies of the compact who have persistently sought its destruction and the "mild reservationist", Republicans, who have conscientiously sought to save something from ruin. Moreover, this is not a compromise in respect to the Versailles Treaty; it concerns the Lodge treaty formulated, with intent to offer it for the acceptance or rejection of the allied nations, by the Foreign Relations Committee.

With the adoption of the reservation concerning Article X., which President WILSON describes as a stab at the heart of the Treaty, assuming that this reservation and others equally at war with the spirit and purpose of the League covenant are embodied in the final act of ratification, the control over the entire subject of peace with Germany and of the entry of the United States into the League of Nations passes from us into the hands of the other signatory parties, including Germany. The preamble already adopted makes our assent to the Treaty conditional upon the acceptance of the reservation by three of the four principal allied Powers. If two or more of these Powers reject the instrument in the form the Senate gives it, we shall cease to be a party to the Treaty of Peace and to the covenant unless, through some action not to be expected of the Senate in its present temper, the Versailles Treaty shall be substituted for the Lodge treaty. All the Powers with which we were associated in the war will be entirely free to make their own peace with Germany, to establish their own League of Nations. In that case the United States, by the act of the Senate, will be excluded from the League, and the state of war with Germany will continue. That is one of the most dangerous contingencies. We should have to ask Germany to negotiate a new treaty, a separate peace with us. It is not to be supposed that she will make such a treaty without a resolute effort to secure better terms. The negotiations would doubtless occupy several months; peace would be postponed, with all the evils that accrue from continued unsettlement and uncertainty.

Although in voting against acceptance of the Lodge treaty the Democrats would be manifesting the highest loyalty to the Versailles Treaty and to our associates in the war, to the cause of peace and to the cause of civilization, it is already apparent that Senator HITCHCOCK is not very sure that he can command the votes of a sufficient number of Democrats to defeat ratification. The Treaty has now been put in the position where matters of domestic legislation are often found in the final hours of a short session of Congress. After months of time have been wasted, when patience is exhausted, when members of both houses are worn out in body and in mind, measures are rushed to enactment with the slightest consideration and go upon the statute books filled with crudities and often in unworkable form. In this the worst foes of the Treaty have had their way; they wanted to kill it and they have hoped that by long delay further consideration might be put off until the next session.

Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan are entirely free to consider the Lodge reservation in regard to Article X. as a destructive amendment, as a flat rejection of the most vital and essential provision of the League covenant. The reservation declares that "the United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of "any other country or to interfere in "controversies between nations" unless in any particular case Congress "shall by act or joint resolution so provide." An obligation thus conditioned is infirm, it is not a commitment, it robs the contract of all binding force. That is the plain intent of its authors, for a reservation declaring that Congress must give its approval to the employment of military force would have met every sound and reasonable requirement of interpretation. This reservation goes much further and is tantamount to a declaration by the United States that it will enter into no general undertaking to prevent future wars, which is the great purpose of the covenant. Reservation 12 is of the same hostile character, for it so limits the participation of the United States in the application of economic restraints upon countries violating the covenant that it weakens, practically nullifies, a provision which promised to be an effective instrument for the prevention of war.

In strange companionship with the pro-Germans, the Reds and other bitter enemies of the Treaty, there are some Senators of pacifist temper who insist at all times and volubly that it was the munition makers looking for profits who drove the United States into war with Germany. If there are any munition makers who put the profits of their trade above the peace of the world and the welfare of civilized nations, they must shout with joy at every approach to the defeat of the Versailles Treaty; they must acclaim the Lodge reservations, depriving the Treaty of its effectiveness. Why any pacifist Senator or anti-war Senator should be at pains to please these persons whom they have so long denounced passes all understanding. Probably they have other motives. The chief grounds and motives of opposition to the Treaty, those which have inspired the obstructionists from the beginning, have not changed.

THE SILESIAN ELECTIONS.

The Germans are naturally pained by the results of the municipal elections in Upper Silesia, where a plebiscite is eventually to be taken to decide whether the province goes to Poland or stays with Prussia. According to German statistics, the Poles have nearly two-thirds of the population of the province, but some weeks ago German troops, taking advantage of strikes in the contested districts, poured in and shot, imprisoned, or exiled many of the Polish leaders. The allied troops who are to oversee the vote in the plebiscite have not left the Rhine, and it has been clear that the Germans will do everything they can to steal the election and keep the province.

Meanwhile the elections for local officials have upset many German hopes. The Germans controlled the whole machinery of administration, which they will not do in the plebiscite, and in view of the desperate measures already taken to hold the province and the introduction of great numbers of floating voters the Polish press is probably unduly moderate when it speaks of "unsatisfactory voting conditions." Despite German corruption and intimidation, the Poles seem to have cast three-quarters of the vote in the country districts and nearly half in the cities. That the Polish vote would be much larger in a fairly managed election is undoubted.

The Poles are already arguing that this vote ought to be considered as deciding the wishes of the province. Perhaps the Treaty guarantee of a plebiscite could be construed to support this argument, but it would be better to hold a special election provided that the promised allied guard is on hand. Without that, the Germans would be likely to send half of NOSKE's army to do the voting. The Supreme Council has sent a note to the German Government asking it, according to dispatches, to "disregard" the elections just held. What this means is somewhat obscure; but most plausibly it means that what happens in Silesia is none of the German Government's business, and that the Allies will attend to the disposal of the province.

OPERATORS AND MINERS.

The conference between the coal miners and operators has begun under conditions favorable to agreement. Both sides have exchanged blows which each has felt, and both have been made aware that they are under the observation of the public, which is the master of both. The miners' leaders have yielded to the law in a manner worthy of Americans, and deserving of liberality of treatment by the operators. The operators have won a legalistic victory which has not yet produced much coal, and which may be barren unless it is followed by a settlement on the merits. They were not raised or even discussed in the court proceedings. Even if the injunction should produce coal after a time, that would not be as acceptable to either the country or the unions as an adjustment on the merits. The country wants to see the miners get fair wages, which would be different from what the unions might perhaps extort. The operators, too, should have fair profits, which is different from what they might extort by conspiracy with the miners to pay undue wages and pass them along to the coal consumers. Coal Administrator GARFIELD is on hand, although not yet a party to the negotiations, to see that the public interests are not sacrificed by such a combination. It will be his part to see that wages and prices shall be raised in due proportion.

There is no objection to the miners' demands when presented as a maximum rather than as an ultimatum, when the strike threat is withdrawn. The operators say that they are willing to negotiate, which must mean that their ultimatum about continuance of work according to contract until next April, or to the proclamation of peace, has also been withdrawn. If the miners are speaking in good faith when they say that they want to earn more money rather than to shorten their work day, it would go a long way toward satisfying them if their idleness were reduced by the time lost through shortage of car supply. There is no doubt that the world would take all the coal which could be mined if it could be transported, and the miners' earnings would be amazing if they are right in saying that a thirty-hour week would produce more coal than is wanted. If they also would work when they could, but prefer to be idle, that would give them more wages than they say they are asking, without raising the price of coal. An agreement upon some such terms would be the happiest possible solution, far better than the breaking of the strike under legal forms.

THE CHALLENGE OF BERGER'S DISTRICT.

It probably will not surprise anybody that the Socialists of the Fifth Wisconsin District have renominated VICTOR L. BERGER for Congress. Such an occurrence was to be looked for. It is the strongest socialistic district in the United States, and a large number, perhaps a majority, of the Socialists in it are more implacable in their hostility to this Government than BERGER himself. For proof of this statement one need go no further than the election of 1914, in which enough of them bolted BERGER to defeat him for Congress because he would not go to such extremes as they.

They lost no time in renominating him. They even violated the rules and customs of their party in order to do it quickly. There is no other party which has such an ironclad machine and is so strictly governed by rules as the Socialist Party. Its laws prescribe the mode of nomination, and it is unheard of to violate them. Yet in this case, instead of a nomination by referendum, the Fifth Wisconsin District Socialists resorted to a device sometimes used by Americans, but never by Socialists, and nominated BERGER by mass meeting.

BERGER's re-election is highly probable. In that case, of course, the House will again refuse to seat him, and the Fifth Wisconsin District will remain unrepresented. This game of battledore and shuttlecock may keep up for years to come, if the district remains as inveterately opposed to American institutions as it now is. There have been instances of the kind in England. The nearest approach to BERGER's case was that of JOHN WILKES, the radical opponent of the British Government who was regularly elected at election after election, despite the repeated refusals of the House of Commons to seat him. On one occasion it unseated him though he had received over 1,100 votes and his opponent not quite 300.

The question now before the American people is whether a Congress district which is controlled by several thousand men who aim their blows at the American form of government shall be permitted to override the decision of the House that their representative is not entitled to take part in the making of American laws. It is doing them no injustice to charge them with hostility to this Government in time of war, since they were dissatisfied with even BERGER because he was not sufficiently pro-German for their extreme taste.

The issue, then, is not so much between the American people and VICTOR BERGER as it is between the American people and the majority of the Fifth Wisconsin District. That district, if it defies the House of Representatives by re-electing him, will merely be challenging the United States to a test of strength. The dispute may be long drawn out, but the odds are unequal and the result is not in doubt.

MEXICO NEEDS WATCHING.

While the Peace Conference was in session at Paris the Mexicans, it appears, were preparing for war. The munitions that were ordered in Spain were obviously to be used against this country, and the presumption is that the Mexican Government believed that armed intervention was inevitable. The information about secret Mexican activities given out by the State Department has some unpleasant features. It is not agreeable to read that CANDIDO AGUILAR, President CARRANZA's son-in-law and his Minister of Foreign Affairs, reverently placed a wreath upon WASHINGTON's tomb at Mount Vernon and then took ship for Paris to have an order placed with an arms manufactory at Liège. [illegible], who is President CARRANZA's [illegible] and had once been Ambassador at Washington, bought machine guns, rifles, and millions of rounds of ammunition in Spain. They were ordered and, in some quantity, they were shipped to Mexico. General MONDRAGON, a Mexican artillery expert, was also an agent in this curious business, on watch at Paris during the Peace Conference and slipping away to Spain at intervals.

So far as Belgium is concerned, it seems to be the fact that Señor AGUILAR's order was not filled, the State Department making representations to the Belgian Government that were heeded. Shipments would have been in violation of the International Arms Convention, an arrangement made for the post-war reconstruction period. To that compact Spain was not a party, and her makers of munitions had a legal right to find a market in Mexico. But it is in the power of the Spanish Government to make friendly representations to its subjects in the matter. The Government can, of course, decline to advise the Spanish munition makers, but it is not likely to defy the opinion of the world, which demands peace and the opportunity to resume industry.

Mexico has already received consignments of war material from Spain, but the amount may not be considerable. Cargo space for as late as Oct. 17 and Dec. 3 was being reserved, however. What is not to be doubted is Mexico's design to place large orders for munitions abroad and prepare for hostilities with the United States, although there has been no desire in this country for war with Mexico and the State Department has been long-suffering and patient under the provocation of frequent outrages upon American citizens. The situation is one that calls for watchfulness on the part of the Government at Washington, for it is painfully evident that President CARRANZA and his advisers cannot be trusted.

NOTES TO RUMANIA.

For some time past the Supreme Council, whenever not otherwise engaged, has spent its time sending notes to Rumania. The Rumanians were polite in their responses, but paid no attention to the Council's orders, so the Council's notes have become sharper and sharper, till the last is described as an ultimatum. All this is unfortunate in that it creates bad feeling over an affair in which both sides are to blame, the Council perhaps more so than the Rumanians; but it has served at least one useful purpose. It has demonstrated that the Supreme Council, whether or not it is able to exert adequate pressure upon our enemies, is quite powerless in disputes among the Allies. It can advise and recommend, but it can enforce nothing except by agreement. Allied action now, when there is any action, must be by a group of Powers agreed as to what they want; the plan of an executive body in which supporters of minority arguments would acquiesce in and support the decisions of the majority has proved impracticable.

This is unfortunate for the world, but it is a fact, and since it is a fact we might as well recognize it. The Rumanians were driven to act for themselves because the Council misunderstood the circumstances in a situation of grave danger to Rumania. The French also feel that their situation has been misunderstood, and that they have not been allowed to act sufficiently, but they have not contravened the decisions of the Council for several reasons. In the first place, France is powerful in the Council; and the Council has understood the needs of Western Europe better than conditions further east. The case of Italy is still more to the point.

The poleaxing of the League of Nations by the Senate is likely to bring matters to a head. The Supreme Council has attempted to act as a provisional League of Nations, and has failed because it had no very strong material or moral sanction. America, it must be admitted, is principally at fault—our executive representatives for taking the principal part in sharpening the controversy with Rumania, our Senate for destroying the possibility of perpetuating a system of international action. From now on we are likely to see international politics conducted in the old way of two or three or four nations temporarily co-operating for a common purpose; Rumania's secession from the confederacy of nations is likely to be followed by others. The welfare of Europe for the next few years must then depend on the success of provisional alliances; and fortunately the Rumanians are likely to be able to co-operate with France so long as their program is limited only to the defense of national interests.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Effect of Parades on Business. While it can be little more than a guess that the parade of the 27th Division cost the men, firms, and corporations doing business on Fifth Avenue $10,000,000 in loss of trade, Police Commissioner ENRIGHT's statement to that effect will not be considered an exaggeration by those who, being personally affected, naturally have given the subject most careful attention. Certainly the practice of having on this most famous of New York's streets all, or nearly all, of the city's processional demonstrations is one that inflicts upon the merchants a loss far greater than in justice they can be expected to bear.

Every great parade that passes their doors deprives them of practically the whole of a day's business, and it is the firm belief of those who have studied the subject that losses of this kind are never recovered. The reason for this is not obvious, and there is to the claim the easy answer that when buyers cannot fill a need or desire one day they will do it the next. Such a postponement, however, involves the adding of a day to the utilization of whatever is already possessed, and, taking the members of any community as a single customer, decreases proportionately the total of expenditure.

"Not a bad thing in times like these," it might be said. Even if that be so, the economy imposed should not be at the expense of the merchants doing business on a single street. Doing that constitutes a real grievance, and it is no wonder that the occupants of the Fifth Avenue shops will welcome the passage of an ordinance, which Commissioner ENRIGHT said was soon to be submitted to the Board of Aldermen, providing that hereafter parades shall be on Riverside Drive instead of on Fifth Avenue.

Riverside Drive Is Better. That there will be some opposition to the removal of parades from the thoroughfare so long associated with this always popular form of celebration and propaganda—that is to be expected, and reluctance to make the change is not without a colorable excuse. Close to the centre of the city, Fifth Avenue is, of all the north and south lines of travel, most conveniently reached by the largest fraction of New York's residents and visitors. That, however, is its one advantage—an important one, but not important enough to justify the so frequent selection of a single group of merchants to bear a serious loss, especially as it is a loss not necessarily borne by anybody.

In the days when paraders began to march on Fifth Avenue it was a residence street through all its course, and best for marching over because it had no car lines. Now it is given over wholly to business, from Central Park southward, and upon its prosperity as a business street the prosperity of the city is in no small degree dependent. Once reached, and it can be reached with little of either trouble or expense, Riverside Drive, with its greater width and the many open spaces adjoining it, is a much better street for parades than Fifth Avenue, and the habit of having them there can soon be established to everybody's contentment and nobody's injury.

Well Intended, But Hardly Commendable. A rich Englishman whom modesty has deprived of any signature except "F. S. T."—which may or may not be the initials of his name—has sent to the Chancellor of the Exchequer for cancellation bonds of a recent Government loan to the amount of £150,000.

As a reduction of Great Britain's colossal public debt that is not enough appreciably to reduce the burden of the British taxpayers. It is, however, a good deal of money for one man to give for such a purpose, and, by exhorting other wealthy Britons to sacrifice a fifth of their fortunes to mitigate the financial crisis confronting their country, "F. S. T." intimates that this is what he has done himself.

The "gesture" is fine—even noble—and there is no need or even any excuse for doubting that the donor of the bonds has acted with the best and highest of intentions. Nevertheless, instinct and reason alike say that he has made a mistake—that his example, somehow, is one which it would be wrong, or at least injudicious, to follow except when the finance of a country were in a condition more nearly desperate than those of England.

Honest debtors do not want to have their debts canceled; they want to pay them. Insolvency, for a nation as for an individual, excuses failure to pay debts; but though insolvency may be innocent as the result of one or some misfortune, it is always humiliating, and properly so. Great Britain, fortunately for the world, is not insolvent, and, vast as are her liabilities, her ability to meet them is still unquestioned. She is not asking for mercy from her creditors or proposing to compromise with them. Her credit is her most valuable possession, and credit is not helped by the acceptance of gifts from creditors.

His Name Raises Questions. It is now said that the name of the I. W. W. murderer who was lynched in Centralia was WESLEY EVERETT. If that really was his name, more than probably his parents and theirs for several generations were New England Methodists, and his particularly abhorrent crime of shooting a returned soldier was not committed by an unassimilated alien of the kind given to explicable hatred of ordered government and its representatives and supporters, but by one of a lineage and training that are expected to keep men out of and hostile to the miserable group of which this man was a member.

One would like to suspect that "Wesley Everett" was a name assumed in place of another, more abounding in consonants, less easy to pronounce, and with a wholly different "connotation." But that, unfortunately, is not probable—it is wholly improbable. It is not a name that anarchist or Bolshevik would choose.

So the Wesleys and Everetts will have to explain as best they can this degenerate and perverted bearer of their respectable names.

A New Democratic Organization.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Every possible agency should be made use of to improve industrial and political conditions, to the end that the period of unrest, now so menacing, may be quieted.

Here in Manhattan we can do something toward improving political conditions if there were brought into play a Democratic Party in the true sense of the word. The present organization, Tammany, lacks the power to attract men and women, and as an effective instrument to do its share toward rendering genuine service to the nation, it is a serious failure. The writer, therefore, would urge that work be started immediately for the formation of a borough organization that would be open to all men and women who are seeking patriotically the preservation and extension of democratic ideals, and who are willing and ready to do their part to maintain a high degree of political integrity, and by so doing stem the spread of socialism.

Let a committee of Democrats of, say, Messrs. Coudert, Schneider, Battle, Burr, McClellan, Rush, Straus, McAneny, Gerard, Lynn, Kennelly, Colby, Shearn, Hopper, Churchill, Ruus(?), Marlbert(?), Goff, Littleton and Miss Marbury take the matter in hand and adherents by the thousands will come forward to do their share to place Manhattan before the country as a credit to the Democratic Party, and a force to be reckoned with by those elements that now seek to spread disorder and upset our Government.

ARMY AND MILITIA.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have given a good deal of thought to the question of this country's military needs and my idea is that the following in a general way would be a good program for the Government to adopt:

That the United States should have a standing army limited to 250,000 well trained men who are willing to make a military career their regular profession and devote themselves entirely to this kind of service.

In addition I would have a national militia made up of voluntary enlistments, but once any one entered this organization it would then become compulsory upon him to abide by its rules and regulations, and this of course should be made fully understood in advance. The States should co-operate with the Federal Government in the establishment and conduct of the national militia, but its management and control should be vested in the Federal Government. One of the best and ablest Generals should be appointed as its head to organize it in a thorough, businesslike manner; every one to be treated alike on his merits; uniforms to be furnished free by the Government, with the condition that they shall only be used while the men are in service; appointments of officers and promotions from a lower to a higher rank to be made strictly upon merit. The duties of those enrolled in the national militia should be widely published, so that all would understand. It should be provided that the service demanded of the militia by the Government shall be accepted by employers as Government service and that they will not be allowed to discharge an employe or make deductions from his salary or wages on account of absence while in the performance of such service.

In this way we could have a very large number of men trained and ready for service when needed, and yet not force any one to serve in the army or do military duty against his will. In other words, it would obviate conscription, while the military needs of the Government would be supplied by an efficient and well trained organization of willing enlisted men.

I am also in favor of including in the curriculum of the schools and colleges athletic exercises for the students, but these athletic exercises to be non-military in character.

Advice to Russians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A Russian by birth and a naturalized American citizen for many years, I deem it my duty to say a word to Russians who lately became so unfortunately notorious in this country. There is an excellent Russian saying whose observation may save my former countrymen of many serious troubles: "V choojoy monastyr s svoim oostavom ne sooyris," which means: When entering a strange monastery you must drop your own by-laws.

This is a common sense. Once you are in this country, you are bound legally and logically to comply with laws of this country. If not, you shall be either imprisoned or deported. This is inevitable. How can one reasonably expect that the American people counting one hundred and ten million souls will patiently stand insane attempts of a group of greenhorn immigrants at the overthrow of the Government of this country?

But the order of things in this country, too, is not perfect. True enough, and there is an excellent way of treating all social and political evils: popular vote. Some misguided leaders of coal miners succeeded in bringing about a coal strike. But the Government declared that that strike must be stopped, being both unlawful and harmful to the people and the country at large. And the coal miners promptly yielded. Why? Because they are Americans and cannot fight their Government. This must be an excellent lesson to all those immigrants, Russian and others, who dream of overthrowing the Government of this country.

The French have a nice saying: "J'aime mon village mieux que le votre." (I like my village better than yours). If you Russians like better things Russian than American, then go back and stay in Russia, and every body will be contented.

PETER J. POPOFF.
Flushing, N. Y., Nov. 12, 1919.

The Offensive Preamble.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What do the Senators who voted for the preamble to the reservations think about the shame they are foisting upon the rest of us? We probably think as much of America as they do. But we do not care to project our "independence" all over the map of Europe. Why should we hold other nations down to our own interpretation, provincial to the last degree? Isn't that going a bit too far? It is perhaps well for the Senate to work off their grievance against the executive end of the Government by delay and bickering. But here they spread their bitterness over allies who bore the brunt of the fight for idealism and democracy three long years before we came in.

It is difficult to believe that this preamble is not an appeal to the provinciality of the groundlings. Many who have seen both in action, however, feel the provinciality of the groundling far less than they feel the provinciality of the Senators who misrepresent us at Washington.

The One Big Union.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Rants your radical agitator, sedulously seeking to stimulate industrial unrest, "We Want One Big Union!"

Well, we've got it, 110,000,000 strong, started in 1789 with less than 3,000,000 on the platform:

"We, the people of the United States of America, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, promote the general welfare * * *."

Forced Not to Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Labor talks just now a good deal of men not being forced to work. They say anti-strike law is slavery. How about men being forced not to work? They don't say much about that!

ANNIE NATHAN MEYER.

OUR DUTY.

Let us be eyes for those who cannot see—
Let us be arms and willing feet, each day,
For those who gave their members in the fray!
And let them not as humble paupers stand,
Beseeching aid, who gave all for our land!
It is so easy, when the music plays,
To run in service, and your voices raise
In patriotic effort! But, secure,
You little aid our Brothers to endure!
Red tape has clogged their just reward, and pay.
The Battle's over! Are they in the way?
Parades and Arches make a splendid show;
Quite smoothly does the Nation's money flow
In ostentation, but, for real relief,
There is no hurry! It is past belief
That we can smugly live our selfish lives
While Anarchy or Bolshevism thrives.
Do but remember! We may call again
For Soldier-aid. What if it be in vain—
What if they treated you as you do them—
Engrossed a Resolution with a Golden Pen,
Fed you with Speeches, but, when asked for aid,
Restricted effort to a street parade?

TELLS OF STRIKERS' LOSS.

Publishers Say Bulk of $4,000,000 Has Gone to Other Cities.

Both the employing printers and the locked-out and seceding pressmen and feeders expressed themselves yesterday as believing that they had won in the controversy which has tied up the New York industry for forty-four days.

John Adams Thayer, Secretary of the Periodical Publisher's Association, issued a statement in which he asserted that between three and four millions of dollars had been lost by the action of the "radicals and secessionists," and that a large part of the money was going to workers in other cities.

"The publishers of the sixty and more periodicals and the many business papers now printed in other cities are not at all likely to attempt to resume publication in New York until the situation is normal. The publishers of Collier's, Christian Herald, Vogue, Vanity Fair, Life, Leslie's, Judge, Century, St. Nicholas, and many other important publications now being printed outside of New York and appearing regularly, report that while their editorial and business departments will remain here, the printing of the publications will stay away until the local situation is straightened out and settled by contracts with international unions, made and guaranteed by the international organizations."

Mr. Thayer denied a report that the New York Life Insurance Company had made any settlement whatsoever with the strikers. He said their presses were not running, and that only international union men would be employed.

At the offices of Franklin Union No. 23 it was said that six of the shops owned by members of the Printers' League had come to terms with the secessionists and that 500 men would go back to work on the terms that had been demanded. At the headquarters of the league this statement was denied.

Members of Typographical Union No. 6 who are employed on newspapers have adopted resolutions calling upon printers in the book trade to end their "vacations" and go back to work, leaving the job wage scale to be submitted to arbitration. The movement began in the chapel of The Tribune, which adopted the resolutions on Thursday night. The chapels of The Sun and The Evening Sun adopted them yesterday.

Unless the Typographical Union officials submit a program that gives hope of a settlement at the meeting which is to be held tomorrow The Tribune chapel declared it would start a movement to call the officers of the International Typographical Union to New York to look after the matter.

After a meeting of Bookbinders' Union No. 1, held in the World Building last night, it was said by several members that the union had voted to work in the same shops as members of the seceding pressmen's and feeders' unions. No official statement as to the result of the meeting could be obtained.

RUMORS OF BIG SHIP DEAL.

Denied That Whelan and Duke Are Back of Transfer Co.

There were rumors yesterday in shipping circles that the United States Transfer Company, Inc., 59 Broad Street, which is capitalized at $25,000,000, would operate a large fleet of ocean steamships. It was reported that Charles W. Morse, the head of the organization, had made the announcement of the project.

The company, it was reported, had closed a contract with the United States Steamship Company for all of the latter's ships as well as those now in course of construction in its shipyards at Alexandria, Va., and New London, Conn. The United States concern is engaged exclusively in constructing ships and does not operate them.

The seven steamships under construction are oil-burning freighters of 9,400 dead-weight tons and will have a speed of eleven knots. It was stated that New York, Baltimore, and Philadelphia would be home ports for the new steamship line.

In a report published yesterday afternoon it was said that James B. Duke and George B. Whelan were on the Board of Directors of the new company, but this was denied by their representatives.

COLVER AGAIN HITS PACKERS

Defends Federal Trade Commission's Inquiry and Conclusions.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 14.—Defending the investigations of the Federal Trade Commission into the packing industry and reiterating the allegations made in the report of the commission, William B. Colver, a member of the commission, speaking before the National Coffee Roasters' Association, again attacked its methods.

"In 1904 these gentlemen told Commissioner of Corporations Garfield that they were really operating on such a gossamer-thin margin that it was hardly worth talking about," he declared. "Today they say the same and they spend millions to prove how little they earn.

"Fifteen years ago, when they told it to Garfield, the combined net worth of the five Chicago packers, as shown by their own books, was $92,148,000. Operating as they say practically for nothing, their combined net worth this year is $479,055,000. In other words, during these fifteen years $87,936,000 new money has been put into the business and $105,938,000 cash dividends have been drawn out.

"Because the Federal Trade Commission has obeyed the order of the President and Congress to examine into these affairs it finds itself, and not the packers, on trial."

Walker & Gillette, architects, as agents bought the "Portrait of Reina Marguerita," wife of Philip III. of Spain, for $1,100; Mme. Ganna Walska, the singer, paid $390 for an eighteenth century half-round console table; Mrs. Kissell Thorne gave $460 for a French escritoire of the Louis XVI. period, and Mrs. James Shewan paid $700 for a Cosway portrait and $400 for a "Portrait of Mrs. Marvin," by Sir Peter Lely.

The returns for the afternoon were $16,750, bringing the total for the sale to $28,950.

HOLBEIN PRINTS IN ART MUSEUM

FORTY-TWO MASTERPIECES

There was placed on exhibition in the Recent Accessions Room of the Metropolitan Museum of Art yesterday afternoon what is considered one of the most important single accessions to the print department of the Museum since its establishment in 1917, one of six known full sets of the "Dance of Death," by Holbein, the younger, cut by Hans Lutzelburger. The set consists of forty-two impressions of forty-one subjects, and was discovered last Summer in London by the curator of prints of the Museum, William M. Ivins, Jr. It came from a private collection. The collection of these fine old woodcuts, recognized, as Mr. Ivins says, as the "greatest pictorial masterpieces of the world," was probably what is called a mixed collection, coming from different sources. It has been in the English private collection to which it belonged for many years, unknown to the world. The Museum collection is printed on one side only, which is not always the case in the prints when they are in book form.

Two important drawings are by Ingres, of his earlier period, one of the artist's altogether delightful pencil portraits of a man, the other studies for the dead body of Acron in the artist's picture of Romulus Victor over Acron, three studies on one sheet. Bryson Burroughs, curator of paintings of the Museum, quotes Salomon Reinach as saying of these pencil portraits of Ingres that they were "among the wonders of French art."

Old Ming porcelain in the Recent Accession Room is another last Summer's find made by the curator of Far Eastern Art, Bosch Reitz, on a visit to his home in Holland. It is a variety of porcelain which Mr. Reitz says that he has never seen in China, and is that porcelain which has become familiar in connection with Holland, as having served the early Dutch painters as still life studies that they have introduced into their paintings. It is a crisp, thin, blue and white ware, not so carefully finished as the better known Chinese ware, and is said to have come from the local potteries of the South of China, instead of the imperial factories of the north, in which the better known wares were made. There are shown with the blue and white bowls of the Holland still life period other porcelains of the southern manufactories artistically crackled, one piece being what the Chinese call the spider web crackle.

Five interesting and decorative Korean paintings of the sixteenth century have been added to the Museum collection and are to be seen in the Recent Accessions Rooms, and there are a number of laces and textiles, gifts and bequests. A valuable gift, which has been for a number of years a loan to the Museum, is a collection of thirty-nine pieces of East Indian metal work presented by the President of the Museum, Robert W. de Forest, and his brother, Lockwood de Forest.

The exhibition of French art, which it was expected would be opened in the Museum the middle of this month, has been delayed, but the collection, lent to this country under the auspices of the French Government, will probably arrive in New York the first of next week, and the exhibition may open the middle of December.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is paying for a series of four concerts to be given at the Museum this season. His gift was made on condition that subscriptions be made to form another series, and this was done.

PHYFE SETTEE BRINGS $1,025

Interesting old pieces of furniture were sold at the closing afternoon of the sale of the collection of antiques of the late Mrs. F. H. Bosworth at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon, and a Duncan Phyfe cane and mahogany settee with loose seat cushion brought the highest price, going to Seaman, agent, for $1,025. An unusual pair of small maple wood vases of the eighteenth century with lotus leaf rims, on pedestals, went to Joseph Laroque for $210, and for an Early American maple table, oval top with hinged flaps, shaped apron, and three legs with spoon feet, Mr. Laroque paid $260.

An Early American tray-topped table for the bedside, with three drawers, cabriole legs, and splay feet, went to Mrs. Leo Kessell for $260. Mrs. J. R. Morrow went a side table by Duncan Phyfe for $300, and an English mahogany escritoire wing bookcase of the eighteenth century for $450. Otto Bernet, agent, paid $870 for a Duncan Phyfe settee upholstered in green velvet, and $280 for a pair of English carved wood and gilded mirrors of the Chippendale period.

A fine old Early American extension dining table of mahogany in the Sheraton manner went to Vernay for $950; an Early American highboy of maple with fluted pilasters, shaped apron, cabriole legs and Spanish feet, to Seaman, agent, for $900; a set of Early American chairs, six side and two arm, in the Sheraton manner, to Koopman & Sons for $560; Ginsberg & Levy paid $540 for an English painted cellarette and wine cooler of the eighteenth century; a fourfold painted Dutch screen went to Koopman & Sons for $220, and for an English mahogany bookcase of the Chippendale period they paid $625.

COOLIDGE SEES LABOR GAIN.

Declares That Discontent Is Fomented by Public Enemies.

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—Governor Coolidge in a proclamation today naming Nov. 27 as Thanksgiving Day, gives thanks for a year of peace, and adds:

"The condition of those who toil is higher, better, more secure than in all the ages past. Out of the darkness of great conflict has appeared the vision nearer, clearer, than ever before of a life on earth less and less under the deadening restraint of force, more and more under the vitalizing influence of reason. Moral power has been triumphing over physical power.

"For satisfaction with present conditions there is every evidence, every reason, deep and enduring. For discontent there is only the purpose of those who wish to advance the cause of public enemies."

SAYS BAD HANDLING INJURED LEVIATHAN

Engineer Declares German Crew Did Not Maliciously Disable the Former Vaterland.

Supervisor of Repairs Asserts That Engine Trouble Developed Through "Faulty Personnel."

The steamship Leviathan, formerly the German liner Vaterland, was not maliciously damaged by her German crew, Ernest H. B. Anderson, a marine engineer, who supervised the repairs to the ship, declared yesterday at a meeting of the Society of Naval Architects, at 29 West Thirty-ninth Street. The damage, he asserted, was due to faulty personnel, and he expressed the opinion that the German engineers were in very serious trouble with their engines before the ship was laid up at Hoboken.

Mr. Anderson and William H. Mackay, who was chief engineer of the Leviathan on her first trip after the repairs, told the architects of the repairs made to the German ship. It was in a discussion following Mr. Anderson's address that the details of the damage to the ship were disclosed. A member asked him how the damage was done.

"It was frictional heat, generated by distortion and not deliberate," he replied.

He described in detail the evidences of a futile attempt made by the Germans to repair the ship. In one part of the boat they had cut sixteen passageways to try to get at the source of the trouble. Rear Admiral Capps, who presided, asked if it was faulty installation and operation that had caused the damage.

"I should say rather faulty personnel," Mr. Anderson replied. "I am confident now, as I was then, that the engineers of the Vaterland were in very serious troubles before the ship was laid up at Hoboken."

He expressed the opinion that the ship might have been taken back to Europe in the condition she was in when the United States Shipping Board took her over.

Seven days' ventilation was needed before repairs could be started to the Vaterland, Mr. Mackay said. There were no lights and the engineers had no maps or charts to guide them in finding the intricate machinery and pipe system.

"While we were opening and closing doors," he said, "we never knew what minute while groping in the dark with the aid of flashlights something was going to happen to us. One day Anderson had disappeared for five hours, and I searched for him for an hour, and I finally found him at 9:30 at night in the bilge of the ship searching for piping."

Mr. Mackay told of the speed which was necessary to get the ship back in commission in three months and twelve days. At one time the Westinghouse Company sent a special train from Pittsburgh with experts to aid in the work. The Coe Brass Company transplanted its shop from Connecticut to the Brooklyn Navy Yard to make the tools to form the blading for the turbine engine.

Prof. William Hovgaard read a paper on "Buoyancy and Stability of Troop Transports." There were other papers by Commander William McEntee, J. Emile Schmeltzer, B. G. Fernald, W. L. R. Emmett, Henry C. E. Meyer and G. L. Kothny.

Today the architects will go to Newark to see the launching of a submarine. Tonight they will hold a dinner at the Waldorf at which Rear Admiral Capps will be toastmaster. The speakers will include Secretary Daniels, Major General David C. Shanks, Bainbridge Colby, Homer L. Ferguson, Rear Admiral Albert P. Niblack, J. L. Ackerson, Rear Admiral James J. Glennon and Rear Admiral J. D. McDonald.

FAVORS NEW JERSEY CANAL.

City Club Indorses Proposed Federal Waterway Across State.

The Board of Trustees of the City Club at a meeting last night, indorsed the contemplated project of the Federal Government to build a canal across New Jersey from Bordentown on the Delaware River to Morgan on Raritan Bay.

"The committee in indorsing this project does so with the understanding that this is but a part of the Intercoastal Waterway System and that it is intended by the Federal Government to improve the Chesapeake and Delaware canal already taken over by the Government, and to deepen the East River and Hell Gate," said the resolution of indorsement.

The canal line surveyed by Government engineers is almost a straight line crossing the State at the narrowest part. The length of the canal from Bordentown to Morgan is 33.7 miles. The distance from the wharves in Philadelphia to the Battery in New York City by way of the proposed canal would be 97 miles. The present route between these two points now is about 274 miles.

MORE PAY FOR PASTORS.

Methodist Centenary Committee Raises Millions for Salaries.

The 50,000 Methodist clergymen in this country will hereafter face the high cost of living with more confidence, for the Centenary Conservation Committee of the church announced yesterday a general rise in salaries, to take effect at once. For some this increase will be 100 per cent. The committee has raised $113,000,000 in the North and $53,000,000 in the South for a program of "regeneration" and has funds to carry out the increase.

A sub-committee made a canvass of the country and found that some pastors in rural sections were receiving as little as $200 a year; practically charity charges on the good-will of their flocks. The highest salary paid was $5,500. The committee began with this appeal to congregations:

"Why not pay your minister a living wage?" In many cases the congregation responded, but in others churches were unable to increase their burdens. Here the committee stepped in and guaranteed the advance.

The average pay under the new plan will be $1,500. Size of family, the location of the charge, prices that prevail, and other things will be considered in making out the salary scale. The main thing, it was said yesterday, is that those who serve shall get enough to meet present day costs and maintain their self-respect. The average Methodist minister's salary in 1907 was only $600 a year. In 1918 it had gone up to $1,111.

Laymen generally are taking the initiative. The Detroit Laymen's Conference went on record recently that 85 per cent. of the pastors at prevailing salaries cannot even educate their children, and accordingly fixed a minimum salary of $1,200 a year and parsonage. The Des Moines and Nebraska Conferences have adopted a minimum salary of $1,500 a year and parsonage. The Southern Illinois Conference a minimum of $1,200 and parsonage. South Dakota a minimum of $1,400 and parsonage.

BACK CHAPLAINS BILL HERE.

Federal Council of Churches Urges Its Passage.

Church leaders are urging the passage of the Army Chaplains bill, recently introduced in the Senate by Senator Capper of Kansas, and in the House by Congressman Hull of Iowa. The bill provides for a chaplain for each 1,200 commissioned officers and enlisted men, the corps to be administered by a staff of three chaplains "fairly representing the religious forces of the country."

"The almost unanimous verdict of officers and men is that the chaplains 'made good,'" says a statement issued yesterday by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. "If supervision of the work of the chaplains was essential during the war, it is no less so in time of peace. To obtain the most efficient service from any group of men set apart for a peculiar kind of professional work, there must obviously be co-ordination, intelligent supervision, and sympathetic control."

SINGER AND PIANIST HEARD.

Minna Kaufmann, Soprano, and Louis Cornell Appear in Aeolian Hall.

Minna Kaufmann, an American soprano with evident liking for the songs of Scandinavian lands, which she sang with relish, and for serious airs, exemplified in Beethoven's "Ah, Perfido," appeared after three years' absence in a recital yesterday afternoon at Aeolian Hall. She has good stage presence, and a voice that brightens as it takes its higher flights. In Poldowski's "L'Heure Exquise," the warm tones prevailed, even against the chill of a marked Northern diction, but the lustre was lacking in Chopin's "Aime Moi."

Louis Cornell gave a piano recital in Aeolian Hall last evening, which for a man to do takes courage these days. The recapture of the concert stage, however, by a due proportion of male citizens released from army service has already added variety to the current season. Mr. Cornell's program ranged from Debussy's delightful "Homage to S. Pickwick, Esq.," to the B minor sonata of Liszt. "The Spinner," by Rudolph Ganz, and a scherzo by d'Albert.

COUNTESS TOLSTOY DIES IN RUSSIA

MOTHER OF 16 CHILDREN

After the Count's Flight to the Simple Life She Sent Him an Urgent Appeal.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Countess Leo Tolstoy, widow of the famous Russian novelist, died at Yasnaya Poliana, Nov. 4, according to a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Helsingfors, quoting the Krasnaya Gazette.

Countess Tolstoy before her marriage was Sophie Behrs, daughter of a fashionable Moscow physician. She was married to Count Tolstoy in 1862. The couple had sixteen children.

Count Tolstoy's vagaries in his later life, which led him to flee from his family in search of a simple mode of living, were said to have been a great strain upon his wife.

When the novelist became critically ill just prior to his death, in November, 1910, he was lying in a poorly ventilated room at a small village eighty miles from his estate at Yasnaya Poliana, attended by his daughter. As Count Tolstoy had expressed the wish that no one seek him out, Countess Tolstoy sent an urgent appeal that she be permitted to join him in his self-imposed exile and hardships. The Countess later received a touching letter from the Count and proceeded to the village, but was admitted to the sick room only the night before he died.

BIRTH OF BABE CAUSES FINE.

Mother-in-Law Charged Father Displayed Anger When Child Arrived.

Contradictory stories as to what motive inspired Nat Lipson, a mechanic, of 1,468 Fifth Avenue, to start the Victrola after his wife became a mother for the second time at 1 o'clock yesterday morning were told in the Harlem Court yesterday when Lipson was arraigned before Magistrate Thomas J. Nolan, on a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by his mother-in-law, Helen Oldstone, of 104 West 115th Street.

Lipson told the magistrate he turned on the Victrola to show his delight over the second visit of the stork to his home. The mother-in-law, however, said the defendant was a believer in birth control, was enraged at his wife because of the advent of another child and started playing the machine to show his displeasure.

In addition, the mother-in-law stated, the defendant smashed dishes, created a general disturbance and struck her with the handle of the Victrola when she remonstrated with him.

After hearing the evidence Magistrate Nolan found Lipson guilty of disorderly conduct and fined him $10.

PACKERS ENJOIN POLICE.

Jersey City Officials Cannot Return Alleged Strikebreakers.

Injunctions have been granted by Vice Chancellor Stevenson at Paterson, N. J., restraining Mayor Frank Hague and Chief of Police Richard Battersby of Jersey City, from interfering with the business of Armour & Co. and Swift & Co., in Jersey City. The operation of these plants, which were closed on Oct. 14 by strikes, has been resumed.

According to Chief of Police Battersby strikebreakers were furnished by a New York agency. The police compelled the alleged strikebreakers to return to this city. Mayor Hague and the Director of Public Safety, Charles F. X. O'Brien, said they would not endanger the public peace by permitting strikebreakers to take the place of strikers.

The injunctions resulted. Chief Battersby said he would obey the injunction and instructed his men last night that their only duty was "to protect life and property." The injunctions are returnable before Vice Chancellor Stevenson in Jersey City, Nov. 19.

Two hundred bench butchers in Jersey City went out on strike yesterday afternoon. The men demand $45 a week and want to quit at 9 o'clock on Saturday evenings instead of 11 o'clock. They now receive from $25 to $28 a week.

STEINWAY.—At a stated meeting of the Board of Trustees of the CITIZENS SAVINGS BANK, held at the Banking House, Nos. 56 and 58 Bowery, in the City of New York, on the 13th day of November, 1919, the following minute was unanimously adopted and ordered to be recorded:

The Trustees have learned with deep regret of the death on the 30th of October of their associate Charles H. Steinway, and desire to enter upon the minutes of the board an expression of their appreciation of his character and of the loss which the Trustees and the bank have sustained.

Mr. Steinway became a Trustee in 1880 and was in point of service the senior member of this board. He was probably at the time of his election the junior in years of all his associates on the board, but his great interest in the affairs of the bank, and his intelligence and ability soon caused him to be elected Second Vice President, which office he held from 1890 to 1903, when the pressure of the responsibilities devolved upon him by his accession to the Presidency of the great house of Steinway & Sons compelled him to decline re-election.

Mr. Steinway was a man of sound judgment, strict integrity, genial temperament and ready wit, and of unusual musical attainments, all of which, added to a fine presence, made him prominent alike in the social, business and public affairs of New York. In his death this board has lost a faithful and efficient member and the Trustees have lost a valued friend.

The members of this board hereby express their sincere sympathy and condolence with the family of the deceased and direct that a copy of this minute be sent to them, and that it be published in the daily papers.
HENRY HASLER, President.

60,000 WILL WATCH YALE BATTLE TIGER

Clear Weather Predicted for Game at New Haven, but Field Is Still Heavy.

BOTH TEAMS IN GOOD TRIM

Signal Drills Conclude Preparations—Betting Is at Even Money—Callahan vs. Callahan.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 14.—The City of Elms is already crowded with visitors for the Yale-Princeton game at the Bowl tomorrow. The hotels and rooming houses are jammed to capacity, and many of the hotels have placed three or four cots in a room. Early this evening the last unreserved room was snapped up for $10. There was no bath and it was on the top floor close to the tin roof.

With the crowd which is already here and the thousands who are expected in the morning in automobiles and by special trains, New Haven and Yale will have the largest gathering of guests they have ever entertained. Yale men from all over the country are rallying to the Blue standard, because there is a strong feeling in the air that Yale is going to win tomorrow. This feeling is more a wish than anything else, and it is not so strong that Yale men are willing to offer odds on the Elis.

There is a lot of talk about Yale being the favorite, but most of the real bets which have been made are at even money. The air is full of rumors about the physical condition of the Tigers. This afternoon it was whispered about that Trimble, Princeton's star half back, was in bad shape. This calamity yarn, like all the others, was discredited when Trimble appeared in uniform at the bowl and went through the signal drill with the other players.

Optimism Prevails.

The air is surcharged with optimism over Yale's chances, and the student body marched to the field this afternoon and gave the football warriors a great reception when they went through a signal drill. This was followed by a short scrimmage between the substitutes and the scrubs.

Every one of the Yale players is in fine condition with the exception of Thorne, Murphy and Webb. Murphy was out in uniform today, however, and practiced kicking field goals for some time. In case of the gravest necessity, it is believed that the Yale coaches will take a chance and send Murphy into the game to try for a goal from the field.

When the Yale players returned from the bowl this afternoon they met the Princeton squad just going out to the field. The two Callahan brothers, Tim of Yale, and Mike of Princeton, who will face each other at centre, saw each other and shook their brotherly right hands. They edged off to one side and exchanged greetings. Just what Tim said to Mike, or what Mike said to Tim no one knows, but they smiled, and it is not believed they exchanged any sentiments other than what two boys of the same family, who are on the best of terms, would be likely to say to each other. There has been a lot of idle talk about what the Callahan boys would do to each other when they clashed, but those who know them both say that they will not mix it up any more seriously than they have a hundred of times before in their own back yard. It was whispered that Jim Braden, the Yale full back, was not feeling right and had gone to the Yale infirmary last night. He did go to the infirmary, but it was not because he was sick. It was because he wanted a nice, quiet place to sleep.

Sleep in Infirmary.

All the Yale players will go to the infirmary tonight and will spend the morning at the New Haven Country Club. After the game the Yale players will be hurried away to Waterbury, where they will have dinner, and on Sunday spend a quiet day at Briercliff.

Doc Sharpe and Bill Roper, the coaches of the Yale and Princeton elevens, met here this evening and decided on Victor Schwartz of Brown as linesman for tomorrow's game.

The turf at the Bowl this afternoon was wet and heavy, and there were many muddy spots after the players had been running around a while. The drainage system at the Bowl has not worked as well as expected, and the field is sure to be muddy for the big game. The heavy going should favor the heavier Yale line.

After the Princeton squad had cavorted about the Bowl for half an hour and had gone through a brisk signal drill there was no evidence that any of the players were in poor condition. The hard schedule the eleven has played during the last three weeks, however, is sure to have sapped some of the energy from the first-string men, and it is likely that Princeton will begin to rush substitutes into the game early. Roper has been paying unusual attention to his reserve players for the last week, and Princeton's surprise tomorrow may be not in the work of the regulars but that of the substitutes.

Twins Likely to Play.

The Yale reserves are all keyed up to do their part. There is unusual interest not only in the Callahan brothers, but also in the Welles twins, who are pretty sure to get into the game for Yale. An interesting yarn is being told tonight about the Welles boys. They were at the officers' training camp at Camp Zachary Taylor, and were both in the same squad. Don went in first and was given his commission. About five minutes afterward Ed went in to get his commission and the officer in charge became excited and insisted he had already commissioned the officer. It took several witnesses to change the commandant's mind and in the meantime Ed was on the verge of being sent to the guard house. It is difficult to tell the two blond lads apart. If the Welles are in the game at the same time tomorrow, the officials will have to label them to tell who's who.

Ticket speculators are doing a big business in spite of the efforts of local detectives and the Federal officers. There is a local ordinance against ticket speculating, but many of the scalpers have headquarters outside of the city limits where they have sold seats for as high as $25 a pair. The little town of Milford not far from here is said to have been the place where the speculators have carried on their business during the past few days.

The local police expect that 14,000 automobiles will roll into the city tomorrow before game time and anticipate a hard time in handling the traffic. The folks who own the open lots out near the Bowl expect to reap a harvest.

Fine Weather Predicted.

Weatherman Tarr, who predicts the barometrical conditions around here, says that it will be a fine day, and everybody hopes that Mr. Tarr is right. It is cool and clear tonight, and for once every one is glad to agree with the Weather Bureau.

There was a great roundup of letter men at the 'Y' Club tonight. Former Yale athletes who have won honors on the track and river, on the diamond and gridiron all answered the call for their first meeting since before the war. Walter Camp talked and got a great reception. Among the old Yale players were Frank Butterworth, Brink Thorne, Julian Curtiss, Pudge Heffelfinger, and hundreds of others.

The sentiment is strong that Yale will show surprising strength tomorrow. There is surely a wealth of great gridiron material in Doc Sharpe's squad and it is certain that the possibilities of the eleven have not yet come to the surface. Princeton has one of the grittiest and gamest elevens that ever wore the orange and black, the manner in which they came back against Harvard last Saturday being enough to make Yale treat them with respect. The Princeton men who have come to town are confident that the Tigers are going to give Yale just as surprising a reception as they gave Harvard, and if they can do this the 60,000 spectators who will jam the Bowl tomorrow will see one of the best gridiron battles of a decade.

PITT TO MISS CAPT. DE HART

Mervis Also Will Not Face Penn at Philadelphia Today.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 14.—Coach Glenn Warner has used heroic measures with the Pittsburgh Panthers in the last three days in order to shape them up for the Pennsylvania game at Philadelphia tomorrow, and when he left this morning for the East he had the satisfaction of leaving only one man at home, Lou Mervis, one of the best tackles that ever carried the Blue and Gold colors, and who is out for the season.

Captain Jimmie De Hart was taken along, but it is positive that he will not be in the game tomorrow. He was included in the squad as a reward for his plucky work under physical disability in the last three games, and also as an adviser to his chief.

Glenn Warner said before leaving today: "I am glad that Jimmy got out of the hospital in time to go with us as he has a wonderful influence on the players, and his presence with me on the side lines is going to help some. I am sorry at having to leave Mervis behind, but feel encouraged at the improvement in Tom Davies's condition, and am also hoping for great things from speedy Laughran tomorrow, who will take Davies's place, while the latter goes to quarterback. I have no predictions to make on the result. The Panthers will do their best, I know."

Mountaineers Hold Final Drill.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 14.—West Virginia's football team arrived here today en route to Rutgers College at New Brunswick, and this afternoon had a light but spirited workout. A fifteen-minute kicking drill, in which the backs handled King's kicks poorly, was followed by thirty minutes of signal work in which McIntire made an eleventh hour attempt to perfect the plays that will be used tomorrow. The team will go to New Brunswick tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and will line up with Martin at right end in place of Hager, and McCue at left guard instead of Ice.

MANY GOOD GAMES ON SCHEDULE TODAY

While the traditional grapple of the Tiger and the Bulldog in the Yale Bowl this afternoon rightly holds the first place in the affections of the football fans, a number of other games loom up on the schedule with an even greater significance so far as the season's records are concerned. The unbeaten Colgate team, for instance, conqueror of Princeton and Cornell, finds in Syracuse an opponent capable of giving the much tangled statistics another terrific twist, for Buck O'Neill's light and fast eleven has, with the single exception of an upset by Washington and Jefferson, almost as impressive a record as Larry Bankhart's veteran aggregation. In their recent victory over Rutgers at the Polo Grounds the wearers of the orange looked exceedingly strong, whereas, Colgate, nearing the end of a hard schedule, is about due for the inevitable slump that strikes every team at some time in the season. If by any chance the Syracusans should win the game, the picking of a logical eastern champion would become a practical impossibility.

Dartmouth, also, which shares with Colgate and perhaps Harvard the top rung of the eastern football ladder at present, may be rudely surprised by an uprising on the part of Brown University today on the neutral ground at Boston. The Providence representatives have consistently met strong rivals this year, and, although they have lost to Colgate, Harvard, Syracuse and Yale, all of these games have been close. Dartmouth should be a strong favorite on the basis of comparative scores against Colgate, but with Robertson and Youngstrom out of the lineup, it is doubtful if the Green can live up to its past performances this afternoon. Only the well-known and oft-proved fighting spirit of the eleven coached by Bob Spears leads to the feeling that every handicap can be overcome and the Dartmouth slate kept clean to the end of the season.

Penn Versus Pittsburgh.

Down in Philadelphia another heroic struggle is scheduled, with the University of Pennsylvania getting one more chance to assert its real strength in an encounter with the highly rated Pittsburgh eleven. The latter, although beaten by Syracuse early in the season, still gives the impression of being one of the strongest combinations playing today, and its defeat of Washington and Jefferson, previously a winner over Syracuse, practically offsets this single reverse. Pennsylvania also has indicated all through the season a latent strength which the actual scores of its recent games have not entirely reflected.

A defeat by Penn State was administered on a wet field, and last week's sensational battle with Dartmouth was decided by the narrow margin of a single goal, after each team had scored three touchdowns. Pennsylvania's forward passing attack is the most impressive that the brilliant football days of 1919 have produced, and it may well be argued that only a combination of bad luck and individual mistakes has kept Folwell's eleven from topping the list. A victory over the Panthers today would not be by any means an extraordinary upset.

The local football schedule presents two unusually good games, Columbia meeting Wesleyan on South Field, with New York University entertaining Stevens Institute on the heights further uptown. Wesleyan's record this year was an astonishing one until last Saturday, when Amherst spoiled an absolutely clean slate by a spectacular 9 to 7 victory. Up to this time the Methodists had not even been scored upon, and numbered Williams and New York University among their victims. Since Columbia defeated Amherst by exactly the same score as marked Saturday's difference between the winner and the loser, the metropolitan representatives might seem to be in the logical position of favorites today. But Dawson's squad is admittedly in bad shape, with the banishment of Captain Canapary as the climax of a series of misunderstandings and disasters, and an actual victory this afternoon is scarcely within the bounds of possibility.

Stevens Meets Test.

Stevens has a better record for the season than its New York rival, having progressed thus far without a defeat and with only two points registered by its opponents. But the Engineers have enjoyed a lighter schedule than the local university, and New York may easily prove the team to stop their winning streak. Both elevens shut out Rensselaer Poly, and this one basis of comparison leaves little to choose between them. Stevens surprised the experts by its easy victory over Columbia last week, and, with a possible New York title depending on today's meeting, Ohio Field should offer one of the real football classics of 1919.

Harvard should beat Tufts at Cambridge, although the little New England college may given the Crimson more of an argument than seemed likely earlier in the year. Cornell's schedule has been chiefly one drubbing after another, and the fighting huskies from Penn State promise her some more unpleasantness at Ithaca this afternoon.

Rutgers, having retrieved some earlier misfortunes by winning from Boston College last week, has the chance to come still nearer to her former standing today by making at least a good showing against West Virginia. A victory over the conquerors of Princeton, however, is a bit too much to expect of Sanford's plucky warriors.

Williams and Amherst settle a traditional rivalry on the home field of the former, with practically nothing to choose between them. Lafayette and Lehigh, approaching their own annual argument, both draw light assignments today, the first against Trinity, the second against Muhlenberg.

Virginia and Vanderbilt are scheduled for one of the significant contests of the South, and the great schoolboy rivals of Andover and Exeter clash in another of the many great battles which will make football history this afternoon.

Norwich Defeats Boston University.

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—Norwich University's football team defeated the Boston University eleven, 10 to 7, today.

Carrier Pigeons to Bring Period Scores to Soldiers

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio, Nov. 14.—Two dozen army carrier pigeons will be used to tell soldiers at Camp Sherman the quarterly results of the football game between Camp Sherman and Camp Taylor, at Louisville, Ky. tomorrow. On orders of Major Gen E. F. Glenn, camp commandant, Lieutenant Vitschum, camp signal officer, left for Louisville today with the pigeons. Results of each quarter will be sent back to Camp Sherman by the pigeons. It is estimated that it will take the birds about two hours to make the trip. This is said to be the first time football results ever were transmitted by carrier pigeons. Officers believe it will be splendid training for the birds and may result in an officer's being detailed to carry on his work in connection with the football team hereafter.

HARVARD PLAYERS WILL SCOUT ELIS

Coaches Send First-String Men to New Haven Today and Subs Will Face Tufts.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 14.—There has been no change in the plan of the Harvard coaches to start a team of substitutes in the football match with Tufts in the Stadium tomorrow. Notwithstanding that the Cambridge coaches hold the team from College Hill in respect, no chances will be taken with the players who are being trained for next week's game with Yale. Some of the regulars eventually may get into the game, but there will not be many.

Good football weather was provided this afternoon, and with a better field the practice was faster than at any time this week. The regulars put a lot of spirit into their offensive drill, and piled in hard and fast in their defensive session against Yale plays. The men, however, are being watched very carefully. Coach Fisher and his assistants spent a lot of time with the fellows who will be in the lineup tomorrow. It has been decided to use Hubbard at right tackle, as he got no work in the Princeton game and will be relied on to go into the 'Varsity line next week if it is necessary to use Kane at end at any time. Kane also probably will get a chance to show what he can do on one of the wings against Tufts, and will play opposite Phinney, who has been out of the hard going for weeks, but who is now ready to take his full share of the work.

Captain Murray will be one of the players who will go to New Haven tomorrow for the Yale-Princeton game. Bob Fisher will head a party of coaches and has asked Percy Haughton to go along with Scouts Logan, Blake, Leary, and others. Ralph Horween, who can't play tomorrow, and Sedgwick, whose leg is still tender, also may see the game in the Bowl, and if any other back field man goes along it probably will be Eddie Casey, who is being rested after his experience a week ago at Princeton.

COLGATE ELEVEN ON EDGE.

Hopes to Beat Syracuse in Its Final Football Game of Season.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 14.—As far as practice is concerned, Colgate ended her football season this afternoon. All that remains now is the game with Syracuse tomorrow, which will be the climax of Colgate's season. Colgate never considers a football season a success unless she defeats her old rival. Larry Bankarts said as much today after practice, but he added that it was no prediction.

The final practice of the year was perhaps the shortest one of the entire season, but it was one of the snappiest. The whole squad reported on the field at 3 o'clock and was sent to the showers at 4. Most of the hour was taken up by a fast signal drill for the three teams. Quite a little time was put in by Captain West, Anderson, Wooster, Laird, and Webster, and all of them got off their kicks in unusually fine form. Their work in this department of the game has been suffering lately, due, perhaps, to the bad weather conditions, while today was ideal, and every man was kept on his toes. The coaching staff expressed the hope that the weather tomorrow would be as good.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 14.—With weather conditions superb for football and the largest crowd of the season arriving in town for the game, the stage is all set for the battle between Cornell and Penn State at Schoellkopf Field tomorrow afternoon, the closing home contest on the Red eleven's schedule.

By reason of their victory over Pennsylvania and the superior form they have shown all season, State is favorite, and only a few Cornellians have accepted the 10 to 6 odds that have been offered by partisans of the Quakers.

The rapid development of the Cornell offensive in the last ten days, however, and the return to the lineup of several crack players who have been out of the game with injuries, has heartened the supporters of the Cornell team, and on all sides a close and exciting battle is looked for. The Ithacans have strengthened their end and tackle defense and they will have the best secondary defense of the year.

AMHERST TEAM IS READY.

Entire Student Body Follows Eleven to Williamstown Today.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 14.—The Amherst football team was put through a final signal drill this afternoon before the big Williams game tomorrow, upon which hangs the success of the season. Only one of Amherst's cripples will be unable to start the game, Charles Vail being kept on the side lines as a substitute, while Cummings will take his place at left tackle. Davidson will fill the berth on the left wing.

If Davidson should have to leave the game on account of his injured shoulders, Coach Gettell has three good line substitutes in Vail, Clark, and Palmer, and the Amherst forwards are rated a stronger combination than those of Williams. The entire Amherst student body will leave early tomorrow morning by special train for Williamstown, where prospects point to one of the most exciting struggles ever recorded between the two old rivals.

WESLEYAN ON HAND TO MEET COLUMBIA

Dawson's Rebuilt Morningside Eleven Will Have Strenuous Battle on South Field Today.

The Columbia football machine, remodeled and rebuilt, will go through another test of fire this afternoon on South Field when Wesleyan, the conqueror of Williams, meets the Blue and White in the annual game between the two. The Connecticut eleven, headed by Captain Harman and Boote, the well-named drop-kicker, arrived in town last night. They were preceded by their freshman team, which furnished Columbia with a happy augury by losing to the Morningside yearlings on South Field yesterday afternoon.

Who will win this afternoon's tussle depends entirely on the way one figures it. According to one set of records, Columbia defeated Amherst, which last Saturday trounced Wesleyan. Williams gave Columbia a decisive setback and later met disaster at the hands of Wesleyan.

Despite the uncertain condition of the advance dope, Wesleyan is clearly the favorite. On paper, Columbia is beaten before it goes into the game, like many other teams that have been beaten this year before the opening whistle. Whether the Blue and White will stay beaten is another question, especially on Morningside Heights, where a "beat Wesleyan" campaign has been waged during the entire week. If Wesleyan wins, as Jack Kennedy, the new captain, told the students, it will be because it is the better team and not because Columbia failed to fight.

To help the good cause along, Coach Fred Dawson said last night that Charlie Shaw, the half back, and Ralph Forsyth, left guard, would both start in today's battle. Eccles will be at quarter back, with Moszcinski the only new man in the back field. Modarelli will start at right tackle in place of Scovil. Wesleyan will be in full strength.

The lineups probably will be:

COLUMBIA.		WESLEYAN.
Kennedy	L. E.	Butler
Tower	L. T.	Brown
Forsyth	L. G.	Seeley
Kienninger	C.	Berlew
Hirsch	R. G.	Raymer
Modarelli	R. T.	Anderson
Weinstein	R. E.	Newhall
Eccles	Q. B.	Webb
Moszcinski	L. H. B.	Harman
Shaw	R. H. B.	Peck
Applebaum	F. B.	Boote

HARMAN MAY NOT PLAY.

Injury May Keep Wesleyan Star Out of Columbia Game.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 14.—The Wesleyan team held a light signal practice this afternoon in preparation for the Columbia game in New York City tomorrow. Dr. Edgar Fauver had not decided tonight whether he would play Captain Harman or not. Harman has a bad leg and has not been in the practice scrimmages for three weeks. Meyers will be used in his place if a change is made. Lawson is lame and Boote is bruised, but both will play.

Columbia and Wesleyan first met in 1890. A game was scheduled for 1889, the year Woodrow Wilson was a Professor at Wesleyan and coached the football team, but it was canceled on account of rain. Of the eight games the two colleges have played Columbia has won four and one was a no-score tie.

WILLIAMS READY FOR GAME.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Nov. 14.—Williams finished its preparation for the Amherst game tomorrow with a final signal drill here today. After the workout, which was watched by the entire student body, the annual ceremony at the last day of practice took place. The 'Varsity players gathered around a bonfire lighted in the middle of the gridiron and the senior members of the squad each tossed part of their football equipment into the flames. The student body looked on cheering each player and Coach Brooks.

Williams hopes to defeat Amherst tomorrow. The Purple has the greatest respect for Zink's drop kicking ability but it is believed that this will be offset by Capt. Boynton's spectacular running. The Williams eleven is fit for the game, and it will lineup as follows: Joslyn, L. E.; LaSalle, L. T.; Gillham, L. G.; Mills, C.; Fleser, R. G.; Fargo, R. T.; Carrick, R. E.; Boynton, Q. B.; Burger, L. H. B.; Beckett, R. H. B.; Hibbard, F. B.

BRUNONIANS CONFIDENT.

Hope Runs High That Team Will Score Victory Over Dartmouth.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 14.—Brown rounded out the preparation for the Dartmouth game with a short, snappy signal practice this afternoon. Coaches Robinson and Whittemore declared later that every man is fit and eager to get into the fray against the Hanoverians. For the first time since the Colgate game the regulars will be back in the lineup, and the difference in the offensive power of the team will be a feature, it is believed.

A rousing mass meeting was held at the university tonight, and the team, man for man, was cheered to the echo, as were the coaches. The squad will leave for Boston on a special car on the 9:50 train tomorrow morning, and a special train leaving at 10:58 will carry the students and Brown fans.

Veteran Ball Tosser Dead.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Vincent Dailey, in the eighties a player on the New York baseball team and a member of several Western teams, died here today of injuries received when he fell from the roof of the Erie Railroad roundhouse here Tuesday. He was 58 years old.

George Tyler Gives Up Teeth to Regain Pitching Skill

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—George Tyler, southpaw pitcher for the Cubs, has an early appointment with a dentist today and at its conclusion he had only two teeth left in his mouth. The pitcher, who did little work for his team last season because of pains in his arms, spent several days of the present week in a hospital at Rochester, Minn., where practically every expert at the institution examined him. All except one pronounced his condition "almost perfect." The expert who made the unfavorable report examined Tyler's teeth and declared that the lameness in his arm came from "pus sacks" which had formed on his gums. After removal of his teeth Tyler would be in better condition than he ever was, the expert declared.

N. Y. U. TEAM FACES SEVERE TEST TODAY

When the New York University football team lines up against the Stevens Tech eleven today on Ohio Field for their annual gridiron battle the players will probably be in the best condition that they have been in all season.

The back field which will oppose the engineers today will probably be the same as the one that played against Union last week in the last half of the game. Captain Cann will again be at the left half back position and will greatly strengthen the Violet attack. Weinheimer and Gilloon will play right half and quarter, respectively. There is a possibility that Tyne will replace Cohen at full. This shift would bolster up the secondary defense as Tyne is a sure tackler.

A change at left end was necessitated by the injury to Jack Adams. The coaches have tried both Parkhurst and Jackson at the place and both showed to good advantage. Jackson is a little the better of the two on the offense, but Parkhurst has shown to good advantage on the defense and will probably get the call.

The probable lineup:

STEVENS.		NEW YORK UNIV.
Carlson	L. E.	Parkhurst
Brune	L. T.	Sulzer
Busch	L. G.	Horigan
Johnson	C.	Brinn
Heinen	R. G.	Macomber
Flockhart	R. T.	Storey
Swenson	R. E.	Levin
Bloss	Q. B.	Gilloon
Deghuee	L. H. B.	Cann
Goodale	R. H. B.	Weinheimer
Ford	F. B.	Cohen

STEVENS HAS HARD DRILL.

So many of Stevens' workouts were spoiled by the rain this week that the coach took advantage of yesterday's fine weather and put his men through a stiff practice. Ordinarily a blackboard talk is in order preceding a game, but today's tilt with N. Y. U. is regarded as the hardest scheduled and Coach Durborow desired to have his men fit for their expected strong attack.

The Stevens 'Varsity again was put on the defense while the scrubs fired away at the line trying to pick holes. Heinen, who is replacing Howard at right guard, showed that he was thoroughly fitted for the position and supported the rest of his linemates against the persistent attacks of the scrubs.

Bloss, the fleet quarterback, and Goodale were not risked in the scrimmage, but were set apart on the far end of the field to work alone. Goodale was drop-kicking the pigskin, while Bloss ran the ball back zig-zagging through the scrubs.

Stevens will make an attempt to keep its record spotless against N. Y. U. today and will bring along practically the whole student body and a few hundred Alumni to back them up.

Hamilton Institute Eleven Wins.

Martin Beck, the star of the Hamilton Institute back field, led the team to victory over the Rosenbaum School of Milford, Conn., yesterday afternoon in a bitterly fought game at the Catholic Protectory Grounds. Hamilton's margin of victory was 26 to 0. Beck, despite an injured ankle sustained in a scrimmage soon after the start of the game, remained at his position, leading the Hamilton attack, and scoring two of his team's touchdowns. In the final quarter he was forced through the pain in his injured leg to retire from the game.

BIG LEAGUES GIVE MINORS WELCOME

Herrmann, Heydler, and Ewing Take First Steps to Renew Former Relationship.

The first move to bring about a resumption of former relations between the minor and major leagues was made yesterday, when J. Cal Ewing of the Pacific Coast League conferred with Garry Herrmann and John Heydler, members of the National Commission. Ewing is Chairman of the committee appointed at the minor league meeting in Springfield on Wednesday to readjust conditions between the smaller leagues and the majors. The other members of the committee are John D. Martin, Southern League; Thomas Hickey, American Association; David Fultz, International League; J. W. Morris, Texas League; John Hanlon, Western League, and John H. Farrell, Secretary of the National Association.

At the close of the meeting it was announced that the discussion had been informal, but it is understood that Mr. Ewing made it plain that the minors were tired of the system which they had decided upon a year ago. The representatives of the major leagues satisfied Ewing that they were in a receptive mood for a return to former conditions and advised him to have a tentative program drawn up by the minors to be passed upon by the major leagues.

Garry Herrmann goes back to Cincinnati today and the break in the American League remains as wide as when the Chairman of the National Commission reached New York on Monday. It was expected that Herrmann would make some move to bring about a reconciliation of the warring factions, but nothing developed. Colonel T. L. Huston, half owner of the Yankees, declared yesterday that he had heard nothing from Herrmann during the week.

Garry was greatly disappointed over the failure of the National Commission to hold a meeting in New York and bring about some settlement of the fight for third place in the American League race. The inability of President Ban Johnson to leave Chicago forced a postponement of the commission meeting.

President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn club, on his return from the minor league meeting at Springfield yesterday, announced that he had completed arrangements for the release of four players to minor league clubs under an optional agreement. Pitcher Norman Plitt and Outfielder Horace T. Allen have been released to the New Orleans club, Infielder Frank Brazill to Shreveport, and Infielder John Sheehan to Winnipeg.

Roger Bresnahan, owner of the Toledo club of the American Association, visited the Yankees' headquarters yesterday to make arrangement for some of the extra talent which Miller Huggins will be turning loose next Spring.

COLUMBIA FRESHMEN WIN.

Burt's Drop Kick Just Enough to Beat Wesleyan Cubs, 10 to 7.

The Columbia freshmen set a good example to their elders on the 'Varsity football team by trouncing the Wesleyan yearlings yesterday afternoon on South Field by a 10 to 7 score. Burt's field goal from the twenty-yard line in the second period furnished the necessary margin of victory.

The Morningside freshmen scored first by straight rushing tactics. Jennings, right end, recovered Wesleyan's fumble of a punt on the twenty-five-yard line, and a series of line plays carried the ball to the one-yard line, from which point Blundell fell across for a touchdown. Blundell also kicked the goal.

INAUGURAL PURSE GOES TO KASHMIR

DRUMMOND WINS A DUEL

BALTIMORE, Nov. 14.—The weather gods dealt kindly with the turfmen today when they switched their attention and activities to the Bowie track. The Autumn meeting at this noted race course opened with goodly attendance and every prospect of good sport, even if not of the highest class, for many of the greatest of the season's campaigners will not be seen under colors again in these parts until another season has dawned.

The Inaugural Purse, one of the feature races of the opening day's card, was won by Kashmir, J. J. Hallenbeck's chestnut son of Delhi. Kashmir was an outsider in the speculation, but proved to be a decided insider when it came to racing. Rice got him away from the post in the forefront of the field and then lay back in a favorable position while first Pastoral Swain and then Penrose made the pace. Charley Leydecker, the 3 to 2 favorite, was practically left at the post, and Rodrigues was never able to make up enough of the lost ground to put him in the running.

When six furlongs of the seven furlong course had been covered Rice let Kashmir down and he proved to be full of running, passing Penrose and Pastoral Swain with ease and increasing his lead to the wire, where he had a couple of lengths on Pastoral Swain. The latter shook off Penrose in the stretch, Weiner's mount falling back a very tired horse, after flashing keen early speed.

Drummond Wins Great Race.

The Chesapeake Purse, for three-year-olds over the mile route, was taken by the odds-on favorite. Drummond, but only after a hard fought duel of speed down the stretch with Ballet Dancer, 2d. Rowan rated Drummond along back of the early pace for the first five furlongs and then moved him up on the outside, slowly overcoming the lead of two lengths assumed by Ballet Dancer, until at the head of the stretch the pair were racing almost like a team. Hamilton shook up Ballet Dancer in the effort to withstand the challenge and his mount responded gamely, hanging on until the judges' stand drew near, and then succumbing only inch by inch. The winner had a half length margin at the finish, which result might have been reversed if Ballet Dancer had not forced the pace all the way and been called upon to race War Zone into submission before being challenged by Drummond.

War Zone faded away to nothing at the close and Thistledon came along to nail third money. He was pinched off going to the first turn and dropped badly out of the running, but closed a big gap.

Mrs. J. E. Davis furnished the winner of the Fads and Fancies Purse, the second race of the card, which was for fillies and mares of all ages over the six and a half furlong route, in Ophelia, a three-year-old bay filly by Senseless Ghent, which was easily the best of the field. Ophelia forced a fast pace from the outset and had plenty of speed left at the end, finishing under wraps three lengths in advance of Uncle's Lassie, which gave the winner whatever competition she had. Uncle's Lassie hung on gamely, but at no time threatened to make danger for Ophelia. Duchess Lace came from the rear of the procession at the head of the stretch, and, saving ground under McTaggart's handling, beat out Quietude by a neck for the show money.

Armistice, W. R. Coe's son of Disguise-Debacle, was an odds-on favorite in the opening dash, a five-and-a-half-furlong affair for maiden two-year-olds. Backers of the colt cashed, but contracted heart disease before they saw the desired number go up, for it was only the hardest of riding on the part of Fairbrother that got his mount's nose ahead of the nostrils of Colonel Murphy in the final stride. Colonel Murphy forced all the pace and showed no disposition whatever to wilt when Armistice challenged at the near turn. Moroni raced into third money, although he went wide whenever the opportunity offered.

Hauberk Has Easy Time.

Hauberk was a prohibitive favorite in the fifth race, at a mile and seventy yards, and his manner of winning justified the odds. He outclassed his field, and Butwell had only to sit still and let him do as he pleased. Pibroch was as easily second best, and Edith Baumann took third money.

The sixth was another runaway affair for the favorite, which in this case was G. W. Forman's Queen of the Sea. Rowan had the mount and lay well back of the pace for nearly a mile, moving up for the final half furlong and running over the tiring Poultney in the stretch drive to win by four lengths. Poultney made the pace, but weakened when the test came, saving the place money easily, however. Mormon Elder had no difficulty in taking third honors.

The final race on the card was a scramble of fourteen horses, from which Haymaker's gelding Handful emerged the victor without much trouble. Richcreek, who had the mount, took the lead on the back stretch and Handful held on well under pressure to the wire. Lucius made a bold bid at the eighth pole, but was not quite good enough to get up. Napoli was a prominent factor in the early stages, but weakened in the run home and had trouble in rescuing third money from Stir Up.

POCKET BILLIARDIST MAKES A RUN OF 62

Ralph Greenleaf Displays Brilliant Form in Exhibition Match with George Clark.

It is apparent that Ralph Greenleaf will be very hard to beat in the national pocket billiard championship tournament in Philadelphia next month. He has reached the top of his game and if he continues to play in the same excellent form that he has displayed in his exhibition games with George Clark at Maurice Daly's Academy this week he undoubtedly will enter the titular event one of the favorites to win the crown. He defeated Clark twice yesterday, winning in the afternoon by a score of 100 to 63 and taking the night game by a score of 100 to 18.

It was during the evening session that Greenleaf played some of the best pocket billiards seen here this season. He made the 100 points in four innings, running out the game with an unfinished run of 62. His other innings were 25, 18, and 2. Clark attempted to play safe when the score stood 48 to 18 against him. His effort failed, however, and it was then that Greenleaf knocked off 52 balls. As he stepped to the table the youthful player found the cue ball close to the head rail with the only object ball that was loose from the bunch in the centre of the table. He not only pocketed the ball but made the break shot as well.

At the conclusion of the game the big crowd that had watched the play requested Greenleaf to continue the run. He attempted to do so but missed on a comparatively simple shot. The feature of the run was the excellent position play of Ralph. Seldom during the inning was he compelled to make difficult shots or play combinations. He had perfect control of the cue ball, and invariably was in good position to make his succeeding shots. Another feature was the perfection with which he played for his break shots when the fourteen balls were racked up each time. He not only left the fifteenth ball so that it could be easily pocketed, but so that he could break the bunch as well. It was excellent generalship, and frequently caused the spectators to applaud.

HEAL WINS TWO MATCHES.

Defeats Gillette and Denton in 3-Cushion Billiard Tourney.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 14.—Hugh Heal of Toledo won two of the four games played in the three-cushion billiard championship tournament here today. This afternoon he defeated Byron Gillette, and tonight he won from Tiff Denton of Kansas City, 50 to 33 in 60 innings. Otto Reisel of Chicago won the other night game from Charles Otis of Brooklyn, 50 to 31.

In the afternoon Heal defeated Gillette by a score of 50 to 26. Pierre Maupome defeated Jess Lean by 50 to 42.

	W.	L.	P.C.
McCourt, Cleveland	4	1	.800
Jackson, Detroit	4	1	.800
Cannefax, New York	4	1	.800
Reisch, Chicago	4	1	.800
Maupome, Milwaukee	4	1	.800
Otis, Brooklyn	3	3	.500
Heal, Toledo	3	5	.375
Gillette, Buffalo	2	5	.286
Denton, Kansas City	1	6	.143
Lean, Cincinnati	1	6	.143

BRUSSEL WINS, 150 TO 147.

Takes Close Match from Boyd in Brooklyn Billiard Tourney.

Sidney Brussel and Frank Boyd last night played some of the best billiards that has been seen in the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players' Class S 18.2 balkline tournament for the metropolitan championship. Before a large gallery in the National Recreation Academy of Brooklyn, Brussel finally won by a score of 150 to 147 in a game that was replete with good and close playing. Brussel averaged 5 15-27 and Boyd 5 12-27.

In another game, John W. Low defeated A. S. Jameson by a score of 150 to 62. Low played consistent billiards and averaged 4 18-33 with a high run of 28. Jameson could not get going. He averaged 1 29-33 and made a high run of 10.

NADHERNY DEFEATS LANGE.

Springs Surprise by Winning Match in Class C Billiard Tourney.

One of the biggest surprises that has been sprung in the American Amateur Billiard Association's Class C 18.2 balkline billiard tournament for the Metropolitan championship was recorded at Fuller's Academy last night. E. V. Nadherny, who recently won the association's metropolitan straight rail championship, caused a real upset when he defeated John Lange by a score of 300 to 198. It had generally been expected that Nadherny would prove easy for Lange and that the latter would win by at least two to one.

Nadherny run out the game with an unfinished run of 94. The score stood 198 to 106 against him when he went to the table for the last time. By clever nursing he made the run that gave him the match. He made his first 25 points at one end of the table before he was forced to drive the first object ball around the table. He recorded other high runs of 17 and 24. He averaged 5 10-33, a remarkably high average for a Class C player. Lange made high runs of 29, 15, and 14 and averaged an even 5.

Jennings Is Billiard Winner.

Dr. Henry D. Jennings, playing for 200 points, defeated Charles E. Wilke, playing for 150 in the Brooklyn Eagle handicap tournament at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy last night. In his last three innings Dr. Jennings made a total of 70 points, registering runs of 41, 20 and 9. His high run was 41. He averaged 7 12-33. The loser made runs of 46, 24 and 24 and averaged 3 7-27.

OLDS VICTOR AT SQUASH.

Defeats Dr. Mittendorf in Princeton Tourney—Beekman Also Wins.

Only three matches were played yesterday in the Princeton Club's handicap squash tennis tournament on the Yale courts, but two of them produced unusually good competition. E. C. Olds won a highly creditable victory over Dr. A. D. Mittendorf, taking the first game after extra points had been called, and capturing the second with less difficulty, at 15—11. Leonard Beekman continued his victorious progress by defeating S. P. Hayward in straight games, while H. E. Harvey overwhelmed E. Muller, allowing him only one ace beyond his handicap.

SECOND ROUND—E. C. Olds (5) defeated Dr. A. D. Mittendorf, (5) 17—16, 15—11; Leonard Beekman (5) defeated S. P. Hayward, (3) 18—17, 15—6; J. R. Greenwood (4) from Prof. C. Bigelow, (2) by default; H. D. Harvey (4) defeated E. Muller, (3) 15—4, 15—3.

Wesleyan Harriers Beat Trinity.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 14.—In the annual cross-country run this afternoon Wesleyan defeated its old rival, Trinity, by a score of 26 to 29. The course was four and one-half miles. Foster, Stinson, and Graves ran well for the home team.

WILDE'S FIRST BOUT.

Jimmy Wilde, England's sensational little flyweight boxer, will make his first appearance here in a twelve-round bout to a decision against one of the bantamweights, selected as America's most representative boxers, if present plans materialize. George Daly, American manager for the flyweight Briton announced yesterday that negotiations are now progressing for a match between Wilde and either Pal Herman, bantamweight champion; Joe Lynch of the west side or Pal Moore, Memphis bantamweight. The match is planned for the proposed International Sporting Club, which is expecting to conduct its opening show, probably temporary quarters, Feb. 23.

More Than Ordinary Care Needed to Check "Acid-Mouth"

For "Acid-Mouth" is a common and particularly baffling condition. So common that 95% of all persons are said to have it. So baffling that only the most scientific care can make headway against it.

TOOTH PASTE

Counteracts "Acid-Mouth"

Twice-yearly examinations by a reliable dentist, and the twice-daily use of Pebeco Tooth Paste seem to be the most effective means of combating harmful mouth acids. Pebeco simply encourages the saliva to do its normal daily work, and there is no tooth cleanser, mouth wash, or neutralizer of "Acid-Mouth" that can equal natural alkaline saliva.

PRINCE GOES SOUTH FOR 3 DAYS' REST

Will Remain Incognito Until He Comes to New York on Tuesday.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE NAVY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The Prince of Wales left Washington tonight, accompanied by only his immediate personal staff, for a three-day stay in a Southern Winter resort, where he proposes to remain in strict incognito. His next public appearance will be on Tuesday, when he arrives in New York to remain there until he sails for England the following Saturday.

With the United States Marine band playing "Auld Lang Syne," his Royal Highness took official leave of the city tonight at 10 o'clock.

Vice President Marshall, Secretary Lansing and Viscount Grey, the British Ambassador, were among those who accompanied the Prince to the train. A cheer swept along the little groups of spectators assembled on the platform as the train pulled out. Smiling and bowing his acknowledgments, the Prince remained standing at the rear end of the car until the train had disappeared.

The Prince called today on Mrs. Marshall, wife of Vice President Marshall, who has been slightly indisposed. On his return from a trip to the Naval Academy at Annapolis he paid a visit to Cardinal Gibbons, the venerable head of the Roman Catholic Church in America. He was received by the Cardinal in the rectory of St. Patrick's Church and chatted with him for ten minutes. Afterward he drove to the Belmont home, where he dined privately.

At the door of the rectory the Prince was greeted by James Burns, a veteran of the Boer war and a former trooper in the 10th Royal Hussars, "The Prince's Own." Burns told the Prince that he had formed one of the guard of honor at the wedding of his father and mother.

The Prince discarded his military uniform in honor of his visit to Annapolis, and wore the costume of a Captain of the Royal Navy.

At the Naval Academy he was introduced to the famous cheer of the academy. When he entered the great Memorial Hall, where the 2,000 midshipmen were assembled, Mike Curley, the school's cheer leader, jumped to the platform and called for "four navies and three Princes." The big building shook with the roar that followed.

A tribute to the spirit and achievements of the American Navy was paid by the Prince of Wales in a brief address.

"I have had four years' training in the British Navy," he said, "and feel that I can speak to you as a comrade. I would like particularly to express my appreciation for the splendid services which the American Navy performed in the war, both in the North Sea and elsewhere.

"There was the most perfect co-operation and co-ordination between the American and British naval forces, and it was my privilege to learn to know and appreciate the magnificent spirit among your seamen. I am more than glad to have been able to come here and meet you face to face."

Prince Edward was accompanied by Secretary Daniels and was welcomed by Governor Harrington of Maryland and Admiral Scales, commandant of the academy. As he entered the naval grounds a salute of twenty-one guns was fired. After reviewing the midshipmen and inspecting the school buildings the royal visitor was entertained at luncheon by Admiral Scales.

Before going to Annapolis the Prince purchased 100 Red Cross Christmas seals from Adrienne Mayer, the five-year-old health crusader, who recently was decorated by General Pershing for making a perfect score in the children's health crusade against disease. The sale was the first made this year, and the Prince promised to use the seals on his personal letters.

The British flag floated from the residence of Mrs. Marshall Field this afternoon to indicate the presence of the Prince, who attended a tea dance there with the guests limited to 100, chiefly from the younger ranks of the hostess's friends. The entire staff with the Prince and the younger diplomats attended.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, West Va., Nov. 14.—The Prince of Wales is expected to arrive here tomorrow morning. There will be thirty-five people in the Prince's party. It is expected that the Prince will devote a part of tomorrow to a game of golf and other outdoor sports.

CHANGES IN PRINCE'S VISIT.

Plans of British War Veterans—Dinner to Renown Officers.

Several changes have been made in the schedule of the Prince of Wales during his five-day visit to New York, Rodman Wanamaker, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Reception to Distinguished Guests, announced yesterday. Lack of time will prevent the Prince from going to the Public Library on Wednesday afternoon as originally planned. Instead he will visit the Horse Show in Madison Square Garden at 3 o'clock. From there he will go direct to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The Renown will leave the harbor promptly at 2 P. M., instead of 4 o'clock on Saturday, Nov. 22, the Prince's last day in New York. This change was made because of the tide. At 9 o'clock in the morning there will be an investiture on board the battle cruiser, followed by a reception at 11 o'clock. At noon a luncheon will be served in honor of Commissioner Wanamaker.

The Prince is to be presented with a gold membership badge and an illuminated address conferring on him membership in the British Great World War Veterans of America at a ceremony to take place at 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning at the Columbia Yacht Club landing, Eighty-sixth Street, North River. The American Legion will hand to the Prince an American standard and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the British Great World War Veterans of America a Union Jack, both of which he will then present to the British Veterans' association for the clubrooms.

The officers of H. M. S. Renown were the guests last night of Commissioner Wanamaker at a dinner in their honor in the Ritz-Carlton. The dinner was held in the grand ballroom, which was profusely decorated with flowers and ferns. The guests, numbering about 160, included all the officers and cadets of the battle cruiser. Commissioner Wanamaker proposed a toast to King George and Great Britain, which was drunk as six members of the Police Reserves, carrying a large English emblem, entered the ballroom and walked to the head table. Captain Augustus Taylor, Commander of the Renown, responded with a toast to President Wilson and the United States.

Following the dinner the guests went to the Hippodrome, where they witnessed the performance. Among those who attended the dinner were Sir Thomas Lipton, Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Frederick Watson, British Consul General; Grover A. Whalen, Gaston Liebert, French Consul General; Henry P. Davison, and George F. Baker, Jr.

2,000 AT IBANEZ RECEPTION.

A reception and tea to Vicente Blasco Ibañez, the Spanish author, yesterday afternoon in the offices of Daniel Frohman in the Lyceum Theatre, attracted some 2,000 persons and necessitated the summoning of three traffic policemen from their posts to handle the crowd. When the elevator failed to work there was a rush on the part of those waiting to get up the narrow steps, and when it appeared likely that a number would be injured the policemen were called by Deputy Commissioner Wallis.

The reception was held as a part of the Actors' Fund campaign. Mr. Ibañez, speaking through an interpreter, said:

"I shall be glad to have my name connected with this campaign. The stage of today is of the highest standard, and its players, men and women, have a keen conception of drama. I have seen in France what your actors and actresses did to sustain morale. The American public owes it to the stage, because of its consistent maintenance of good standards, to approve generously this movement to provide for such actors as may seek provision in their days of need."

Other addresses were made by Commissioner Wallis, Stanley Howe, W. Ward Smith, and Julia Arthur. Mr. Frohman was unable to be present owing to illness.

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

The Philharmonic Society.

The afternoon concert of the Philharmonic Society yesterday afternoon under the new plan adopted for this season brought forward an entirely different program from that of the evening before. It comprised Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, Brahms's double concerto in A minor, op. 102, for violin and violoncello with orchestra, and Tschaikovsky's Fourth Symphony.

Mr. Stransky is more at home in the brilliant sonorities of Tschaikovsky's symphonies than he is in the severer ones of the elder classics, and he attained a more satisfactory performance of Tschaikovsky's than of Beethoven's symphony; one, at any rate, that made a considerably greater appeal to the audience, which, like that of the evening concert, was a very large one. The applause for Beethoven's music was, in fact, singularly tepid.

Brahms's concerto was played by Messrs. Alfred Megerlin, concert master, and Leo Schulz, first 'cellist, respectively, who came forth from their places in the orchestra to play it. Both are excellent artists, but in the nature of things cannot be expected to combine the complete finish and mastery of solo virtuosos with the daily tasks—daily, as they must be in the present order of things—of routine orchestral playing. The concerto itself is seldom played, involving, as such a work must necessarily involve, a certain amount of self-abnegation for the benefit of the music itself, a certain amount of sharing the public attention, on the part of the principal players, for whom a concerto, by long custom, is expected to be an opportunity to shine alone.

There have been a few memorable performances of it here in recent years, notably one by Fritz Kreisler and Pablo Casals at a "Brahms festival" of the New York Symphony Orchestra some three years ago, and a somewhat less memorable one by Messrs. Witek and Warnke of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The work is not one especially adapted for a virtuoso's display, though it has its very considerable difficulties; but it is one that well repays the artistic devotion that its performers must bring to it, for it is of the true Brahms spirit and has many beauties characteristic of the master, not only in the solo parts but also in the orchestral part, which is so much more than an accompaniment and carries so rich a burden of the composer's ideas. Messrs. Megerlin and Schulz gave a performance of it in many ways fine and in no way unworthy of the composition. It was received with much applause.

John Powell's Piano Recital.

In the years since he first appeared in New York, John Powell has made a name for himself as one of the most talented, most individual and poetic of American musicians; one with a style recognizably his own, and a deep penetration into the matter of music. It was a pity that so intimate a style as his should have been displayed, as it was in his recital last evening, in a hall so large as Carnegie Hall. There was a large audience there.

Mr. Powell played a program of unusual composition, Schumann's Fantasie opus 17, Liszt's Sonata in B minor, an impromptu and ballade by Daniel Gregory Mason, and Liszt's arrangement of a march by Schubert in B minor. He played Schumann's Fantasie with an eye rather to its intimate poetical content than to its muscular vigor and soaring eloquence.

There was much beauty of color and delicate variety in his tone, under subtly wrought gradation of dynamics. He spun his pianissimo down to the ultimate limits, sometimes beyond them.

There was, in fact, exaggeration in nuance. There were mannerisms disclosed in Mr. Powell's playing last evening of which he should take thought lest they become fixed. Besides this tendency to an exaggeration of contrast in dynamics, there was another to an excess of rubato. There was an indisposition to strike simultaneous tones simultaneously. Together these two operated to check and distort the rhythmic pulse of the music. No doubt Liszt's sonata lends itself to these exaggerations of style, and to more than these, but they had some disturbing influence on the effect of Schumann's Fantasie, of which Mr. Powell's performance had so many fine qualities. He played Liszt's sonata with evident intensity of conviction and without letting any of its flamboyant rhetoric escape full expression.

Farewell to Erno Rapee, Conductor.

Erno Rapee, retiring conductor of the Rivoli, had a demonstration of goodwill from the audience at that theatre last night, and also from the orchestra, which gave him an onyx desk set and lamp and twelve morocco-bound grand opera scores, presented in a speech by the first violin, Frank Kosting. A farewell supper was held later, attended by Victor Jacobi, Victor Herbert, Reginald de Koven, Theodore Spiering, Maximilian Pilzer, John Wenger, and Willy Pogany.

HUGHES TO OUTLINE PLANS.

Counsel for Citizens' Transit Committee to Submit Report Wednesday.

The Executive Committee of the Citizens' Transit Committee, which was organized by the Merchants' Association to inquire into the condition of the city transportation lines, will meet in the rooms of the association at 4 o'clock next Wednesday. It is expected that Charles E. Hughes, counsel of the full committee, who will conduct the inquiry, will submit a plan as far as outlined at that time. As Mr. Hughes will dominate the inquiry, whatever he desires will be cordially agreed to by the committee.

It was said yesterday that the association had not yet succeeded in finding quarters suitable for the work of the committee and that it had been practically decided not to accept the hospitality of any public body in the matter of housing accommodations because it was the intention of the committee to work apart from all close connection with any public body. In this way, it was said, all flavor of partiality would be avoided.

The members of the Executive Committee are William Fellowes Morgan, Chairman; Lewis E. Pierson, Alfred E. Marling, J. Sherlock Davis, H. Pushae Williams, James Br[illegible] E. H. Outerbridge, and Fred[illegible] Cranford.

The Nation's Greatest Asset

The children of today are the citizens of tomorrow. They are the nation's greatest asset. No labor so important, no duty so imperative, as that of making the children into 100% American citizens. We do not want bookworms, we want intelligent, well-informed, forceful men and women, who can do their own thinking. Only a small part of this education can be obtained in the schoolroom. Three-fourths of it must be acquired in the daily reading, entertainments and occupations in the home.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is a new method of education in the HOME. Over 10,000 delightful educational pictures and brief, intensely interesting articles tell the children everything they need to know in plain and simple language. It expands every faculty of the child's growing mind and nature, and leads him into the great world of knowledge by easy and delightful steps. It gives the children an education which will meet the demands of life.

Curiosity—the Great Teacher

CURIOSITY is the beginning of all knowledge. Do you know any subject about which your child has not asked you a dozen questions? Let him ask as many as he likes, and be sure to answer them correctly. That is the parent's most important and most easily neglected duty. If you discourage your child's curiosity you will injure his mind, and the bright boy or girl becomes stupid or indifferent. Through curiosity Columbus discovered America. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the simplest and most natural method of helping the child to educate himself. IT ANSWERS EVERY QUESTION A CHILD CAN ASK IN PLAIN AND SIMPLE LANGUAGE. So captivating is this great original work to the mind of a child that he absorbs with little effort the profound truths and great facts of the world of knowledge while reading its delightful pages and looking at the thousands of striking educational pictures.

Your Child Is Unique

Your child is like no other child in the world. He has his own peculiar taste and need for both physical and mental food. Some kinds of food agree with him and some do not. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the right kind of nourishing food for the child's mind during the growing years. Give your child this remarkable, original work, and watch carefully which of the 16 Great Departments interests him most. Nature, Science, History, Biography, Astronomy, Physiology, Art, Literature, Poetry, or Manual Training. It will prove THE KEY to his natural bent, and the kind of work or profession in which he will most easily succeed.

Your Child's Chance

In round numbers, what is your child's chance to become successful? If uneducated, he has one chance out of 150,000; with a common school education, 4 chances; with a high school education, 87 chances; with a college education, 800 chances; WITH THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE in the home, every chance. It is not a luxury, it is an absolute necessity. It is an INVESTMENT in your child's future which will pay dividends as long as he lives. In over 650,000 homes today the children are being educated with THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE. Give your child his chance to compete with them.

Answers Every Question a Child Can Ask

Why do we grow old?
Who made the first electric light?
How did the days get their names?
Why is a river always running?
Why does lightning strike some things and not others?
Where does the wind begin?
Why does the kettle sing?
Where do thoughts come from?
What makes coal burn?
Why has a star five points?
Why are tears salt?
Why do we have names?
What is a thunder-bolt?
How high can men fly?
Is the earth hollow inside?

The trend of stock market quotations was turned from an irregular course yesterday into a renewal of the rise through a buying movement among the railroad shares. In the forepart of the session the industrial group executed numerous changes of front, first advancing in the opening half-hour, then shading off into a fairly sharp decline when the call money renewal rate was established at 14 per cent., and later joining with the rails in the upturn. At the close the large majority of stocks were substantially higher than the day before and many, rails and industrials both, displayed gains of from 2 to 4 points. Speculation on the long side was stimulated in the afternoon by the lowering of the call loan quotation to 8 per cent., and this being the case it was hardly possible to judge the day's price improvement as anything but a further and natural recovery from the sudden slump of Wednesday. The loan renewal rate is the true barometer of stock market money conditions, and purchases based on an easement of credit cost after the bulk of a day's loans have been arranged hardly take into consideration the actual position of bank credit. Inasmuch as indications point toward stiff renewal rates for some time to come, the more far-seeing trading element were not especially impressed with the advance of prices after the middle of the day.

Whatever the deductions to be made from the extension of Thursday's recovery, the fact remained that railroad stocks were bid upward with insistence. Railroad bonds were somewhat better than the day before, various convertible issues paralleling the rise of shares with a conversion privilege. The improvement of rail shares attracted all the more attention because they had participated to a slight degree only in the week's liquidation, and short covering would seem to have played a small part in the rise. Still, it was a subject of debate in quarters where the money market is looked upon as the dominant influence for the present and for some time in the future whether a permanent force had been imparted to speculation in stocks of the carriers. If such a force existed it would seemingly be centred in the progress on railroad legislation at Washington. The news of the last few days has showed clearly that both the House and Senate are hastening their work. The two leading bills are being put into final shape with a celerity which indicates determination by the lawmakers to finish the task within a few weeks, but it remains to be seen whether the final product will be all that security owners and railroad managers want. The most important features, having to do with the disposition of earnings and the exact status of labor in respect to the settlement of differences over wages, are yet to be decided, and until they are the investment and speculative qualities of railway shares will be difficult to establish.

Sterling and franc exchange continued to decline yesterday and a reason for the week's recession was found in export figures showing a substantial expansion in the outflow of wheat, flour, and cotton over the preceding week. The improved shipping facilities from the Port of New York probably aided in the increase of exports, but only a part of the outflow of these commodities goes from this centre, and the pressure of bills upon the market has evidently reflected larger shipments at other ports. Lire rates scored a substantial recovery through the influence, presumably, of covering of short sales which aided in causing the abrupt declines earlier in the week.

The High Renewal.

Call money, as everybody predicted, loaned up yesterday, opening at 14 per cent., only 1 per cent. below the previous day's high record renewal and as high as it had renewed on any other day in the last twelve years, with the exception of Thursday. Later in the day the rate fell to 8 per cent., but very nominal business was done at that figure. In well-informed circles there is a belief that the renewal rate will continue to rule at high figures for some time to come; that there is, in fact, an informal understanding among the banks that renewals shall be kept reasonably high, with the market allowed to take its own course after the renewal rate is established each day. If this is so, it may well be that brokers will soon discover it and will refrain from accepting the usual amount of accommodation at renewal time, chancing more favorable rates later in the day. And, by the same token, if all of this does happen, then it is next to certain that there will be some more wild flurries in the afternoons, for it seems sure that speculators are destined to pay well for the money they use these next few weeks or months.

Weak Exchanges.

One reason for the extreme weakness in the foreign exchange market this last week came to light yesterday with the publication of final figures of the week's grain and cotton shipments. According to Bradstreet's tabulation, the exports of wheat and wheat flour from the United States and Canada for the week of nearly 1,600,000 bushels and the largest shipments for any week in about two months. Cotton exports amounted to 266,148 bales up to last night, which was the end of the cotton week, against 104,263 bales moved forward the previous week. The week's cotton exports are the largest for any week in either the cotton year or the calendar year to date.

Loans Down.

The general impression in financial quarters yesterday was that the bank statement and the Federal Reserve display, both of which will be issued after the close of today's market, will show substantial contractions in the loan items. Most bankers look for a big decrease in member banks' borrowings at the Reserve Bank, where last week the loan account made a new high record, and it seems logical to look for a very wholesome shrinkage in clearing house loans, too. One item which will be watched with unusual interest is that of "Bills bought in the open market," which is carried in the Reserve Bank's statement. The Reserve Bank, according to gossip in the bill market, has been a good buyer of bills all week, especially in midweek, when stocks were falling and call rates were very high. The Reserve Bank, it is understood, does not resell its bills in the open market, but either carries them to maturity or disposes of them to other Reserve Banks. Thus, if there is a reduction in this item, or even a moderate advance, the impression will be that other Reserve Banks have been helping out.

Market Gains Ground.

The rally in the stock market which began late Thursday continued yesterday, under the influence of a buying movement in the rails such as has not been seen for some time. For months this section of the general list has remained comparatively inactive and has not suffered any serious recession in the recent smash. The rails were moved forward easily. To those who looked below the surface, however, it was apparent that the market was under the same untoward conditions that had prevailed earlier in the week. The renewal rate on money, the rate at which a large proportion of the loans are made, was 14 per cent., and while money eased later in the day the continuation of the stiff renewal rate could not be ignored by those conservatively inclined. In technical position, however, the market was considerably improved, and this made the upswing comparatively easy under the stimulus of moderate buying. In commission houses there was an inclination to urge caution, it being realized that an extension of credit by any large buying movement might make for the same scarcity of funds as prevailed during the earlier days of the week, with the resultant rise in money rates. It was pointed out that 14 per cent. money was hardly conducive to continued speculation on the long side.

A Switch to the Rails.

It was evident yesterday that a large part of the interest which has recently been reflected in the action of industrial stocks was turned yesterday to the rails. The latter responded well to greatly increased buying, the trend being evident early in the day when the majority of the rest of the list acted uncertainly. In some quarters real investment buying was reported, but there was also evidence that the speculative element had also interested itself in this group. The overnight news from Washington was considered as favorable and at the close net gains ranged from fractions to more than 7 points. The 7 point advance came on a turnover of only a few hundred shares of Delaware and Western. Among the advancing rails were Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Great Northern preferred, New York Central, New Haven, Reading, Southern and Union Pacific.

Final Legislation Not Thought Probable.

In spite of the news from Washington, which would indicate that final remedial railroad legislation will be passed by Congress before the end of this year, the opinion was expressed in local railroad offices yesterday that the chance for the passing of such legislation is slim. It is asserted that neither the Esch bill nor the Cummins bill will go through as framed for the reason that both must be merged into one for the framing of the final law. It was stated that with the two bills differing so greatly in more than one point long drawn out debate may be expected, with temporary legislation being pushed through at the last moment. At the same time it is still believed that the final legislation will be agreed upon and enacted early in the Winter.

A Move to Gain Favor.

An item of gossip of the Street was to the effect that the turn into the rails had been engineered with the idea of currying favor with the bankers and the Federal Reserve Board. The rails have always stood in high favor with the banking community, and loans on mixed collateral were quoted for years at a lower rate of interest than on all industrial security. Several months ago this discrimination was withdrawn and one rate was quoted. Whether or not the move was brought about by this consideration, the fact remains that the strength in the rails served to bolster up the market.

Public Utility Financing.

Although public utility companies all during 1919 have been confronted with adverse conditions on almost all sides, they have been able to do an aggregate of new financing so far this year of more than $36,500,000 in stocks, according to Dow, Jones & Co. This figure compares with approximately $414,000,000 preferred and $310,000,000 common stocks sold by industrial companies. As a whole the situation, exclusive of local traction companies, is reported to be showing steady improvement in that public utility commissions and the courts have been authorizing increases in fares and rates to meet increased operating costs.

Traction Bonds Strong.

Interborough-Metropolitan 4½s sold up from 21 to 23¾ in yesterday's bond market, and the Interborough Rapid Transit refunding 5s advanced from 51⅝ to 52½. Railroad bonds were strong, especially the convertibles, in sympathy with the better demand for railroad shares.

Tokio Exchange Secretary Watches System of Buying and Selling Securities.

TO VISIT BOARDS IN EUROPE

Explains the Method Used in His Country, Which, He Asserts, Is Too Slow.

Yoshinari Kawai, Secretary of the Tokio, Japan, Stock Exchange, visited the New York Stock Exchange yesterday to watch the American method of buying and selling securities and was told of the intricacies of the American system of buying and selling stocks and bonds. He explained that he was en route for Paris and Europe generally, where he will study the methods in use in the stock exchanges there, after which he will return to Japan with a report and recommendation for improvements in the Tokio market.

"Our system," said Mr. Kawai, "is based on the French and German method, which we have found is too slow, and I am to report on the various systems which I have been appointed to study. At present we employ a method which allows for a one-month, two-month or three-month settlement, which is at the option of the buyer, and the average volume of business, which is now at its highest, is about 500,000 shares a day."

Mr. Kawai said that in Tokio short sales were allowed much after the American fashion and that there was a fair amount of borrowing of stocks for deliveries. He said that under the constitution of his exchange brokers were limited to eighty in number and memberships are transferable with the approval of the Japanese Government, which has the market under its jurisdiction and has provided a special Stock Exchange law. All of the eighty broker members are licensed by the Government, and as an indication of the increase in business in recent months, the license fee has been increased from $30,000 to $100,000.

This was of particular interest to brokers as recent sales of New York Stock Exchange memberships have been offered for $110,000 a new record price. That the Japanese license fee should be within $10,000 of that figure was considered as of particular interest in view of the fact that less than half the number of shares are traded each day in Tokio that are turned over in the New York Stock Market.

The unit of trading in the Tokio market is ten shares and Mr. Kawai explained that the comparatively small number of brokers were able to handle such a large volume of business because clerks were admitted to the floor to assist them.

He explained that instead of trading posts placed at intervals on the trading floor in his market, there were three raised platforms. At one platform the Japanese deal in what they call "important issues" the securities of the most strongly intrenched companies, while the other issues in their list of 200 different stocks and bonds were traded in at the two other platforms.

Mr. Kawai said further that each transaction was under the supervision of a Chairman of the Exchange who called out the price at which the sale was made. These officials stand on each platform during the entire session which may be from 10 o'clock in the morning to 4 o'clock in the afternoon or longer at the option of the brokers themselves.

Bucketshops were operated in Japan, the Secretary of the Tokio Exchange admitted and an attempt was made to regulate them. He said that the active issues in recent months had been the shares of steamship companies and securities of cotton spinning mills.

When asked if money rates in Tokio had been high he answered that they had and that 7½ per cent. rates were not infrequent. These rates are fixed by bill brokers and the banks. Call money does not bother the Japanese broker because of the long period settlements.

The Tokio Stock Exchange also assumes full broker and broker liability but no provisions of this nature have been made for a broker and customer liability.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

The trade reviews of the past week assert that the calling off of the coal strike has had a stimulating effect on business generally.

Dun's says:

Readjustment of an overextended speculative position has made for more wholesome conditions in the securities markets, and the rescinding of the coal strike order has strengthened business prospects. No widespread or serious interruption of manufacturing or transportation has resulted from the walkout among the miners, and the gradual resumption of operations in the bituminous fields has allayed apprehension of a general industrial setback through lack of fuel. Yet different branches of enterprise are still greatly inconvenienced by labor troubles that limit outputs at a time when the fullest possible employment at mills and factories is essential, and a rise in Dun's Index Number of commodity prices to a level closely approximating the high record of the Summer reflects the growing shortage of supplies of many necessaries.

Bank clearing this week are again well in excess of those at this period in earlier years, the total at twenty leading cities in the United States being $9,032,392,977, an increase of 30.3 per cent. over this week last year and of 51.5 per cent. in comparison with the same week in 1917.

Bradstreet's says:

Stimulating features have been in the ascendant this week and trade and, to a certain extent, industry have gone forward with apparent indifference to some untoward happenings which might ordinarily bring reflection if not actual hesitation in operations. Chief among these stimulating elements was the sharp calling down of the coal strike leaders and the Court's direction to withdraw the strike order which suspended mining operations. Supplies in most instances are, as already stated, sufficient with those being currently obtained from non-union sources and mines that have resumed to last, with present careful management by the Fuel Administration, until mining operations are resumed in full.

IRREGULAR RANGES IN COTTON CONTINUE

SPOT PRICES OFF 30 POINTS

Cotton had still another nervous and irregular day yesterday. The opening was firm, responding to the better tone and the higher prices at Liverpool, where spots were up over 100 English points and futures were advanced 45 to 48 points at their opening and 10 to 15 points up at the close. Some bad weather and crop advices from the South also helped the market at the outset, so that the price movement presented a firm front at the start, with December making an especially strong display, up 85 points from the previous day's closing. The rest of the list moved up 10 to 20 points in the first few minutes, but after that the market was weak and on general selling fell away rapidly.

There were many reports of forced liquidation in the South, where, it is charged, considerable quantities of the staple are being held for higher prices and are eating up credit at an alarming rate. Some of the spot markets were inclined to be irregular, and the New York spot quotation was off 30 points.

Renewed weakness in the foreign exchange market also proved something of a deterring factor in yesterday's market. Sterling and all of the Continental rates were lower than on the previous day. One reason for this, however, may be directly traced to cotton, for the exports for the week have been heavier than during any preceding week either in the cotton year or in the calendar year, amounting to 206,146 bales, against 104,262 bales exported last week.

The Census Bureau report yesterday showed exports last month to have been 352,281 bales, according to official count. At the rate cotton has been moving for the elapsed days of the present month, the exports for November should be nearly twice this, for to date 310,408 bales have been exported.

Mill consumption last month was 555,344 bales, against 491,313 bales the previous month and 440,354 bales taken in October, 1918. Last month's takings were larger than any previous month since last January. This was somewhat more than the trade had looked for and the publication of the figures added to the weakness of the market. At the close of the day, prices, which showed their maximum decline at that time, were down 85 to 105 points.

The Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting and Power Company, in its report for the year ended June 3, shows a deficit after charges of $984,403. This compares with a surplus of $1,327,133 for the preceding year. Dividends of $1,312,537 increase the deficit to $2,298,040, which reduces the profit and loss surplus to $1,124,406, as compared with $3,422,412 in 1918.

Copper production totaled 23,384,730 pounds and there was a production of 568,068 ounces of silver and 28,380 ounces of gold. In the report attention is called to the labor troubles which the company has met with since July, 1918, and the epidemic of influenza, which for a time practically caused the suspension of operations. It is asserted that the company has achieved its independence as to supplies of coal and coke and that this is the last year in which purchases will have to be made from outside agencies.

The net earnings available for dividends after the Federal tax and all other taxes were paid during the past four years have averaged nearly four times the dividends on the preferred stock outstanding. W. L. Douglas name is known throughout the world. The trade mark is a very valuable asset worth millions of dollars, and is the property of the stockholders. It is one of the most valuable trade marks in the United States.

You would make no mistake to order at once as many shares of this stock as you can afford to buy, price $100.00 per share. If you care for more particulars fill out the coupon and mail at once. Application will be made to have this stock listed upon the stock exchange.

This company owns and operates 105 W. L. Douglas shoe stores located in the large cities. W. L. Douglas shoes are also sold by over 9,000 shoe dealers in the United States.

The past few years our shoes have been more extensively advertised than ever before. Stamping W. L. Douglas name and the retail price on the bottom of the shoes before they leave the factory has saved the wearers millions of dollars, and guarantees them the best shoes in style, comfort and service that can be produced for the price.

A great demand for W. L. Douglas shoes has sprung up in leading countries in Europe and Asia. Our domestic business has increased so that our sales have actually doubled in four years. In 1915 the sales were $9,050,826.41 and in 1918 $18,660,343.46. The past six months' business was at the rate of over $20,000,000 per year.

In common with other great businesses we need additional capital to meet the urgent requirements of increasing domestic and foreign trade. The new conditions of business also demand more capital. The cost of labor and material has nearly doubled so that twice the amount of capital necessary under the old business conditions is now required.

FOX OFFERS A PLAN FOR MILK MONOPOLY

Borden's Official Proposes to Turn Delivery Over to Corporation Under a New Law.

WOULD ELIMINATE WASTE

Directorate to Include Producers and Consumers—Horton Has No Remedy to Suggest.

The solution of the present high price of milk to the consumer lies in the establishment of a regulated monopoly of distribution, according to a suggestion and plan submitted to the Governor's Fair Price Milk Committee yesterday afternoon by Patrick D. Fox, Vice President of the Borden's Farm Products Company.

Loton Horton, President of the Sheffield Farms Company, Incorporated, the other large distributing concern, in a letter to Health Commissioner Copeland, as Chairman of the committee, said he had no plan to offer to reduce the price of milk, declared his opposition to monopoly, either regulated or unregulated, and offered to furnish Grade B bottled milk for the Health Department's milk station in the poor districts of the city for 12 cents a quart.

Nathan Straus, philanthropist, and long interested in milk, asserted that Mr. Horton stood in the way of cheaper milk for consumers. Mr. Straus, who, Dr. Copeland said, knew more about the pasteurization of milk than any other living man, invited questions from the representatives of the distributers, but he received none. Mr. Horton was not present, and Mr. Straus called specifically upon Mr. Fox, even dared him, to ask him any question pertaining to the milk problem. In declining Mr. Fox said that he did not care to become involved in a useless argument, and also that if he were allowed to have a little more time Mr. Straus would be "quarreling with himself."

Although he had promised his physician and his wife never again to engage in an argument on the milk question, Mr. Straus said he had been moved to appear before the committee and make a statement because he had observed at the meeting last week that it was packed with distributers and their "smart representatives."

Mr. Horton, he said, had opposed him when he advocated pasteurization of milk, "and I think you, too," as he turned to Oscar W. Mapes of Middletown, N. Y., one of the founders of the Dairymen's League, who had preceded him as a witness. Mr. Mapes said he did not recall, but remarked that he was never an earnest advocate of that method of treating milk.

Long in the Milk Business.

Remarking that he was seventy-two years old and had spent twenty-seven years in the milk business, Mr. Straus recounted briefly his experience in California and Philadelphia in getting favorable action on the pasteurization plan. He asserted that the distributers were trying to get every cent possible out of the milk and suggested as a possible means of bringing Mr. Horton around to the point of lowering the price that a committee of persons of persuasive powers be sent to see him. "The situation should be remedied," he declared, "peaceably if you can; forcibly if you must."

In the opinion of Mr. Straus, the price of milk is much higher than the circumstances warrant. He said he wanted the public to know that he was not the man who had approached Dr. Copeland and offered to provide $10,000,000 with which to form a corporation to distribute milk, as some people had supposed.

Miss Sophia Irene Loeb, a member of the committee, asked Mr. Straus: "If we do as you suggest, send a committee to see Mr. Horton and he does not respond to our proposal to lower the price of milk, what would you do then?"

"What I would do would not sound very well," he replied.

Mr. Mapes, who said he conceived the idea of the Dairymen's League, outlined a plan for reducing the price of milk. He would eliminate competition through the formation of a new corporation, the plan, in the main, being the same as that submitted by Mr. Fox. Under one management, he said, useless duplication in delivery service would be cut out and other economics practiced. Seven milk stations, owned by distributers, are located within a radius of three miles of his home, he said. With modern transportation facilities such as now exist one plant could easily serve the whole territory, Mr. Mapes said.

Mr. Fox's plan was presented in typewritten form and went into details. "While we are firmly convinced," his statement read, "that the law requiring a continuance of the competitive conditions, with its attendant duplication of investment and service, is primarily to blame for unnecessary and wasteful distribution costs, still we recognize that the chief purpose of the law is to afford protection to the consumer against the possibility of extortionate demands on the part of a ruthless monopoly. Therefore if the legal barriers are to be let down it must be done in such a way that the public interest is not jeopardized. We believe that the public interest can be not only protected by the proper kind of regulation, but that the public interest can be served at the same time by the elimination of economic waste."

Distributers to Hold Stock.

The plan provides for a legislative enabling act for the formation of a corporation with capital stock divided into preferred and common shares. The preferred stock to be issued dollar for dollar to the extent of the appraised value of the net quick or current assets—cash, accounts receivable, &c.—of the distributers availing themselves of the plan, and the common stock to be issued dollar for dollar to the extent of the appraised value of the fixed assets—land, buildings, plant, equipment, &c. No stock is to be issued for good will. The operations of the corporation would be confined to the business of dealing in milk, cream, butter, cheese, and, if desired, other foods. It would exclude condensed milk, evaporated milk, and other manufactured milk products so as to conserve the fresh milk supply adjacent to New York for the fresh milk requirements of the population. The management of the corporation would be in the hands of a Board of Directors in which the dairymen and the public would have representation, the representatives to be chosen in such a manner as will inspire public confidence. The Board of Appraisers would be appointed by the Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals.

The plan further provides that the corporation receive an average annual net income from its milk business, available for dividends, of one-half a cent a quart of milk handled. The corporation would be required to file a financial report each year with the State Controller showing its financial condition and the amount of net income realized and to permit inspection of its books, records, and accounts.

Mr. Fox would have "the plan become operative when two or more distributers doing in the aggregate a very substantial part of the fresh milk business in the metropolitan district join the new corporation."

"The salient points of the plan," Mr. Fox said, "are sound capitalization, limited profits, full publicity, participation of producers and consumers in the Board of Directors, immediate savings in distributing costs through the limitation of some of the duplicated investments and service, and the further savings of the same kind through the gradual elimination of unnecessary points of operation, the institution of trade reforms such as to choose but one example, requiring a deposit on bottles, thus insuring the co-operation of the consumer in this respect; increasing the distributing capacity of the wagons and thus reducing the delivery cost per unit, increasing the volume of milk handled at the country depots and pasteurizing plants, thus reducing the per unit country costs; conserving in the industry individual initiative, the skill of men long experienced in the conduct of a specialized business which in a large measure might be lost under other plans which have been suggested, i. e., municipal ownership and operation."

Borden's Ready to Sell.

After expressing the opinion that the price of milk under this plan would be materially reduced, Mr. Fox says that if the plan for municipal ownership and operation is adopted, which he considers unlikely, the Borden's Farm Products Company would "favorably consider a disposition of its business on the basis of a fair valuation of its assets, and in such a case it would probably make no demand for payment for its good-will, despite the fact that it is doing a volume of business in excess of $50,000,000 a year, to build up which a new company would have to spend several hundred thousand dollars."

Mr. Fox said, in reply to questions from members of the committee, that his company was two years old; that, despite its turnover of $50,000,000 a year, no dividends had been declared, nor would the surplus permit of a dividend, and that the assets of the company were $16,000,000. The capitalization, he said, was $12,000,000 or $14,000,000, the stock being owned by the Borden's Condensed Milk Company.

Dr. Copeland thanked Mr. Fox for his statement, which Dr. Copeland said was "the first workable and tangible plan" that has been submitted to any of the milk committees or commissions.

Mr. Fox was asked by Dr. Copeland what he thought of the suggestion of abolishing grades in milk. He replied that he thought it would be a bad thing, and would result, he said, in Grade B being advanced in price, as the greater margin of profit is made in Grade A. Mr. Fox agreed with Dr. Copeland that all the milk sold in New York should be sold in bottles.

Dr. Copeland read the letter which he received from Loton Horton, President of Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., in reply to his request for a plan to reduce the price of milk.

"You wanted some plan to immediately reduce the recently increased price of milk," Mr. Horton wrote. "I have no such plan. If I had known any way to meet $22,000 a week, over a million dollars a year, added to my labor payroll and half a cent a quart added for every quart of milk I buy this month, other than adding it to my selling cost, I would have done it.

"I perhaps ought to have said more than I have during the past year to my patrons by way of explanation, and in answer to the falsehoods in the yellow press and more recently at public meetings by people who ought to know better. This, however, I can do, and propose to do.

Must Pay Labor Cost.

"My company, like everybody else, has to take conditions as we find them and govern ourselves accordingly. When butter, cheese, and condensed milk are in great export demand milk is bound to be worth its export price. If we are to have it to drink we shall have to pay the farmer that price. Human labor is high priced, and milk, which has to be handled and rehandled and pasteurized and iced and trucked and inspected and bottled and regulated, has to pay its labor cost like everything else. The public knows this, and it needs no extended explanation here by me.

"I have noticed that the Socialists and the rainbow chasers, who want to improve the milk business always want to do it with my money or the taxpayers'—all, so far, except the farmers. It cost their Country Milk Company last year half a million dollars to find out that milk distribution takes some brains and experience, and that our selling price was as low as the safety line.

"My company is a growth of over seventy years. It has survived and succeeded under competitive conditions without any special privileges or franchises in a business free to every one. It is free now. It has succeeded by economies and by the development of organization. I believe that competition is good for the public. I am against monopoly, either regulated or unregulated. I believe there is less wasteful competition in this business today in New York than in any other food distributing line. The people who are talking about public service regulations (with the farmer left out) of the milk business should stop, look, and listen. If our service were half as bad as the regulated railroads, we should have the whole public in a riot instead of being pestered with the political squabbles of one yellow journal.

"The housewife, who does not like her milkmen, I think ought to have some other milk man to go to with her patronage. If she has that chance she can regulate the milk business herself, and do it better and cheaper than a wilderness of commissioners, examiners, deputies, expert accountants, and lawyers. The advantages in this opportunity of choice far outweigh the theoretical saving of regulated monopoly or zone plans. A town which supports over twenty thousand grocery stores and does not complain of duplication ought to be able to stand the three retail milk companies on Manhattan Island and the half dozen in Brooklyn.

Hopes for Saving.

"I have some plans which I think will enable my company to conduct its business this coming year at a reduced cost, notwithstanding its heavy added expense. These plans may require some radical changes in our entire system, and will cause some very heavy capital expense along new lines. This doesn't mean buying out anybody else's business either. It relates very largely to our losses on surplus.

"Instead of an impossible plan for a general reduction of price, let me make you a practical proposition.

"As Commissioner of Health, you have under your charge forty or more Board of Health Milk Feeding Stations in the very poorest sections of the city for which the city pays the rent. The complaint has been made by you and others that the very poor cannot get milk for their children, and that bottled milk is preferable to them.

"We will deliver to these stations in quantities Grade B. bottled milk at 12 cents per quart, you to return our bottles or pay for them. This proposition is made by us as a practical way to help you meet this situation. We hope it will be met in the spirit in which it is offered. If you think that notwithstanding this low price, which represents a loss to us, the price should be made lower, the city can sell this milk at such further reduction as it sees fit.

"I can assure you that so far as I am concerned, my company will do everything it can to once more place milk where it has been throughout the whole period of the war, the lowest priced of all the necessaries of life."

The Central Federated Union last night adopted a resolution endorsing the action of the Community Councils of National Defense which declared for a milk strike to begin on Monday and continue during the first three days of each week until there is a cut in the price of milk. The union voted to co-operate with the Community Councils "in spirit and in deed until such time as it has been established to the buying public that the new increases in the price of milk are justified and not an attempt at profiteering."

If Not Done Now It Must Be Deferred Until March 15, 1920.

GLASS ISSUES STATEMENT

Temporary 4s of Second Loan May Be Exchanged for Registered Bonds After Nov. 15.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, issued the following statement this evening:

"The 4 per cent. coupon bonds of the Second Liberty Loan, which were issued in temporary form, like other 4 per cent. and 4¼ per cent. coupon Liberty bonds, have no interest coupons attached for interest payable after Nov. 15, 1919, and will therefore become exchangeable for permanent bonds with all subsequent coupons attached. Holders of these bonds are reminded, however, that the bonds are convertible into 4¼ per cent. bonds as well as exchangeable into permanent bonds, and that the Treasury has already prescribed regulations, set forth in Treasury Department Circular 158, dated Sept. 5, 1919, calculated to provide for both exchanges and conversions with the minimum of inconvenience and expense to both the Government and the bondholders.

"Under these regulations there will be no exchanges whatever of temporary for permanent bonds until approximately March 15, 1920, the preparation of permanent 4 per cent. coupon bonds having been subordinated, in view of the extension of the conversion privilege, to the preparation of the permanent 4¼ per cent. bonds of the several loans.

"Holders of temporary 4 per cent. coupon bonds of the Second Liberty Loan are therefore urged either to present their bonds for exchange into registered bonds, which are already in permanent form or refrain from presenting them for exchange into permanent coupon bonds or for conversion until approximately March 15, 1920, when it is expected that the permanent 4 per cent. and 4¼ per cent. coupon bonds of the Second Liberty Loan and the Second Liberty Loan converted will be ready for delivery.

"All 4 per cent. coupon bonds of the Second Liberty Loan presented for exchange into permanent bonds on or after Nov. 15, 1919, will be deemed to be presented also for conversion into 4¼ per cent. bonds unless otherwise indicated by the holder in writing, and with the 4¼ per cent. coupon bonds issued upon such exchange and conversion special 4 per cent. interest coupons will be delivered to provide for the 4 per cent. interest accruing after Nov. 15, 1919, which would be payable May 15, 1920. In the meantime, it is understood that the temporary 4 per cent. coupon bonds will be regarded as good deliveries in the market.

"The same situation exists as to the 4 per cent. coupon bonds of the First Liberty Loan converted, except that the last coupon on the temporary 4 per cent bonds of that loan is payable on Dec. 15, 1919, and before that date such temporary 4 per cent. bonds may be converted into temporary 4¼ per cent. bonds. It is expected that the permanent 4 per cent. and 4¼ per cent. coupon bonds of the First Liberty Loan converted will also be ready for delivery on approximately March 15, 1920.

"The Treasury counts upon the co-operation of holders of the temporary 4 per cent. bonds and of the banking institutions of the country in carrying out the provisions which have thus been made for the exchange and conversion of the 4 per cent. coupon Liberty bonds. Full information as to the manner of conducting the exchanges of all issues of temporary 4 per cent. and 4¼ per cent. coupon Liberty bonds for permanent bonds will be shortly announced by a Treasury Department circular which is now in course of preparation."

PEKING, Nov. 14.—Ching Yuan-peng, the new Premier, is experiencing difficulty in the formation of a cabinet owing to the opposition of the Anfu Club, which wishes its representatives included.

The keenest fight is proceeding over the Ministry of Finance. The Premier has nominated Chow Tsechi, who is acceptable to the President and also enjoys the confidence of American bankers. Without him it is feared no American gold would be forthcoming.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER—Receipts yesterday 3,003 packages. Demand more active and market higher and firm for all grades of creamery. The top qualities are running short and buyers are having great difficulty in meeting the needs at the moment. Exporters are forwarding a good deal of butter to Europe and are making some new inquiries, but the higher prices asked seem to stand in the way of important business. Ladles and packing stock favor the seller. Creamery, higher than extra, a pound, 71@72c; extras, 92 score, 71c; 90 to 91 score, [illegible]; firsts, 88 to 89 score, [illegible]; seconds, [illegible] to 87 score, [illegible]; lower grades, [illegible]; held, higher than extras, 67½@68c; extras, 66½@67c; firsts, 61½@66c; seconds, 55½@59½c; unsalted, higher than extras, 76@78c; extras, 73@75c; firsts, [illegible]; seconds, 50@61c; State dairy, tubs, finest, [illegible]; good to prime, [illegible]; common to fair, [illegible]; renovated, extras, 57½@58c; ladles, current make, firsts, 50@51c; seconds, 46@48c; lower grades, 43@45c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 45@46c; No. 2, 46c; lower grades, 40@47½c.

EGGS—8,830 cases. New laid eggs continue short of the requirements of the trade and receivers having any lots of fresh gathered stock arriving that contain a good to large proportion fit for the best trade have full control of prices. On the trading reported some further advance is made in quotations, and the market closes strong. Good medium qualities are having fair call in the absence of finer goods. Inferior qualities of held fresh moving slowly. Refrigerator eggs are steady to firm in the best grades but the offerings appear to be ample at unchanged prices, and the medium and lower qualities are not moving freely. Nearby white eggs are in light supply; fancy qualities held steady. Mixtures of more or less shrunken eggs with the fresh moving slowly at a wide range of prices. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 75@76c; extra firsts, [illegible]; firsts, 67@71c; seconds, [illegible]; under grades, 48@58c; dirties, No. 1, 51@53c; No. 2 and poorer, 40@50c; checks, good to choice, dry, 45@48c; under grades, [illegible]; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, [illegible]; firsts, [illegible]; seconds, [illegible]; under grades, [illegible]; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, [illegible]; fair to prime, [illegible]; gathered whites, common to prime, 70@80c; pullets, [illegible]; other Western and Southern, gathered whites, 70@80c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby hennery browns, fancy, 78@80c; gathered brown and mixed colors, graded fancy, 75@78c; fair to prime, [illegible].

HUGHES URGES LAWS TO PREVENT STRIKES

PUBLIC INTEREST SUPREME

Bolshevism Called a Form of Tyranny to Which the World Will Never Submit.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14.—The establishment of suitable machinery for industrial justice, particularly in the basic industries, to be followed by a refusal to allow the workers in such industries to hold a club over the community, was suggested in a speech here tonight by Charles E. Hughes, who addressed the World's Christian Citizenship Conference on "The Antidote to Bolshevism."

Though he dealt at length with social, political, and legal machinery for carrying out the spirit of democracy, Mr. Hughes made emphatic and plain his belief that the first remedy of all was the "swift and resolute stamping out of those who incite to disorder and violence, who plot revolution, who seek to attain their end by intimidation or force." For alien emissaries seeking to establish Bolshevism or engulf us in anarchy there should be no room in this country, he said.

Bolshevism, Mr. Hughes declared, knows both the meaning of liberty and of democracy, and is opposed to both, seeking to substitute a tyrannical rule of the minority. He called this creed "a travesty of socialism," and said that the prophecy of Marx himself had utterly failed because Marx looked for control through a vast proletarian majority bred of the economic struggle. The economic order he despised, but liberalizing agencies he did not foresee resulted in a diffusion of prosperity he had deemed impossible.

After showing how Lenin, following upon the failure of the realization of the prophecies of Marx, had tried to force the rule of a very small minority, Mr. Hughes said:

"Every one who seeks to subject the community to class domination is a traitor to the Republic. Upon this point there is no room for compromise. If we are to maintain the Republic it must be understood that no group can make its interests supreme and by the use of its power paralyze the essential instrumentalities of our national life."

Addressing himself to the remedy the speaker said a practical problem presented itself to each country and he would attempt to prescribe for no other nation. Here in America there would be one sure, if paradoxical, cure. That would lie in actually giving to that minority control of the nation. "We should not long endure such tyranny and there would be swift reaction with rescue of the nation from the clutches of the few." Similarly, Mr. Hughes predicted the present throwing off of the yoke by Russia, but declared that in this country "we do not propose to go through such a quarter of an hour" and we "propose to escape such an intervening disaster," though confident of the outcome, as even the temporary or partial success of these apostles of class rule would produce.

Mr. Hughes's discourse turned to the question of industrial disputes and he took up first the possibility of railroad strikes, saying: "Against such a calamity, against the sacrifice of the essential interest of the community, against every effort to force concession by threatening the community with cold and hunger and paralysis of enterprise, the community should have sure protection. There should be prompt and fair provision to this end."

Pointing out that the Thirteenth Amendment to the Constitution was enacted to prevent forever any form of bondage, Mr. Hughes said the right thus secured was an individual right, and added:

"Our institutions of freedom do not render us impotent to protect ourselves against the domination of any combination or any concert threatening to destroy communities by interrupting their facilities of communication or by stopping their necessary supplies. Organized power of capital or labor cannot be permitted to work its own will to the injury of the public.

"We need a permanent solution of these problems. War legislation is not permanent and war remedies merely attest a need which may survive them. The industrial situation in its relation to our basic industries, no less than in the case of transportation, needs comprehensive treatment. If in these vital matters, concerted action to obtain redress of grievances is to be placed under limitations in order to protect the public, then the public must perform its duty through its appropriate organs in making adequate provision for the peaceful and fair settlement of industrial disputes through agencies fairly representing all concerned in such disputes. In ordinary civic relations, we have substituted courts and the processes of justice for the strong arm and vigilance committee.

"The time is at hand when we must furnish suitable machinery for industrial justice, at least so far as those vital enterprises are concerned upon which our life depends. It should not be impossible to do this if we are sincere in our demands for justice. The processes of justice imply the creation of impartial tribunals and the opportunities for fair consideration. They imply that the parties to the dispute cannot take the law into their own hands and sacrifice the peace and well-being of the community to their contentions. The problem is often discussed as though it simply concerned employers and employes. Stockholders may be able to stand the conflict; employes may have the benefit of strike funds.

FRIEDSAM DECRIES CONTROL OF PRICES

FINDS NO PROFITEERING

Extravagance, Interrupted Output, and High Costs Are Blamed for Conditions.

The spirit of extravagance pervading the American buying public was blamed for the high cost of living by Michael Friedsam, President of B. Altman & Co. and Chairman of the Fair Price Committee's subcommittee on clothing and shoes, in a statement read by him at a conference between members of his committee and United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey at the Waldorf yesterday. Mr. Friedsam added that high labor costs, subnormal transportation facilities, the constant interruption of production because of industrial disputes, and "a certain relaxation in the world at large" were contributing factors.

The meeting was called by Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams at a request from United States Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer. The Government, according to Mr. Williams, is seeking to ascertain just what is a fair price for clothing and shoes for action against profiteers in these commodities under the amendment to the Lever act.

Mr. Friedsam acted as Chairman of the meeting, and as soon as the conference was called to order he read the following statement:

"For the past few months, the committee has been carefully investigating the subject of the selling prices of clothing and shoes. As I have stated on another occasion, we could most properly summarize the results of our findings with the statement that we have found no evidence of profiteering. Quite to the contrary, in the course of our studies, we discovered that many clothing manufacturers, on account of unprecedented conditions—instead of making a profit—were actually sustaining a loss.

"There is every prospect, as we have mentioned in a previous report, that shoes will be still higher in price. This is quite natural, and results from a combination of uncontrollable circumstances. Retail shoe dealers are selling shoes today at prices below replacement cost, and the retail clothing dealer has not even made a normal profit.

Foresees Lack of Goods.

"The paramount question, in my opinion, during the coming season, will not be one of price, but rather the difficulty of obtaining sufficient clothing and shoes for the public. Our greatest effort should be dedicated to the purpose of holding prices where they are at present, for I fear that conditions tend toward a natural advance.

"It is manifestly unfair to the public to indulge in prophesies to the effect that 'prices are going to be reduced,' without first having made a thorough study of present industrial conditions, and all matters relating thereto. High labor costs, subnormal transportation facilities, the frequency of industrial disputes, and the consequent interruption of production because of this, and a certain relaxation in the world at large, cannot logically result in any changed condition, in respect to prices, for a considerable time to come. Profiteering, if and when discovered, should be unmercifully dealt with, but the public, in all justice, should not be fed on false hopes or promises. To do this only breeds discontent, and promotes a condition which is inimical to our institutions.

"Another factor which must be reckoned with is the spirit of extravagance which seems to be pervading the buying public. This was a natural outgrowth of the war and the sudden acquisition of large buying power by many who were previously accustomed to handling only small incomes, or no incomes at all.

"In view of the general unstable conditions of industry and the relative slowness with which the ordinary channels of world trade are resuming their normal functions, I believe that any attempt to formulate a price list for clothing and shoes is not only impracticable, but entirely impossible. This committee appreciates the fact that it is, of course, possible for constituted authority to arbitrarily fix a price for a given article, but such arbitrary price-fixing with regard to clothing or shoes, at this time, and in view of the conditions which we all know exist, in these as well as other industries, could result only in fluctuation of actual value of materials in these goods to meet such a fixed price. In other words, the quality of the materials in clothing or shoes would necessarily be reduced if the price was immovable. Obviously, no one can hope to purchase a real diamond at the price of an imitation.

Urges More Production.

"The element of competition is, happily, always keen, and the consuming public has learned, in these recent days, to regard the advertisements appearing in the daily press as their most valuable barometer of trade conditions and fair prices.

"The crying need everywhere is production and more production. The solution of our question will not come from debate or proclamation. It will be solved by a combination of just two things—work and thrift. Work, sincere and earnest, on the part of every single one of us, whatever our station, and thrift on the part of the whole public. Unless we can check the wave of reckless extravagance which seems to possess a great part of the public I am afraid that efforts on the part of such committees as this will be futile. In these two factors lies the solution."

Other members of the committee, including Clarkson Cowl of James A. Hearn & Son, Louis Stewart of James McCreery & Co., W. E. Goldman of Cohen, Goldman & Co., Emil Weil of S. Weil & Co., John Slater of J. J. Slater, and Jacob Sperber, backed up their chairman in his assertions, but one and all promised to aid the Government in every way in its war on profiteering. The merchants contended that the custom of advertising prices in the newspapers more than compensated for any advantages to be derived from a fair price list. However, to arrive at a schedule of prices as requested by the Attorney General, Mr. Friedsam promised to make a survey of the situation. Another meeting will be held in a few days to consider the matter again. Mr. Williams assured the committee of the Government's faith in the power of its members to evolve a plan that would set a standard for the whole nation.

CITY BUS IN COLLISION.

Driver and Two Passengers Hurt in Brooklyn Accident.

While attempting to turn from Flatbush Avenue into Atlantic Avenue, just south of the Long Island Railroad Depot, early yesterday morning, one of the Municipal buses plying between Windsor Place and Borough Hall was pinned between an elevated road pillar and a southbound Flatbush Avenue trolley car. The front wheel of the bus was torn off and the front of it smashed in.

The driver, Charles Lasso, of 16 Rector Street, Newark, N. J., and two passengers, Frank Schern of 149 Prospect Park Southwest and William Schaeffer of 942 Lafayette Avenue, were slightly injured. They were attended by an ambulance surgeon and went home. An odd feature of the accident was that a wrecking car of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company, to which the buses run in opposition, was called upon to get the damaged automobile away from the railroad tracks.

WANT BUSES FOR BROADWAY

Association Members Urge Motor Vehicles to Replace Cars.

The elimination of surface cars on Broadway and the substitution of motor buses of the type used in Paris, was advocated in speeches at the regular monthly meeting yesterday of the Broadway Association. A discussion of the matter was provoked by Walton F. Kingsley of the New York Life Insurance Company, a new member, who asked what the association was doing and suggested that it should concentrate its efforts on the most important things.

Major Henry G. Opdycke, Managing Director of the association, replied by saying the two most important things needed on Broadway were a better lighting system and the ousting of the noisy and inadequate "tank cars." These cumbrous vehicles, he said, were largely responsible for the traffic congestion on the thoroughfare. In favoring the Paris type of buses he explained that they had low-hung platforms and double the inside seating capacity of the Fifth Avenue buses. Altogether he thought they would make ideal conveyances for Broadway.

COMMODITIES PRICES

The rise in Spring patent flour in this market to $12.50 a barrel, was the feature of the fluctuations in wholesale commodities prices this week. According to Dun's list, the general trend of values for the week was upward, 48 of the 78 revisions shown being advances. Last week, when the total of changes was only 45, 33 advances were indicated. The approach of fancy nearby eggs to the $1 a dozen mark at wholesale was also a feature this week.

*Government maximums. †Nominal.

As noted above, Spring patent flour went up 50 cents a barrel here during the week, but there was no change in the price of Winter "straights." Bacon advanced again here, but no price change in hams was noted. In the Chicago provisions market advances were recorded on live beef and short ribs, while live hogs and Middle Western lard went down. Live sheep and mess pork did not change. The feature of the changes in the vegetables list, which were limited, was the rise of 25 cents a barrel in the price of potatoes, which put them a dollar a barrel above last year's price at this time. Rice also advanced, but there was a decline in choice red kidney beans. Neither the listed fresh or dried fruits showed change either way.

The dairy products list showed a slight rise in the price of the best butter, but the under grades were unchanged, as were all grades of cheese. Fancy nearby eggs moved up 2 cents a dozen, while the best Westerns went up 6 cents. Fancy eggs are now 5 cents a dozen higher than at this time in 1918, but the comparative excess in the Westerns is only 2 cents a dozen. Common and open kettle molasses were both quoted higher, possibly due to an increased demand growing out of the shortage of sugar. In the tea list advances were shown by fine and fair Formosa. No. 4 Santos coffee was higher, but No. 7 Rio went down. The revisions in the spices were confined to declines in nutmegs and white pepper. Eighteen changes were shown by the lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils, ten of which were advances. The features included the strength of essential oils generally and the further rise in menthol. In the naval stores there was a further rise in resin, but turpentine was easier in price. No changes either way were sown in the listed feathers, but seven of the ten items listed in the hides division were lower than they were last week. There were no advances, and the only varieties that did not decline were No. 1 native packer, heavy native cows, and No. 1 calfskins. Raw silks were higher generally. Hemp advanced.

Revisions in the grains list consisted of declines in corn and rye, and advances in oats and malting barley. The metals list showed advances in all grades of pig iron, and also in most varieties of billets. Wire rods and steel bars advanced at Pittsburgh. Furnace coke was higher. Antimony and spelter supplied the advances in the minor metals, with the only decline shown in tin.

Not a great deal of activity was noted in the burlap market during the week, for which the paucity of stocks of spot goods was held somewhat to blame. Not much change is looked for until cargoes held up by the recent strike of the longshoremen are discharged. Nominally, mill prices on several constructions of unfinished cotton goods closed higher than they opened, but there was selling by second hands at figures well under the nominal levels.

Dress Goods Trade Picks Up.

More interest has been shown in dress goods during the week than in the previous one. This is due, selling agents feel, to the improvement in retail conditions which has been reflected in the cutting-up trade. Jobbers have also become more active, which is considered a good sign. The mills have succeeded in impressing buyers with the necessity of getting goods now in order to prevent a future shortage. The demand continues to be for semi-staple materials.

Polo Coats to be Featured.

The women's coat trade consider that polo coats will be the one best bet for Spring. The type expected to create most interest is the belted model in the shorter lengths. Set in and raglan sleeves will be used, and the entire effect will be on the order of the Tuxedo coat. Beyond this novelty, the trade does not expect to see much else that will be so much different from the styles that have been featured during the last few months.

Novel Animal Toys.

A line of novel animal toys put on the market this week has drawn some large orders. There are five figures in the line, all of them covered with a fine quality of felt. The idea carried out is to combine certain characteristics of the duck with those of other animals. A giraffe, for instance, has the long neck and head of that animal, with the short, stubby wings and the feet of a duck. Another odd combination is that of an owl with a duck. The effects obtained by these combinations are bizarre. The toys sell wholesale for $12 a dozen and may be had for immediate delivery.

Sweaters for Small Girls.

Following in the footsteps of the styles worn by their elders, sweaters made for little girls for next Spring will show the ripple effect below the waistline. The popular small girl's sweater for Fall was a fishtail closely-fitting sweater. Just as much attention is now paid to new styles for the younger generation as to those designed for women of fashion, according to a leading manufacturer of such goods. At present this branch of the knit goods trade is closing up Fall business and working on the new ideas for Spring. The demand for merchandise has been so active that very little in the way of desirable goods is to be had.

Fur Trimmings Also Expensive.

Not all of the high prices asked for furs this Fall are confined to those quoted on coats or sets. Attempts to buy some trimming strips in local retail stores yesterday brought out prices that not only were high, judged from standards of former times, but showed considerable variation. In one store, for instance, a yard of nutria, one inch wide, was priced at $3.50. In a second store what appeared to be identically similar merchandise was quoted at $4.50. A third store had nutria of this width at $3 a yard, but in this case the strips were not "backed," as was the case of the fur offered by the first two stores. The cost of "backing," however, could scarcely have caused the higher prices asked by the first two. As against these figures, nutria of a slightly inferior quality, "backed," was quoted in a certain uptown neighborhood store at 90 cents a yard.

Foresees Coat Shortage.

Despite the large stocks of women's coats that were carried by the local garment manufacturers only a few weeks ago, one of the leading manufacturers stated yesterday that good merchandise is very well cleaned up at the present time, and there is every reason to believe that the retailers will face a shortage of goods the latter part of next month and during January. Many of the manufacturers, who grew worried over the conditions during the unseasonable weather just over, sold out their stocks at very close figures instead of waiting for retail business to improve. These houses are now finished with their Fall and Winter manufacturing, and are working on lines for next Spring. The upshot of this will be, it was predicted, that the usual supply of merchandise for January will not be forthcoming.

Second Hands Sell Gray Goods.

Second hands were less able than first to keep a stiff upper lip in the local gray goods market yesterday, in the face of the sharp break in cotton, with the result that they let out quite a few goods at prices under those nominally quoted by the mills. Practically all of the business done was again confined to this year's delivery. Included in it were sales of 39-inch 68-72s at 22½ cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 16 cents. Some holders were asking a quarter of a cent more for the latter, but apparently did not get it. Bids of 16¼ cents for nearby 38½-inch 64-60s failed to bring out goods, asking prices being 16½-16¾ cents, depending largely on who held them. Second hands made these sales of sheetings during the day for this year's delivery: Forty-eight-square 4-yards at 20½ cents, 5-yards at 17 cents, and 5.50-yard goods at 15 cents. Sales of standard 40-inch combed lawns were reported at 36 cents.

To Begin Linen Shipments.

Deliveries to American buyers of airplane linens formerly owned by the British Government, but now being sold privately in most of the leading countries of the world, will begin on a limited scale within the next week. Information to this effect was given out yesterday at the offices of the Hunter Manufacturing and Commission Company, the American selling agent, where it was further said that shipments would be increased as rapidly as possible. Fifteen cases of the goods were recently unloaded from the Mauretania before she was forced to return with the bulk of her cargo undischarged, and a consignment that has arrived on the Carmania will be released today. Selling in this country is still hampered by the lack of complete sets of samples, but despite this fact it was said yesterday that about 12,000,000 of the 19,000,000 yards allotted for disposal in Great Britain and the United States together had been disposed of in about two weeks.

How Much Was Speculation?

Opinions are divided in the gray goods end of the local dry goods trade regarding just how much of the recent very active buying of these fabrics was done with the idea of speculation in view. At the time the goods were being sold there was quite a general expression of sentiment to the effect that the speculative movement had ended, and that the merchandise then being ordered was for actual consumption. With the crash in the stock and cotton markets on Wednesday a number of secondhands threw goods on the market at concessions of a quarter to a half cent a yard, and the "consumption" idea were stumped. With the partial recovery on Thursday, however, and the consequent withdrawal of much of the secondhand offerings, there was a disposition in several quarters to say "I told you so." The fact that yesterday's slump in cotton failed to rout secondhands again to any great extent strengthened the belief that the buyers really intended to use the goods themselves. Opinions on this point, though, are not unanimous.

MORE COTTON CONSUMED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Cotton consumed during October amounted to 555,344 bales of lint and 25,603 of linters, the Census Bureau announced today. During October a year ago 440,334 bales of lint and 97,009 of linters were consumed.

Cotton on hand Oct. 31 in consuming establishments was 1,265,307 bales of lint and 248,382 of linters, compared with 1,489,227 of lint and 156,472 of linters a year ago, and in public storage and at compresses 3,667,121 bales of lint and 94,910 of linters, compared with 3,941,045 of lint and 83,416 of linters as held a year ago.

Imports were 34,831 bales, compared with 4,277 in October a year ago.

Exports were 582,234 bales, including 479 bales of linters, compared with 383,995 bales, including 25,729 of linters.

TOLEDO STILL CARLESS.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 14.—Although Henry L. Doherty and the city officials yesterday failed to reach an agreement on the resumption of street car traffic, there was a feeling at the City Hall today that a settlement will come soon. Merchants are agreed that something must be done and will put the question squarely up to the municipal authorities.

Mr. Doherty reiterated today that he is willing to do almost anything reasonable to return the cars. He wants assurance of a settlement, however. The city began today its sixth day of walking or riding in buses. Traffic is badly congested, and the buses are not heated. Nearly 4,000 machines are operating at present, carrying passengers for 10 cents a ride.

PULP MEN SEE NEED FOR FOREST SAVING

Nation's Supply of Raw Material for Paper Making is Being Depleted.

MUST PLANT MORE TREES

Five aids to forest conservation were suggested yesterday at the annual conference of the American Paper and Pulp Association at the Waldorf by a committee headed by Frank L. Moore. For five years an average of 5,300,000 cords of paper pulp wood has been used in this country, and, according to the report, "our forest capital is being used up faster than it is replaced."

The plan submitted by the committee embraces:

A Forest survey and land classification.

A great enlargement of the public purchase of cutover lands for which ample precedent has been established in the East by both the Federal Government and by some of the States. The best interests of the country would seem ultimately to require at least twice the present area of public forests.

The States, through the adoption of uniformly fair forest taxation laws, the establishment of forest nurseries, and the preparation of forest working plans, should offer every possible encouragement to the owner who wishes to grow timber on his land.

Very properly the most immediate concern is the protection of the timber we already have, but wherever sufficient fire protection can be secured a large program of forest planting, should be carried out.

In conclusion, the committee urged that efforts be made to unite the professional foresters, the timberland owners, and the consumers of forest products upon an immediate program of forest fire protection and acquisition of cutover lands. It also outlined special methods of fire protection in the Northeastern States.

Hugh P. Baker, Dean of the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse, emphasized the possibility of renewing our forest resources. "It should be clearly understood," he said, "that better forests from every standpoint than we have had in this country in the past are possible under the right application of forestry. The Black Forest and other forest areas of Europe, not so well adapted to forest growth as very much of the forest area of this country, before the war were producing more than a thousand board feet per acre per year."

Frederick P. Fish, Chairman of the National Industrial Conference Board, and Magnus W. Alexander, Director of the Board, told of the work of the Committee on Industrial Relations in Washington. "The first principle the employers' group recognized," he said, "was increased production. That must be recognized by employers and employes alike. Another necessary step is to bring back the kind of close relations and personal contact between employers and employes which used to exist. Let us promote the individual shop and bring back these close relations. As to wages, we say that the old law of supply and demand is the basis, but it must be supplemented by a man's capacity and fidelity."

URGE LAWS FOR CHILDREN.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 14.—Mrs. Philip N. Moore of St. Louis was re-elected President of the National Council of Women at its session here today. Mrs. Josephus Daniels was elected Third Vice President, having sent a telegram that she would accept the office, while Miss Helen Taft was elected Recording Secretary, despite the fact that she has not signified whether or not she would accept.

May Wright Sewall of Indianapolis and Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett of Alexandria, Va., were elected to the new office of Honorary Presidents.

Laws legitimizing children born out of wedlock were urged in the resolutions presented today by Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey, Chairman of the Department of Legal Status of Women and Children. The resolution, which was unanimously adopted, included the rights of the child to the father's name and to inherit property of both parents.

Other resolutions presented by Mrs. Mussey advocated the establishment of minimum wage boards in all States, urged laws giving joint and equal guardianship of parents over minor children and for raising the age necessary for making a contract, and appealed to Congress to pass laws allowing women marrying aliens to retain their citizenship.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and Miss Lucy E. Anthony were elected Governors of the International Council which will be held in Norway in September, 1920. The council meets every five years.

PREACHER FEARED ASSAULT.

The Rev. W. H. Miller, Who Resigned, Expects a Vote of Confidence

NORTH HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 14.—Threats of bodily injury, made by men of six or eight families here, had a part in the decision of the Rev. William H. Miller, pastor of the North Hackensack Dutch Reformed Church, to resign, according to George F. Benedict, a member of the Church Consistory and President of the Citizens' Association.

"Those people who made the threats were nonchurch people," said Mr. Benedict. "They are kind of fighting the church. Mr. Miller thought they might do him some bodily harm, but he said that he had nothing to fear in any other way. It seems to me that it would hardly be possible to prove anything in court."

The Rev. Dr. Albert von Schleider, pastor of the First Reformed Church, Hackensack, who officiated as moderator at the consistory meeting, said tonight that the pastor voluntarily resigned on Wednesday with the understanding that the congregation would give him a vote of confidence on Sunday morning.

The Rev. Mr. Miller returned here today, but refused to add anything to what he has already said—that is, making a denial of the rumors concerning him and insisting that no direct charges were made against him at the consistory meeting.

WOMAN LEAPS FROM FERRY.

An unidentified woman jumped overboard yesterday afternoon from the ferry boat West Point, plying between Forty-second Street and Weehawken, after leaving a dark brown coat with a fur collar, a black pocket book containing 17 cents, and a light tan turban hat with black feathers on the upper deck of the boat.

Captain Reginald Fay in charge of a New York Central tug, passing the ferryboat at the time, saw the woman jump, and lowered a boat in an effort to rescue her but she disappeared and was not seen again. The Marine Division of the Police Department is endeavoring to locate the woman's body.

COURT BARS MUD THROWING

The Rev. Christian Adam Kress, former pastor of the Sixteenth Street Free Methodist Church, Brooklyn, and now connected with the A. M. Chesborough Seminary at Chili, N. Y., took the witness stand in his own behalf yesterday when the trial of the separation suit brought against him by Mrs. Jessie Kress, 283A Steuben Street, Brooklyn, was resumed in the Brooklyn Supreme Court before Justice Kelby. Mrs. Kress charges cruel and inhuman treatment and desertion.

Counsel for Mrs. Kress asked the minister if it were not a fact that he had used indecent and profane language in telling some tales to a visitor in Philadelphia three years ago.

Justice Kelby then said to counsel:

"Counsel, stop throwing mud. You have brought out what seems to be an undying hate, a positive enmity between these two. Confine yourself to incidents related in the complaint of his hitting her on the back with a chair and his subsequent desertion of her."

Later in his examination counsel brought out the minister's objection to his wife's dancing while he was pastor of the Sixteenth Street Church.

"Is it not a fact, Mr. Kress, that your parish held block parties and that many people of your parish danced at them?" asked counsel.

"Some derelicts did. Some of them believed in dancing," replied the minister.

DINNER FOR HOSPITAL FUND

Workers in $1,000,000 United Drive Meet for Official Opening.

The United Hospital Fund, which is starting a million dollar campaign for the hospitals of New York City next Monday, gave a dinner at the Waldorf last evening to mark the official opening of the drive. The speakers included Ogden L. Mills, Dr. S. S. Goldwater, former Health Commissioner; the Rev. M. H. Lichliter of Newtonville, Mass., and Joseph Hartigan, Honorary Chairman of the American Inter-Racial Committee. William C. Breed presided.

The workers in the campaign number 1,000, and will be given one week in which to reach the $1,000,000 mark. The money raised will be prorated among the forty-six hospitals in the Fund, in proportion to the amount of their free patient work. It cost these hospitals during the past year $9,000,000 to care for 147,422 patients. Their regular income from paying patients and other sources was $6,000,000, leaving a deficit of $3,000,000.

The campaign committee is made up of the following branches: Uptown Committee—Robert Oliphant, President of the Fund, Chairman. Downtown Committee—Odgen L. Mills, Chairman. Industrial Committee—Theodore F. Whitmarsh, Chairman. Church Committee—James McVickar Breed, Chairman.

S. H. RUNDLE, 80, DIVORCED.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 14.—Samuel H. Rundle of Danbury, 80-year-old banker, former hat manufacturer and breeder of trotting horses, was granted a divorce from his 30-year-old bride, Gladys Austin Rundle of New York, on statutory grounds by Judge James Webb of the Superior Court today.

The testimony in the case was heard by committee, Judge John W. Banks presiding. Thomas Roe was named as corespondent. The decree was granted on Rundle's cross-complaint, as his wife's suit for divorce on the ground of intolerable cruelty.

The couple were married in Greenwich, Oct. 16, 1918, and the affair created discussion because of the difference in the ages of the couple. One month after the wedding the wife started divorce proceedings. Thereupon Rundle filed a cross-complaint, charging that the young bride had conceived the fraudulent design of marrying him and then abandoning him so she could get a large sum of money.

He charged that his wife before the ceremony represented that her name was Gladys Collins and that she was single, when, as a matter of fact, she was at the time of the marriage the legal wife of Sidney A. Toevey of New York.

It contains accommodations for seventy-two families and returns an annual rental of about $180,000. It is laid out in suites of six, seven, eight and nine rooms. HANDLEY-PAGE CREW FORCED TO DESCEND

LAND AT MT. JEWETT, PENN.

The Handley-Page biplane Atlantic, which left Mineola yesterday morning in an attempt at a nonstop flight to Chicago to demonstrate its express carrying powers, was forced to land at Mount Jewett, Pa., about 265 miles from here, yesterday afternoon because intense cold froze the water in the engine cooling system. This telegram, signed by Admiral Mark Kerr, in command of the plane, was received here by Dr. Miller Reese Hutchinson:

"Water trouble, probably due to the intense cold weather, necessitated landing here. Hope to continue on to Cleveland tomorrow. Strong head winds all the way. We are two miles from Jewett."

It was assumed that the landing was made without mishap, but those in charge of the enterprise here did not know why the flight when resumed would have Cleveland, rather than Chicago, for its immediate objective.

The Atlantic left Mitchel Field at 6:35 yesterday morning, laden with 4,500 pounds of express and carrying eight persons—Admiral Kerr, Major Herbert G. Brackley, principal pilot; Colonel Archie Miller, commander of Mitchel Field; four mechanics, and Douglas Malcom of the American Railway Express, who traveled as the first American air express messenger. The express shipment consisted of women's furs and suits consigned to Chicago firms.

The getaway was in excellent style, though it came several hours later than planned, because the mechanics had a long struggle starting the four Rolls-Royce engines, which were stiff from cold, as there was no hangar available large enough to shelter the craft.

The exact time of the forced landing was not given in the telegram, but the machine was making good speed, once it had straightened out on its course, and was reported traveling fast over Binghamton about 10 o'clock in the morning.

Originally built to bomb Berlin, the Atlantic was refitted when The London Daily Mail offered a $50,000 prize for the first nonstop flight across the Atlantic Ocean, and was sent to Harbour Grace, N. F., to attempt that flight. It was ready to start on the same day the Vickers Vimy got away from St. John's, N. F., last July, but engine trouble due to insufficient radiation capacity, developed, and the start was postponed.

After the Vickers Vimy had made its successful pioneer flight, it was intended at first that the Handley-Page should attempt to repeat the journey as soon as new radiators were installed, devoting especial attention to experiments with its elaborate wireless equipment, including a radio-direction-finding outfit specially designed and installed by the Marconi Company.

When the R-34 started for America, however, it was determined that the Atlantic, too, should fly to this country in an effort to beat the dirigible from the time it crossed Newfoundland. The R-34 successfully completed its journey, but the Handley-Page came to grief at Parrsboro, N. S., when a broken crankshaft forced a descent, in which the machine was partly wrecked.

Several months were required for repairs and rebuilding, in the course of which the wireless gear was removed, after which the biplane was flown from Parrsboro to Long Island without stop a few weeks ago. It is the intention of its owners to keep it in this country for demonstration and exhibition purposes.

INFLUENZA IN STEEL MILLS.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Nov. 14.—Spanish influenza has broken out among workmen living in steel mills here on account of the steel strike, according to announcement by Youngstown Hospital officials today, who said that six cases had been taken to the hospital from the Ohio works of the Carnegie Steel Company and three from the Brier Hill Steel Company. Several hundred men have been living in each plant during the eight weeks of the strike.

Friction between the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, the largest union involved in the steel strike, and strike headquarters for the Youngstown district became apparent again today when J. E. McCadden, organizer for the district, declared that the National Strike Committee at a meeting in Pittsburgh yesterday decided that all men entering the mills would be regarded "unfair." Mr. McCadden said that the ruling would apply to Amalgamated men who under a previous decision of the National Committee have returned to many mills with which they held contracts before the strike.

THREE FIREMEN DISMISSED.

Jersey City Commissioner Also Transfers 45 More Men.

Public Safety Commissioner Charles F. X. O'Brien continued yesterday his drastic reorganization of the Jersey City Fire Department, which, he charges, has become demoralized since the men joined a union. The Commissioner followed his transfer of ninety-seven men, including fourteen officers, on Thursday, with the dismissal of three and the shifting of forty-two more men, including seven Captains. He has announced his further determination to replace the entire force with ex-service men, if necessary, rather than permit it to "turn Bolshevik."

The men dismissed after trial before the Commissioner are: Private Benson Wickam of Truck 9, treasurer of the Firemen's Mutual Benefit Association, an organization distinct from the union; Private Walter McCabe of Truck 7, employed in the department repair shop, and Private Ernest Engelstadter of Truck 7. The charges against Wickam grew out of a controversy over the handling of the association's funds. McCabe was dismissed for alleged absence without leave and Engelstadter on charges of being asleep on duty and insubordination.

Fire Chief Roger Boyle made known his determination to back up the Commissioner in the reorganization of the department and his sympathy with O'Brien's charges that the department has become demoralized.

"I think we shall have to transfer the whole force," he said. "The men 'on the hill' and in the residential district have had so little to do that they have been listening to agitators and have got discontented. Downtown, where there are more fires, the firemen have behaved better."

The firemen deny the general charges against them, and assert that O'Brien is disgruntled because at the recent election the two-platoon system was carried by an overwhelming majority.

Degoutte Bars Frankfort Papers.

MAINZ, Nov. 14.—General Degoutte, commander of the interallied troops of occupation on the Rhine, has forbidden circulation in the French zone of the Frankfurter Zeitung and the Frankfurter Volkestimme because the newspapers published slanderous articles against the French authorities.

TO PREFER EX-SERVICE MEN

Former Fighters and Their Families Will Be Favored for Census Work.

Preference in Federal service jobs will be observed in New York City in the selection of census enumerators for the 1920 census, according to a statement made yesterday by Rodman Richardson, the census supervisor for the County of Queens. This action is being taken in accordance with a Federal statute governing the choice of enumerators.

The various supervisors in Greater New York and Long Island have agreed informally, Mr. Richardson stated, to give preference as well to the families of former soldiers and sailors, particularly those who are suffering distress as a result of the war.

Mr. Richardson said that on account of an error in Brooklyn newspapers, applications from people in Queens County were being sent to the Brooklyn supervisor; Arthur G. Gore, instead of to him. Applicants from that county outside of Brooklyn should address him at the Court House, Flushing. The supervisors for the other sections of New York are as follows:

Brooklyn—Arthur G. Gore, Offerman Building, Fulton and Duffield Streets, Brooklyn.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY NOV. 23.

Churches to Aid Non-Municipal Institutions' $1,000,000 Drive.

New York City churches will observe Sunday, Nov. 23, as Hospital Sunday, when the pastors will commend the United Hospital Fund Campaign, which seeks to raise $1,000,000 to aid the forty-six non-municipal hospitals, which have a deficit of $2,244,038. Only three of the hospitals did not have a deficit last year.

Many of the churches will follow their custom of past years and take a special offering for the campaign on the last Sunday in December, although the campaign this year is being held from Nov. 17 to Nov. 24.

Tailored By A Tailor
Not Just Retailed By A Retailer

No stop-over privilege! Our Overcoats travel straight from our custom tailors upstairs to our customers downstairs. One organization, one operation, one remuneration. We have even none of the usual packing or shipping expenses.

Kindergarten logic proves that we can underprice and overvalue the ordinary Retail Clothier, who must put his own profit on top of the Clothing Manufacturer's fat one.

And—in a season of painfully limited assortments, ours are practically unlimited, because our upstairs workrooms turn out 500 complete-to-wear Suits and Overcoats a week.

Capitalizing Your Ability
THE man who really capitalizes his ability as an executive spends his time, not in running the business, but in building it so that it will run itself. He recognizes that the business which can "get along" without the trained assistance of the Certified Public Accountant is not likely to be as well-founded as the one that openly recognizes the NEED for him. It is the Certified Public Accountant who is the business counselor and advisor of today. He is continually solving inside problems through outside experience. He is a material factor in capitalizing the executive's ability.
